

The sound of music at the University of Tampa will now be even more resounding, thanks to a $1,000 check from Richard V. Crosta (right), of Union, New Jersey, and recipient of last year's honorary band fraternity Outstanding Alumni Award. The gift, which is for a practice studio for percussion instruments in McKay Auditorium, was received by Vice President Michael lendelsohn (left) and Kenneth Norton (center), president of music fraternity Kappa Kappa Psi. Crosta loves football almost as much as he loves music. He and his son, AI, a 1973 UT graduate, fly to Tampa almost weekly to watch the UT football team play.

Chairman Danahy announces $50,000 goal

Alumni Loyalty Fund Chairman Paul W. Danahy, Jr ('51) has announced a record $50,000 goal for the 1973 drive. He stated: "Based on our previous track record. I feel very confident we will exceed our goal. Naturally it will take the collective efforts of all alumni, but in light of the tremendous progress the University has made during President Owens' administration. there is every indication that our alma mater has attained national recognition as a 'Landmark of Learning.' It will require our full financial support to continue and maintain this reputation."

Initial reports by Special Gifts Division Chairman Jerry Bobier ('60) are most pleasing. In the Special Gifts Division, emphasis is placed upon soliciting alumni for membership in the Minaret Society and the Century Club. Last year six alumni were members of the prestigious Minaret Society, which requires a minimum annual donation of $1,000. Recognizing annual support from $100 to $999, the Century Club had 89 members in 1972. "Our goal this year will be 125 members of the Century Club and ten Minaret Society members. Bobier told his Special Gifts Division members. To date we have six Minaret Society members and, with solicitation for Century Club just getting underway. seven members have made pledges.

The 1973 Tel-o-thon drive, headed by Chairman Robert Most ('69), will take a new twist. For the first time alumni all over the country will receive a personal phone call and be asked to make a pledge. The past three years a similar tel-o-thon effort has been conducted in the Tampa Bay area with tremendous success. As Most stated, "we feel that by moving to a national tel-o-thon, we can help assure exceeding our $50,000 goal."

University of Tampa embarks on education odyssey

Odysseus had no corner on the market for discovering "new horizons." Some 55 adult students have now embarked on their own individual educational journeys by enrolling in University of Tampa's New Horizons program. This program has been especially designed to help mature men and women enrich their lives by taking one or more college courses.

The "New Horizons" pursued by the program's enrollees range from ecology to contemporary philosophy, from comparative world religions to

The program is being coordinated through Robert Cook, Director of Admissions, to whom inquiries should be directed.

Much of the success of the new program is due to Dr. Robert Harder, philosopher, humanist, and first program counselor. His quotable advice to counselees is: "You're only too old to learn when you're dead."

"New Horizons" is the type of program that breaks down antiquated educational barriers, recognizes no stereotyped notions about typical college students, and opens up communications among people of diverse ages and backgrounds. The generation gap, for example, has been forgotten; among the first adventurers are three women representing three generations in one family!

Although in the ancient world the exploration and discovery of new worlds was achieved only by men, in UT's twentieth-century world, women especially have responded to the call of new horizons. These women are now flexing their intellectual muscles and tapping wells of creativity.

The motives for enrolling in the program are happily diverse. New Horizon students are here to: begin a college program; complete an interrupted college education; update previous studies; gain cultural and intellectual enrichment; experience a more fulfilling community life; and get more enjoyment from leisure time.

Understandably, UT's New Horizons program is one of the most talked-about and praised innovations, both inside and outside of the university.

Mrs. Virginia Goulding, first person to enroll in the New Horizons program and her daughter Amanda are welcomed by Dr. Robert Harder, first counselor for the program. Mrs. Goulding, a UT student from 1946-48, is back in school taking courses in philosophy and math. Likemolter-like-daughter, Amanda is furthering her education with studies in philosophy and history.

Mrs. Karen Weltz, housewile and mother of two children, is in the New Horizons program studying con-versational French, Mrs. Weltz came to this country from Denmark versational French. Mrs. Wellz came to this country from Denmark 15 years ago, already with a college degree. However, as she says, "It is rejuvenating to be back in a university atmosphere." New Horizons' is a good name for the program!"

"I wouldn't be back in school if it weren't for the New Horizons pro-gram — I'm really enthusiastic about it!" This testimony comes from Jesse H. Osborne, New from Jesse H. Osborne, New Horizons student who is back in school after an absence of 26 years and is now working toward a B.A. in the social sciences. Jesse is taking courses in English, history, and psychology, while also working full-time as a court ballith for the Hillsborough County Sheriff's de-partment.

Ferguson-Steinbrenner elected to board of trustees

On May 10, 1973, the University of Tampa Board of Trustees elected as new trustees Louise Lykes Ferguson, a prominent Tampan, and George M. Steinbrenner III, Cleveland and Tampa shipbuilding executive.

Both new board members are tied in with ships. Mrs. Ferguson is a member of the Lykes family, which has extensive shipping interests. Steinbrenner III is chairman and chief executive of the American Ship Building Company, Cleveland, which recently acquired Tampa Ship Repair & Dry Dock Company.

A native of Tampa, Mrs. Ferguson joins her husband Chester on the UT Board of Trustees. They share the honor of being the only husband-wife team on the

Mrs. Ferguson is prominent in the Tampa area for many excellent reasons. A former Gasparilla Queen and former president of Chiselers Inc., she has also served on the board of the Family Service Association of Greater Tampa, and on the Governor's Commission on Aging.

George M. Steinbrenner III

Mr. Steinbrenner, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, prefaced his shipping career by serving as assistant football coach at Purdue University in 1956 and at Northwestern University in 1955.

In addition to being former president-treasurer of Kinsman Marine Transit Company, Steinbrenner has been an active board member for several prominent shipping companies. His interest in athletics continues with his part ownership of the Chicago Bulls Basketball Club and the New York Yankees.

Four additional Minarets were lighted up at a signal from Fred J. Woods Jr. (left), with an audience (from left to right) of President B. D. Owens, J. H. Williams Jr., and Fred's wife Harrison. Now all six big Minarets are "under the lights," thanks to this donation from Fred and Harrison Woods. The signal was given during the half-time of the Tampa-Kansas State football game, September 29. Woods, a 1961 UT graduate and member of the Board of Fellows, and his wife are long-time supporters of the University.

MBA program successfully launched

This fall's enrollment of almost 60 students in the Master of Business Administration program portends a bright future for the University of Tampa's first venture into graduate studies.

"We have been very fortunate in getting a good reception for the program," said Dr. Robert Henderson, Dana Professor of Management and director of the program. Henderson attributes this gratifying response to several key factors: the program's emphasis on high quality; a topnotch faculty; the broad base offered by an interdisciplinary approach; and the ability of the program to meet the needs of the academic and business communities.

Among the first MBA students are salesmen, accountants, engineers, contractors, housewives, data processing employees, bankers, military personnel, and corporation presidents. This confirms President B. D. Owens' belief that a UT MBA program would be ideal because of its accessibility "to a wide range of personnel from the business executive to the staff worker."

The program itself will benefit from a wide variety of student insights and philosophies, commented Dr. Henderson, who hopes an even more diversified cross-section of student backgrounds will be represented in the future as the program expands and matures. Responses from students have been as enthusiastic as their educational and professional backgrounds are diverse.

Four renowned speakers from the business and academic worlds are on the Fall roster for the program. Sharing their expertise and ideas have been John Sculley, Vice President of Pepsi Cola Corporation; Bill Anderson, World President of NCR; and Dr. James Constantin, internationally known authority in distribution. Still scheduled is Dr. Stan Vance, renowned expert on corporate directorships.

With this auspicious beginning, the MBA program is certain to attain its goal of "qualifying men and women for ever-increasing creative and dynamic leadership in a changing society where major business decisions have both political and social considerations and implications."

1973-74 student spectrum

The figure 2383, designating the total University of Tampa enrollment for Fall, 1973, is a welcome one. It represents an increase over the projected enrollment by about 75 students. More importantly, it also represents the time and energy expended by faculty, administrators, alumni, parents and students.

The figure 2383 by itself is merely a figure. But when it is interpreted, it becomes charged with interest and meaning. Walking down a corridor in Plant Hall, one might meet an 18-year-old, an "over-thirty" student, or a "golden-ager." One would rub shoulders with students from Massachusetts, Florida, Virginia, Canada and Arabia. One could talk with students who are Indian, Jewish, Black, Caucasian, Catholic, Oriental, Latin, or Protestant.

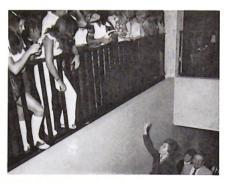

The figure 2383 sums up a spectrum of student interests. Leading the field in numbers of students enrolled as majors are: Business, Physical Education, Biology and Marine Biology, Criminology, Elementary Education, Sociology, Social Work and Psychology. Contributing to the Number One position held by the business division is the new MBA program, which boasts nearly 60 graduate students.

A familiar scene: registration 1973

Some of the age and background variation comes from enrollees in UT's New Horizons program, also new on the scene this fall. Fifty-five of the total 2383 students are adults of all ages returning to college to discover (or rediscover) Beethoven, biology, or Aristotle.

Also represented in this total figure are students on the MacDill campus and in the Bootstrappers program. Thus the figure 2383 speaks proudly for the University of Tampa's intellectual and cultural environment. It is a place where the individual, not the number, counts.

Parents' Weekend began joyously at Tampa International Airport on October 26. For the next three packed days, parents observed and interacted, getting an inside view of UT's campus environment. They met faculty and administrators, visited classes, relaxed with their offspring, cheered the Spartans against Northern Michigan, viewed and discussed a lilm on adjustment to college, toured famous Busch Gardens, and sampled mouth-watering loods at breakfasts, brunches, luncheons, and dinners. "Tired but happy" parents returned home with a new "parent's-eye-view" of UT.

FESTIVE FIDDLERS

Other future Paganini's will join young Lewis Mattison in music-making this Christmas season. Suzuki Strings students attending the University of Tampa's Saturday pre-college music program, ages three through eight, prepare for their first festival concert on December 15 at 2:00 p.m. in the Ballroom. Almost 80 children, with their parents, have completed the first term of the program at the University or at branch locations in St. Petersburg and Clearwater. A special Suzuki teacher workshop will be held in January prior to the beginning of the Spring term on January 12. Parents and teachers interested should contact the Division of Fine Arts.

History, memories and beauty are combined in the Post Room, UT's newest ethnic room. The donation was made by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Olson, long-time supporters of UT. The Olsons are shown putting the finishing touches on the room honoring Mrs. Olson's great grandfather, Hugh Fisher, postmaster in Tampa from 1850-52. The room is designed in a postal theme with the spirit and aura of the 1920-63 period; it is graced with memorabilia of old Florida and Old Tampa. Ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held on September 29, following a dinner for the UT Board of Fellows, of which Mr. Olson is a member.

from the president

UT is on the move. Your alma mater shows signs of continued growth and development. Academically, we are off to a good start in our new MBA program; we anticipate equal success with the Masters in Education program, which gets underway in January. A necessary dimension of realism has been introduced into the MBA program with a lecture series featuring key figures in the business world.

Physically, the University is taking on a new look. The fountain in front of Plant Hall now forms the basis of a cut-de-sac for vehicular traffic; there is no longer a snack bar on Plant Hall porch. Renovations have been made in the University Union dining room and River Room, and Howell and Delo Halls have been totally refurbished.

As usual, our Spartans are playing excellent football and treating fans to another outstanding season. Dennis Fryzel and his coaching staff have the ability to guide our team to another post season bowl game.

These are a few of the highlights of what is happening on campus. We hope you will have an opportunity to see it first hand and encourage you to return for Homecoming. We look forward to seeing you then.

B. D. Owens

Broadening intellectual horizons, the University of Tampa community listened to challenging ideas and commentaries from four well-known speakers this Fall. In his inimitable style, comedian Dick Gregory, on September 18, urged his audience to be active in correcting the nation's political and socioeconomic ills. On September 25, Board of Fellows MBA Lecturer John Sculley, senior vice president for Pepsi-Cola Company, outlined his company's strategy to achieve the goal of being "number one" in the soft-drink market. Speaking for the literary world on October 4, Faulkner authority James B. Meriwether commented on misconceptions about Faulkner's famed Yoknapatawpha County. The second MBA Lecturer, William S. Anderson, president of National Cash Register Company, spoke on October 9 on "Management in

A $250,000 gift has been awarded to the University of Tampa as a matching grant for the quarter-million dollar Charles A. Dana Foundation Professorship Program announced last year. The gift was made to the University by a supporter "who wishes to remain anonymous," according to UT President B. D. Owens.

In matching the grant in the record time of less than a year and doing it with a single gift, the University of Tampa accomplished something no other institution has done in the history of the Dana Foundation, according to Henry W. Littlefield, vice president of the Charles A. Dana Foundation, Inc.

The Dana professorships were established six years ago with grants to nine colleges and universities. Stress is placed on upgrading the quality of teaching, which ties in with the program's goal of enabling universities similar to UT to compete with the more wealthy and prestigious colleges in "attracting and holding faculty of outstanding ability and high scholarly attributes."

Seven Is a lucky number for the University of Tampa, with the addition of seven new faculty members this Fall. With new professors come fresh ideas and insights, which are catalytic in the growth and development of a university.

The "Muezzin" proudly presents: Dr. Martin E. Farkash, Associate Professor of Psychology and Sociology; Professor James M. Fesmire, Assistant Professor of Economics and Business; Dr. David Fredricks, Assistant Professor of Mathematics; Dr. Robert D. Henderson, Dana Professor of Economics and Business; Dr. George F. Jackson, Assistant Professor of Chemistry; Dr. Dan Smith, Associate Professor of Education; and Dr. Harry Walston, Associate Professor of Industrial Arts.

Students are now involved in administrative matters at the University of Tampa. Following a national collegiate trend, UT administration and faculty have appointed students to executive committees covering important aspects of university operations and student life. Student members are now at work on committees dealing with academic appeals, student disciplinary appeals, student aid, admissions, 4-4-1 planning, and graduate programs. This move toward student involvement strengthens the personal "family-style" atmosphere on UT's campus, and evidences the University's willingness to progress with the times.

We're off to the races again in 1973! Thanks to the Tampa Greyhound Track, World Jai-Alai, Inc., and Florida Downs and Turf Club charity performances, the University of Tampa's Academic and Athletic Scholarship funds have grown significantly. The entire net proceeds from these special performances enable the University to provide additional scholarships for qualified students.

A gratifying total of $81,809.23 was realized from these three charity performances during 1973, an increase of $22,054.53 over last year. Over the past five years $302,871.43 in gifts from these scholarship nights has accrued to the Scholarship Fund.

Robert D. Henders

Sharing the honors of being awarded University of Tampa's first Charles A. Dana Prolessorships are Dr. Curtis A. Gilgash, the University's area coordinator of psychology studies, and Dr. Robert D. Henderson, Dana Professor of Management and director of UT's new MBA program.

Dr. Gilgash is a specialist in both clinical and research psychology, and has been a University of Tampa professor since 1962. Active in the Tampa community, Gilgash helped found the DWI Counter-attack for rehabilitation of the alcoholic driver, serves on the advisory board of the Guidance Center of Hillsborough County, and on the Board of Directors of SERV (School Enrichment Resources Volunteers).

In addition to his myriad professorial duties of teaching, advising and researching, Dr. Gilgash is active in professional organizations, and is presently writing a textbook.

Dr. Henderson is equally distinguished and deserving. Coming to the University of Tampa from Bowling Green State University in Ohio, Henderson is nationally known for his work with the national Academy of Management and the National Association of Purchasing Management. UT's new MBA program is off to an energetic start, due largely to Dr. Henderson's dynamic directorship.

In his capacity as consultant, Dr. Henderson has had among his clients the Johnson Spacecraft Center in Houston, Western Electric, Boeing Company, and other domestic and international corporations. He has also advised numerous hospitals and hospital groups. It is clear to see that the two men named Dana Professors of the year at the University of Tampa will be a credit to their titles and to the school.
