Each individual likes to place forward his own initiative, which according to our sociologists and psychologists is quite a natural reaction. Since there has been a "democratization" in our form of government, it is only natural that this has spread to the constituents of our school and national programs.

Student government is an asset to any school. It brings about a spirit of cooperation, loyalty, democracy and helpfulness which is essential. It brings about an integration of all problems so that the student may meet and solve them in a manner which is beneficial to him in his future life. The problems which arise are given a solution by the students themselves through a supervised council. The solutions are the opinions not of an ego-centric group but one of a socio-centric aspect.

When the graduate goes out into life he meets the problems of life. Therefore there is no better way than to teach him the fundamentals of government and politics within the walls of our schools. The questions and problems which continually arise in school are the basis of those which arise in life—hence self-government should be emphasized. It builds good character along the lines of education and moral relationships which should be closely observed.

Through the facilities and aid of the student government (the incoming student) is helped and injected into his new environment. The various officers which make up such a body adjust the new student to the numerous new problems that arise and the many different phases of an integrated college life. It acquaints him with the buildings, the traditions, its rules and regulations, his studies, his new friends and his new social relationships. It acts as a transfer from one cycle of life to another. It orientates him so that he can take his right place among his fellow men and meet firmly the problems which are to confront him daily. It is a socio-centric agency which leads to his betterment.

One of the best organizations which is often fostered by the student government of our larger universities is the Y. M. C. A. Being a member of one has taught me the value of that institution in relation to campus life. When a young person leaves home and is injected into this new phase of life he needs some one to act as a sponsor and guide for him. By promoting a program of clean, healthful sports, work and instruction it creates an interest and respect for the qualities of each other. The moral side is also stressed. Introduction and aid are given the student in the religion of his calling, and every effort is made to teach him to respect all religion and better himself through his own affiliations.

The student council, as already stated, is a democratic body. It is open at all times for criticism, advice, counsel and suggestions. It is made up of representative students who have a thorough understanding of the problems of the entire student body. It tries, in a justifiable way, to aid and correct faults in student life. It is always ready to assist in any program which will bring about greater harmony, contentment and security of mind in the student.

The Council also acts as a social and cultural guide. Dances, teas, smokers and other informal gatherings are on its program. Lectures, plays and other entertainments are also fostered. All these things make the student happy in his adopted new life. Student government is a factor which is a great aid to the educational value in that it promotes rewards for endeavors in some particular line and encourages the student rather than denouncing him. It is a factor which good government, good citizenship and society demands.

—PAUL W. SMITH.

MUSEUM MUSES

By LEO REHBINDER, JR.

The question has been asked "Why is the crescent moon and star so prominent on this building?"

The moon and star symbol was adopted by the Mohammedans in 1453 when Mohammed II captured Constantinople. Originally it was the symbol of Diana, the patroness of Byzantium, and had for many years been the special emblem of Constantinople. The symbol originated at the time of the siege of Constantinople by the father of Alexander the Great, when a night attempt of the besiegers to undermine the walls of the city was betrayed by the light of a crescent moon. In gratitude for their escape the Byzantines raised a statue to Diana and made her badge the symbol of the city. For eleven centuries, during which time Christianity was the state religion in Constantinople, the Cross and the Crescent ruled side by side, the Crescent not yet having attained its present religious significance.

There are 13 of these crescents on the building, representing the 13 lunar months.

This building was copied from examples of Moorish architecture in Spain.

A PERSONAL PROGRAM:

- (1) A championship University debating team.
- (2) A University of Tampa Yearbook.
- (3) Clean, dignified, educational University publicity.

It is customary for writers in our capacity to make especially interested in supporting. Your columnist's efforts shall be directed towards the realization of three:

- (1) A debating team, which, in creating publicity, shall be second in importance to our football team.
- (2) Clean, dignified, educational University publicity. Such a program can be made possible by having different University professors give occasional radio broadcasts on a subject within their respective and particular fields; by sending student speakers on a "good-will" tour to the high schools of the city and county; and by having the University offer prizes, scholarships, and awards to high school students for various competitions, such as essay-writing contests, scholastic and athletic achievement.

- (3) A University Annual. We shall spare no effort in working toward the editing of the first University Yearbook. We do not doubt the realization of this third project—our Senior Class President already having made his election promise good by presenting elaborate plans before the Student Council, for the editing of such a book.

ST. PETER'LL SHO TURN 'EM DOWN!

To our knowledge there are but two things which St. Peter, as Keeper of the Golden Gates, will not tolerate. One is a sinner; the other—a University prof who habitually keeps his students in the classroom overtime. Won't you please pass this hint to them? And remind them that there's only one place we know of, where our students don't mind remaining overtime—and that's on the dance floor of the U ballroom when a dance is scheduled to end at midnight.

I'm ignorant I am—but sometimes I wonder if, after it's all said and done, a college education to many of us is little more than an unrestrained scramble to obtain the maximum number of college credit hours with the minimum sacrifice possible. I may be wrong—but sometimes I wonder.

PLEASE! PLEASE, LADY! WE MAY BE SMALL —BUT REDUCE US NOT TO INSIGNIFICANCE!

On the morning of Thursday, October 10th, a high-powered car rolled to a stop opposite the Superintendent of Parks buildings, at the entrance to our campus. The car bore a Toronto, Canada, license plate. The chauffeur was seen to open a door of the car, and a middle-aged woman alighted and walked over to the 12x10-foot office.

"Is this the little University of Tampa?" she inquired of the person at the desk.

"No, M'am," was the courteous reply, "it's the slightly larger building just north of this one."

('Tis true we're small, lady, but reduce us not to absurdity!)

NOTE: Each member of the Freshman Class is reminded to turn in to the care of this column, the following information: Hobby, ambition, high school from which graduated, and any exceptional ability possessed. Several of these names shall be introduced each week in this column, names to be used in the order in which they are turned in. Address to this column and leave either in compartment "G" in the lobby, or in The Minaret office.

VARIETY

Everybody enjoyed the Rollins game (cept there wasn't any dance) and Tampa made a good showing. We're ready for a good time at the Cumberland U. game now. This is our second home game and we're all ready for a big time both during and after the game.

The double feature at the Park Theater Saturday, Sunday and Monday is "The Goose and the Gander," with Kay Francis and "Charlie Chan in Shanghai," with Warner Oland playing his usual role as "Chan."

The two students whose names were drawn this week and who will receive a free pass to the Park Theater are Margaret Diaz and Verna West. Call for them at the book store.

While taking the usual reporter's route I find that many of our students have hobbies as a past time. Ernestine Spain, who we fear is a movie-idol worshipper (what girl isn't), has a crush on Franchot Tone and has volumes of her favorite actor's photographs. Virginia Morrow, who was afraid to admit this on account of coach, collects football players; that is, football players' signatures. Anne Way Peebles has a desire for elephants (jus' miniatures) and so she has shelves full. Alice S. A. Wilson collects silverware. (That's a warning to the restaurateurs.) Betty Jo Mims collects autographs of famous people, among her collections are: Rudy Vallee, Joan Bennett, Max Baer, Jack Dempsey, Alice Faye, and others.

Phyllis Robbins writes songs and has had two copyrighted. Mary Ann Sampey collects theater ticket stubs and has one from the Metropolitan Opera house. Mildred Allison frankly admits that her hobby is eating Dorothy Bradley collects snakes and during the summer she lassoed a six-foot rattler, some sport, eh? John Briley, another reptile collector, collects worms; and the worms collect money for John, 'cause he sells them for fishing bait. John Smiley collects bricks for sidewalks. Rudy Rodriguez collects freshman paddles. Ray Newell has a habit of collecting scrap iron. Johnny Edison plays checkers for a past time. Walter Hoy performs feats of strength. (So they say.) Bill Logan spends a large part of his time with boats. Orris Beynon's hobby is hunting deer (or possibly dears). Dick Spoto's present hobby is collecting rat caps.

Hampton Dunn, our new editor of the Minaret, has got things going pretty smooth now. You should meet Hampton, he's a swell guy. He is from Floral City and has had lots of newspaper experience.

Here are four questions. I'll give you one guess each. Score yourself 25 percent each right answer: What local fraternity president has the biggest dimples in Tampa U.? Who is the freshman heart-breaker? What handsome hard boiled man has been a star of all football games this season? What girl told another girl to lay off her boy friend; the boy friend is six feet tall and has blue eyes? You guessed it.

OUT OF THE NIGHT

'Twas midnight on the ocean
Not a street car was in sight
The sun was shining brightly
And it rained all day that night.
In an empty crowded courtroom
Sat a young man well in years
On his face he wore a smile
And in his eyes were tears.

I guess this is the way Doc was thinking after he'd seen some of Tampa's nurses. Can't blame him... The sweetheart of the hospital is back with us and is transferring his attentions to the T. U. co-eds... especially one co-ed freshette... Watch your gals, boys, that pale and wan look will get 'em every time... Doc is looking well and seems to be doing well... All the girls are taking good care of him—and are seeing who can make the most time in the quickest manner... Must be great to be an invalid...

All the football boys had a pretty good time in Miami, Newberry and Orlando... from all reports... Nice girls, these co-eds! One little gal was very upset because a certain person didn't go down and ruined many a dance asking about him. Tough luck for all concerned... Three cheers for the two Young brothers who were a reception committee by themselves... they were really good... so much for Miami.

As for Orlando, millions went up and did they ever enjoy "the game"... It was worth a trip of a thousand miles to say nothing of a mere hundred... Everyone who didn't go is sorry and everyone who did is still sleepy...

Complaints have been about one freshman boy who is outstanding in several organizations... What he evidently needs is an inferiority complex but I guess they don't make 'em in his size... The girls are evidently sore about his... elusiveness...

The following week should be full of social activities... what with Armistice and Home-coming coming off... There will be an Armistice tea-dance from 6-9 by the decays... Then Home-coming will be a continuous round of "go"... (we hope)... And in the daze between the two "big daze" there will be several priv-parties... So, here's hoping for a big week...

The S. K. N. and S. T. P. Masquerade dances were swell... More cute costumes and even more fun... There was one great fall at the S. T. P. dance by a pledge Mary Earle Berry who fell and stayed fallen... Mr. MacCurdie worried about the floor but it upheld its traditions... for which more people than Mary Earle were thankful.

Many University co-eds dashed up to Gainesville for their Home-coming and really had a swell time and others not so swell... some are planning on going up later... They always come back but they still remember those small attentions that the Florida U. boys are so good at... so on your toes, boys...

We haven't heard anything about Sibyl Cate pulling any of those hijinx she was so famous for last year... Well?

It seems that Earl Hatcher whose name has recently been changed to Richard went up to Pensacola in the year 1934 and came back with the name "Strangler"... What's it all about, Richard, and what does Mary say about it? Or is the funeral tomorrow at 2?

Dr. Bode remarked to Buford Lindsay in class the other day: "Well when you stop making a fool of yourself, then I'll start"... What we want to know is, Did He?

Though love is a little thing, that's what makes the world go round... or so we hear... And it is being whispered about that Freshette Virginia Morrow has three runs in mind... Watch out, football boys, there may be an out, if you get what I mean... What happened to that note you sent to Miami, Va., couldn't the first one bear to part with it, and why send one to three, that's what you get for trying to conserve energy.

Billy Hand says, "Everything's been done before so why not Physics?"

Elizabeth Slaughter after dogging the Freshettes, has evidently decided to vamp one of the Plant boys but you never can tell...

I suppose that with the aid of those clothespins that were given out at the S. T. P. dance, each sweet young thing could "hold her man"... Try anyway...

So long until next week, and stay away from key-holes.

UNIVERSITY YACHT CLUB

All those interested in ships and the sea, whether members of the Yacht Club or not, are invited to attend the open meeting to be held at the University Wednesday, Nov. 13th, at 8:30 p. m. Captain Hudgins, local manager of the Bull Steamship Line, and an expert on local conditions, will talk on "The Gulf Stream."

SPARTAN FIELD

By MANUEL RAMIREZ

Exactly one year ago today, an undefeated Panther of Birmingham-Southern invaded the camp of the University of Tampa's alert Spartans for its Armistice day classic at Plant Field. Only those witnesses of that tenaciously fought contest can recall the bitter encounter which resulted. Very few fans, if any, expected to see a close tilt between the infant University of Tampa football machine and the highly touted Panthers from Birmingham. Yet that 14-13 gridiron epic will long remain in the football annals of the South!

Today, an almost similar condition exists. This time, however, the Spartans will be struggling bitterly to keep that slate clean of defeats while Cumberland University, presenting an aggregation which resembles the fast charging Panthers of a year ago, will attempt to batter the ground gaining Spartans into submission. The visiting backs have riddled opposing lines for 119 points while the Maroon and White forward wall has held enemy backs to the low score of 52 points in six affairs.

Among the victims of the Cumberland eleven are Hiwassee, Appalachian State and Maryville college. The Cumberland University Bulldogs also annexed the Smoky Mountain Conference Championship by defeating Carson-Newman 20-0. Vanderbilt, contender for the Southern Conference title, is the only team to mar the splendid Cumberland record. The University of Tampa's high-flying Spartans, on the other hand, have hurdled such obstacles as South Georgia State Teachers' College, Miami University, Newberry and Rollins. To date the local boys have scored 63 points to their enemies' 20.

Perhaps Nov. 11 was designated as the date for all hostilities to cease 17 years ago, but to the Spartans that day has been set aside in which to take up the war-cry on the gridiron. Today's encounter promises to be one of the best on the 1935 Spartan football menu. Cumberland University, an institution in Lebanon, Tennessee, will bring a formidable line that equals that of the rushing University of Tampa linemen. Little or no information is available concerning the offensive powers of the visiting backs, but the fact that they have scored against Vanderbilt makes the situation a little doubtful. In Lindsey Donnell, quarterback, the Bulldogs have one of the most elusive running backs in that section of the country. Halfbacks Loomis and Lindsey, team with Donnell to form a high-scoring backfield.

The Spartans will be playing today, not only to keep their record spotless, but also to attain national recognition. Will the Spartans again rise to the ranks of the mighty with another heart-stopping rally such as was displayed a year ago today?

Lest we forget, the mad Hatters from Stetson will battle the University of Tampa Spartans here next Friday night for the championship of the "Little Entente" in Florida. It will be the Home-coming game for the Spartans and a large turn-out is expected.

College Definitions and Opinions
Dormitory: Where students with insomnia catch up on sleep lost in classrooms.

Professor: Instructor with enough letters after his name to be a government agency.

Football game: Trying to break 100 for the other team.

Traditions: Petrified monkey-shines.

Culture: Pronouncing bath bawth without laughing.

Library: Where they keep the Saturday Evening Post.

Freshmen: Good when bear-killing grows tiresome.

Statues: Excellent hat-racks.

Latin: They say the Romans understood it.

Course of study: Only three cuts allowed per hour.

Student government: Laissez-faire in the strictest sense of the word.

Assembly: Very good if you sit where the speaker can't disturb the conversation.

School song: No official words. Somebody knew them, but he died.

English course: Extremely difficult for American-speaking students.

Home: That's where the checks come from.

Safe driving: When turning a corner the brakes shouldn't squeak at a higher pitch than a contralto.

HOMECOMING IS NEXT FEATURE AT UNIVERSITY

Alumni Association in Charge of Events

The outstanding event approaching on the University's calendar is its first homecoming day, Nov. 15, which has been changed from Nov. 16. On that date, Friday night, the Spartans meet the Stetson Hatters in one of the championship contests that will be watched with interest throughout the state.

The homecoming is being arranged by the newly-formed alumni association, of which Miller Adams is president. The outstanding "get-together" event of the celebration will be a senior-alumni banquet at the Crescent Grill, at which the first Spartan team, Walter Burrell, first Spartan coach, and George B. Howell, a director and football enthusiast, will be honor guests.

Speakers will be F. H. Spaulding, president of the university; Coach Nash Higgins and others.

The annual tug o' war between the freshmen and the upperclassmen will be held between the halves of the football game. After the game, the first annual alumni dance will be held in the university ball room, with the Spartans and the Hatters as guests.

University students will hold a pep meeting around a bonfire the night before the game, followed by a freshman pajama parade.

Things I Never Knew Till I Asked

From "Pioneer," Brooklyn College: That the secret of success in writing is hitting the right keys on the typewriter.

That if college students said what they thought they'd be speechless.

That polls are places where you stand in line to decide who'll spend your money.

That it's a bad sign when crossing a track to see a train coming.

That fifty percent of the married people in the United States are women.

That the way of the transgressor is hard to find out.

SPARTANETTE

By DOT TALBOT

At a meeting Tuesday morning the women of the University took the first step in organizing an athletic association. A nominating committee was appointed with Miss Jeanie Trice as chairman. Those selected to serve on the committee are Miss Louise Taylor, representing the freshman class; Miss Edna Johnson, the Junior class; and Miss Virginia Roberts, the senior class. Officers of the club will be elected at the next meeting which is to be held at 11:30 Tuesday, Nov. 12th.

The purpose of this organization is to stimulate interest in a program of the wholesome physical activities, to promote athletic accomplishment, and to contribute to the development of the ideals of health and sportsmanship.

Some of the objectives of the organization are to play the game for the game's sake, to revive interest in sports through the participation of the faculty and students, and to build up mass participation.

The association will sponsor many types of physical activities including major and minor sports and associated games, tap and clog dancing.

Individual medals and team trophies will be presented to winning teams and outstanding athletes.

VOLLEYBALL

The Sloops of the Jackson Playground let out all their sails Friday night and sailed to victory over the Spartanette "B" squad of the university.

The scores, 15-9 and 15-5, were quite deceiving because both games were highly contested and well played by both teams.

Virginia Morrow, Frances MacNamara, Dolly Quinn and Elanor Saxon were outstanding in their field, but Mary Eve took top honors for her brilliant and consistent playing.
