

DELO HALL TO BECOME WOMEN'S DORM

By NANCY MEEHAN
Minaret Staff Writer

Eight of the 50 women eligible to live off campus this semester are taking advantage of the situation.

To live off campus, a woman must be 21 and a senior.

Also new in housing is senior girls 21 and older living on the tenth floor of Delo Hall.

"In the near future, Delo Hall will be turned into a women's dormitory," said Betty Wiley.

Dean Wiley notified all eligible girls this summer by mail that they had a choice of either living off campus or residing in Delo Hall. Thirty-one chose to live in the men's dorm.

The remainder of the 50 are still living in regular dorm facilities.

This contradicts a statement Dean Wiley gave to a Minaret reporter last June that "under no conditions would any woman, regardless of age and class standing, be allowed to live off campus."

In explaining the reason for the change in rules this semester, the dean stated, "The change is only a temporary measure because of the overcrowded dorm conditions. After this semester, women will not be allowed to live off-campus, and women currently living off-campus will be recalled."

Before women moved into Delo Hall, changes were made.

Partitions have been erected around the tenth floor elevator doors. Each girl has a key to open the partition door leading to the hall.

All rooms are doubles except for two rooms which four girls share.

One girl residing in Delo expressed feelings of displeasure when asked about the lounge and snackbar facilities.

"Many of the restrictions have developed into serious problems," she reported.

At the present time, women do not have a TV room, nor is there an area for them to use the coke and sandwich machines as they are not allowed in the men's lounge.

The women have regular curfews and room inspections and are supervised by a floor advisor.

The honor system is enforced to keep women from visiting other "non-female" floors.

"LILI AND HER PUPPETS"

Falk To Stage "Carnival"

A carnival with everything but cotton candy and sawdust will be built on the stage of the Falk Memorial Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12.

Denver's Third Eye Theatre touring company opens the musical comedy "Carnival" by setting up the poles and canvas onstage.

Part of the University's Theatre Artists Series, the production stars June Favre as Lili, the wide-eyed orphan who joins the tawdry little traveling circus because she is enchanted by its glitter and magic.

The 15 other members of the company revolve around Lili, and the charming puppets she comes to love, to the accompaniment of "Love Makes the World Go Round" and other musical numbers by Bob Merrill.

Adapted from the movie "Lili," the stage play won the New York Critics' Award and ran for two years on Broadway.

Students are admitted free. Other Theater Artists Series offerings this season will include Imogene Coca in "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" set for Monday, Nov. 4. Actually a series of four hilarious one-act plays written by Robert Anderson, the evening treats on sex in marriage from the honeymoon through retirement.

"Coffee With The President"

Coffee with the President is underway. University President David M. Delo announced plans recently for an informal coffee hour with students every Thursday.

Students will be able to ask questions and discuss the University at 11 a.m. each Thursday in the Student Center.

"It will be an informal meeting, hopefully with coffee and doughnuts," commented Dr. Delo.

If Dr. Delo is unable to attend, Dr. Harold Grutzmacher, vice president for academic affairs, will sit in for the president.

Pool Plans Postponed

By JAN COOK
Minaret Editor

Where is the swimming pool?

Dr. David M. Delo, University president, explained recently that pool construction was held up due to planning for a high-rise dormitory to be constructed on the same 25-acre plot of land as the pool.

"Until architectural plans are approved for the new dorm and we know exactly where it will be positioned on the plot, we can't begin the pool," Dr. Delo stated.

He added, however, that he expects the dorm plans to be approved in the next two weeks and pool construction will begin immediately afterward.

The plot involved is urban renewal land near Phillips Field.

The dorm set for construction this fall will house 300 men, according to Dr. Delo. It will be the first of a three-dorm complex which will eventually include a cafeteria and student lounge, servicing students.

The building of the Mark C. Kelce Library is now underway following a temporary setback caused by the freezing of funds. It is still expected, however, to be completed by September of 1969.

The University cafeteria will probably be expanded over the Christmas vacation so as to not disrupt food service. The patio will be enclosed to increase interior floor space. The interior is set for appropriate adaptation.

"None of our building projects has been abandoned," Dr. Delo explained. "They just slowed up."

The University plans to construct a minimum of four, or possibly six, new tennis courts in the vicinity of Phillips Field with construction beginning in either January or February, according to Mr. Edmund P. Sliz, Vice-President of Business Affairs at the university.

The courts will be built at an approximate cost of $4,000 per court.

Sliz also said that construction could not be started before this time because of prior commitments to local high schools for the usage of Phillips Field during the current football season.

"Peanuts And Politics" Homecoming Theme

By BOBBI O'CONNOR
Minaret Staff Writer

"Peanuts and Politics" will be the theme of Homecoming '68. The three-day affair is set for Oct. 17-19.

With little time available this year, campus fraternities, sororities and other organizations are now planning their skits, lawn displays, queen contestants and committees.

Herbert Knowlton, vice president of Student Government Association, is homecoming chairman. Assisting him are: Bobbi O'Connor, secretary; Ted Patterson, in charge of lawn displays; Anita Carbone, in charge of the Homecoming queen contest; Jeff Onore, in charge of publicity, and Doug Watson, in charge of skits and master of ceremonies.

A Hollow Victory for Women

Eight women are living off campus this semester.

This is a hollow victory at best for the women who have fought for equality at the University of Tampa.

Dean Betty Wiley has admitted that off-campus status is only a temporary luxury caused by the overcrowded women's dorms and that the eight who live off campus will be called back for good when space permits beginning second semester.

Dean Wiley has also stated that the off-campus opportunity fizzled since only eight of the 50 eligible girls are now living in apartments.

Perhaps this small number is due to several reasons.

Last year, women were told there would be no chance of their living off campus, so seniors reserved dorm rooms and made roommate arrangements.

It was not until mid-summer that they were told they could live where they chose.

Few had the time or money to come back to Tampa to hunt for apartments, which are always scarce first semester.

Several felt they could not back out on arrangements with dorm roommates who could not live off campus.

Often, with distances of hundreds of miles separating them from other senior friends, many girls were unable make necessary contacts to arrange for an off-campus roommate.

It is also unfortunate that three-year veterans of the University were more or less told to move into Delo Hall to make room for freshmen.

In Delo, their freedoms are curtailed and the seniors are separated from their friends.

The right of 21-year-old women to live in housing of their own choosing is no longer a radical assertion. But with the eventual conversion of Delo Hall into a women's dorm, hundreds more unwilling women will have to live under University supervision.

In the meantime, the University is going to the expense of building a new dorm as it digs itself into a deeper rut.

"The joys of off-campus life."

"Alfie," Dances Scheduled For Campus Coffeehouse

Thee Place, campus coffeehouse; special cafeteria dinners and committee reports were on the agenda for the first Program Council meeting last night.

Thee Place is planning to show "Alfie" in the next few weeks in addition to some "old-time" movies. Plans are being considered to hold dances in the coffeehouse.

The food service offers a special dinner each month centered on a theme chosen by students. Council members are discussing a proposed Old English dinner, an "election" dinner and other themes.

Program council committees include Dance, Fashion, Music, Public Relations, Publicity, Hospitality, Coffee House, Special Events, Art, Movie, Recreation and Personnel.

Committee members are still being sought by the council. Interested students are invited to attend Thursday night meetings at 9 p.m. upstairs in the student center.

Tampa U. Library Receives Book Funds

The University of Tampa Players have presented $100 worth of books for the new University Library in memory of Miss Holly Nisewaner.

Miss Nisewaner, who died in Tampa on March 29, 1968, was a sophomore sociology major and very active in the University Players, the dramatic club.

Miss Nisewaner portrayed the beggar lady in "House of Bernarda Alba" and was on the crew for all the other drama activities, such as ushering and serving refreshments, which earned part of the funds donated.

Heading the council this year is Larry Buvking. He is assisted by Vice President Phyllis Tellor, Treasurer Tony Vogler and Secretary Pat Gillette.

"We're reminding students now to start saving $100 for a Nassau trip this Thanksgiving," Buvking said.

The program council is also tackling a student directory to be distributed mid-October.

The directory will include students' home addresses, off campus addresses and phone numbers and dorm and university phone numbers, according to Buvking.

Also scheduled for October are a variety of films. "I Saw What You Did" is set for Oct. 13 and "Night Walker" will be shown Oct. 27. Both will be accompanied by Road Runner cartoons. The movies will be shown in the dining room.

Russian classic "War and Peace" will be screened in two parts Oct. 7-8 upstairs in the student center.

Register Your Car Or Pay $10 Fine Campus Cops Say

Have you registered your car or motorcycle? If not, did you know you were breaking a campus law?

All students must register their vehicle with the Parking Commission, Room 263. This means those entitled to Campus Parking Permits or Registration Only Permits. Failure to register your vehicle carries a $10.00 fine and possibly disciplinary action by the Personnel Deans.

Speed limit is 15 miles per hour on campus. This will be strictly enforced by the campus policemen.

Park only in areas designated for student parking.

Do not straddle parking lines. Other students want a parking space, also.

Violation ticket numbers are posted on the bulletin board at the Student Center and the bulletin board in the main lobby of Plant Hall.

Appeals must be made within five days.

Freshmen students, living in dorms, are not allowed to bring their cars or motorcycles to the Tampa area. Freshmen violating this rule are subject to suspension.

Those entitled to parking permits:

1. Students living in dorms, having 60 or more hours and "C" average.
2. Commuting students who live at least one mile from campus.
3. Those students receiving special permission from the Personnel Deans (Dean Terry or Dean Wiley).
4. Handicapped students.

Those not entitled to parking permits but must register their vehicles:

1. Those students that have had their parking privileges taken away permanently.
2. Students living in a fraternity house.

Further rules and regulations can be found in the student hand book.

SGA President Challenges Students

Dear Fellow Students:

On registering for the fall semester you became a member of the Student Government Association (SGA) of this University. Just being a member is not enough. The SGA needs your hard work and support in order to function effectively.

More important it serves as the instrument through which you express your ideas and opinions on student and University policies to the administration. Our Student Government Office and House of Representatives meetings are open to all students.

I challenge you to be come involved and make this year outstanding for Student Government.

ART DEPARTMENT FINDS NEW HOME, ADDS MORE COURSES

New art department renovation is nearing completion under the watchful and concerned eye of department chairman Wally Green.

"With the new building, we'll be able to offer much more to art majors and other students," Green reported. "And our private offices will be much better for individual counseling."

Offices are located on the ground floor as is the print shop which now offers three-quarters more space than the old print-making facilities.

All classes are being held in the new building this semester except the three-dimensional courses such as sculpture and ceramics which will meet in the new department next spring.

Upstairs rooms are largely wood-paneled with provisions for hanging and displaying student work. Green hopes to create a gallery-lounge area for students on the second floor.

An audio-visual room where films will be shown will be used by the art history classes.

Three drawing classes are now being held in the drawing studio which opens onto the painting studio.

"Eventually we plan to hang 100 15-inch lockers on the porch," Green said. "They will be used for storage by art majors."

An expanded art curriculum will be developed for the expanded facilities. A Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program gets underway during the 1969-70 academic year.

Painter and printmaker Lewis Harris has been added to the art department faculty to take over Marie Freckleton's classes. Harris received his BFA from the University of Illinois and his Master of Fine Arts from the University of Florida.

PEP RALLY GREET'S VICTORIOUS TEAM

Hundreds of enthusiastic students welcomed home the victorious Spartan football team at Tampa Airport and Plant Hall last Sunday night. The 18-7 defeat of the favored University of California at Santa Barbara sent the excitement of school spirit through the campus.

The Year Of The Clump And The Drab

A combination of tweeds and checks adds up to a smart campus look.

A campus wardrobe has a lot to live up to. A coed embarking on her first year of college wants to look beautiful and desirable in permanent press, machine washable, non-fade, pre-shrunk, well-fitting, glamorous, whimsical, inexpensive clothes.

Good luck.

Fashion and fads persist, however, and for the fashionable, this is the year of the clump and the drab.

Popular colors range from brown to gray and black. Shoes are clumpy with thick soles and heels and blunt or squared-off toes.

Slouchy Garbo hats and berets will perch on many a coed's head, usually coordinating with the entire outfit.

Accessories play a major role in the total collegiate look. Important this year are dark-hued hose, big leather purses and scarves at every neck.

As anyone remotely connected with the commercial world knows, this is the year for leather. It doesn't even have to be a real leather. Fake leather promises to be just as hot and sticky as the real stuff.

Tweed has been a traditional campus standby, and its popularity continues this season in tweedy suits and pant suits.

This is also the year a girl can look like anyone from any era.

A coed closet might contain the fur-trimmed coat of a Russian czarina, a Bonnie Parker midi skirt, the beads of a 1920's flapper and the fringed buckskin vest of an Indian.

A girl can look like a boy in plaid knickers and wide tie, or a soldier in nail-studded World War I fighter pilot coats.

She can match her man turtleneck for turtleneck and bead for bead from Nehru jacket to bell bottoms.

Or she can surround herself with feminine ruffles, pleats and bows.

With fashion extending to such a variety of "looks," it would be hard NOT to be fashionable in 1968.

Dress Rules Eased

Women's dress rules have been revised according to the new student handbook.

Acceptable after-dinner clothing now includes T-shirts, sweatshirts and blue jeans which are not "ragged or unclean." Sandals without backstraps are now allowed on campus.

Skirts should be of "reasonable length," the handbook states.

Men's hair should also be a "reasonable length."

The handbook gives as an explanation for the dress rules, "The University of Tampa is a downtown school in a conservative community. Students are constantly on display."

Try-outs Open To All

Tryouts for "Oedipus Rex," the Grecian tragedy, will be continued tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Falk Theatre.

Vincent Petti, director of the theatre, has extended an invitation to University students and faculty members to audition for roles.

The tragedy, which will launch the drama department's series of plays this season, will be presented from Oct. 30-Nov. 2 at Falk Theatre.

AKRON NEXT SPARTAN VICTIM

By ED PAGE
Associate Editor

The University of Tampa Spartans will test the highly regarded Akron Zips tomorrow night when they meet head-on at Tampa Stadium at 8:00 P.M. The Spartans, flying high after a 18-7 decision over a tough University of California at Santa Barbara team, will be after the rubber match of a three game series with the Zips.

The two teams have a 1-1 record against each other as a result of the last two years when in 1966 the Spartans defeated the Zips 20-12 and last year when the Spartans came out on the tail end of a rugged defensive battle, bowing 6-0.

The Spartans can expect a formidable foe tomorrow night as the Zips bring a 1-0 record into tomorrow night's game after trouncing Butler 32-7. However, the Spartans proved their worth last weekend on the Gold Coast by slipping by the Santa Barbara Gauchos when they were regarded by as much as a 29-point underdog by several national rating services. From this indication, it might very well be the year of the Spartans, not the Florida Gators.

Tampa fans will see a "new" Spartan look as the Spartan eleven opens their 1968 home-stand tomorrow night. Against the Gauchos last Saturday night, Fran Curci's crew showed a strong running attack, a running attack which the Spartans have needed sorely for the past few seasons.

Leon McQuay, a 195 lb. freshman halfback from Tampa, and 210 lb. Wichita State transfer Monk Coleman, led the Spartans rushing attack as they sliced through the Gauchos defensive line time after time for important yardage. Coleman also caught two touchdown passes for the Roughriders of 13 yards and 8 yards. Jim Del Gaizo, southpaw quarterback for the Spartans, also was a bright spot on the Spartans offensive unit as he passed for two touchdown passes and ran for a third TD himself.

The defensive unit, led by Co-captain Ron Brown, did a tremendous job against Santa Barbara as they limited the Gauchos to one touchdown, that coming after an intercepted Spartan pass was returned deep in Spartan territory.

One point of interest concerning the contest tomorrow night is the Dunkel Index, a national rating service which rates each team at the beginning of the season by a computerized point system, which as of two weeks ago picked the Zips as a 10 point favorite over the Spartans. However, they also picked the Gauchos as a 29 point favorite over the Spartans. The question is, Can the Spartans again disprove the pre-season predictors? Looking at the Spartans '68 team, it's highly likely so.

Football Opens Intramural Season

A total of 21 sports activities will comprise the Intramural Sports Program for 1968-69 which will be conducted by Intramural Director David Hayes. This wide variety of activities encourages a great many students to participate in the Intramural Program every year.

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, overall winner of the IM program last year, will be hard pressed to repeat its performance this year because of the tremendous competition between the fraternities and the dormitory teams in the program.

Two years ago the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity won the overall IM award, with the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity winning it the year before them.

Last year four fraternities,

Pi Kappa Phi, Tau Epsilon Phi, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Sigma Phi Epsilon, were neck-and-neck up to the very end when the Pi Kappas finally pulled the victory out of the fire. We can probably expect the same type of finish this year.

For all the new students at the university, the Intramural Program works on a point system by which each organization accumulates so many points throughout the year. The three major team sports, baseball, basketball, and football, are worth 60 points for a first place, 48 for second, 38 for third, and so on.

The minor sports are worth either 40 points or 30 points for a first place win, depending upon the sport, and then a lesser number of points for second, third, and even points for entering the contest.

The intramural program gets its kickoff this year in about a week when Tau Epsilon Phi will try to defend its flag football championship, and Sig Ep "Smokey" Burges fights to retain his fencing crown.

Burgess won three matches last year to gain his title.

Aside from football and fencing, there are 19 other intramural sports, according to Hayes. They are: archery, badminton, bait casting, basketball, billiards, bowling, foul shooting, golf, handball, horseshoes, softball, swimming, paddle tennis, table tennis, tennis, track, tug-of-war, volleyball, and wrestling.
