Vol. 42 No. 5

The "Muezzin" is published six times a year by the University of Tampa, 401 West Kennedy Boulevard, Tampa, Florida 33606, with one issue in November, one in January, one in February, one in May one in July and one in August. Second class postage paid at Tampa, Florida.

Notice of address change should be directed to the University of Tampa Alumni Office, Room 344, Plant Hall. Our name "The Muezzin" originated in the religion of Islam founded by the prophet Mohammed in the early centuries after Christ and practiced primarily in middle eastern countries. The muezzin is the official who proclaims the azan (call to public worship) to which the Muslims respond with set phrases. The summoning is performed by the voice of the muezzin as he stands at the door or at the side of a small mosque (temple) or in the minaret of a large one. Today the muezzin still sounds the call to worship, but in some modernized mosques his voice is placed upon electronic recordings which are amplified to echo the azan throughout the countryside. The University of Tampa "Muezzin" publication performs a similar function in that it broadcasts the call for higher education among its readers. The name was inspired by Plant Hall's 13 Moorish style minarets, gleaming above trees and buildings as a landmark of learning in the heart of the city of Tampa.

"The Private University in the Seventies — Failure or Fulfillment," was the challenge that brought some of the nation's most brilliant and distinguished leaders to the University of Tampa campus for the October 6 inauguration of President B. D. Owens.

Where Are We Going—

An Academic Question

By Dr. Michael Mendelsohn
Vice President for Academic Affairs

When Dr. B. D. Owens took over the leadership of the University of Tampa in 1971, he determined to work toward one basic goal. His objective is to make the University of Tampa into one of the finest liberal arts-oriented colleges in the nation. In accepting his offer to join his administration as academic vice president, I also accepted the challenge that the "Landmark of Learning" goal represents. And of course I accept the basic premise that it is a reachable goal.

The educational process is a circular one, involving students, faculty, and curriculum. When a college is determined to upgrade in any one of these areas, it becomes necessary to upgrade in all three. This is a slow, evolutionary and sometimes painful matter; it can never be accomplished overnight, even in a university with virtually unlimited resources, such as the one I came from. But it is a realistic task and one that this University has already embarked upon.

A school of this size can accomplish certain objectives. We cannot provide a graduate school library, in the manner of, say, Harvard or a large state university. Nor can we hope to match the enormous laboratory resources of such colleges. At the same time I think that a small private college can do certain things better. One of the most significant goals for a private college is its individual attention to the full development of each student.

If we merely teach adequate courses adequately, we are not really doing our job. A student comes here—and spends a relatively large amount of money to do so—because he hopes to receive a better education than he can find at a big college, or because he hopes to be able to identify more closely with the campus life in all its forms. He wishes to be treated as an individual, not as a social security number. Furthermore, he expects instruction—and receives it—from full-time faculty members, not from graduate students. While some of our classes have grown too large, most of them still permit the kind of individual attention that hastens the full educational development of our students.

Moreover, when discussing the University of Tampa, we should not overlook the distinct advantages of living in a major metropolitan area. While we are detached from the downtown area of Tampa by a river with a few bridges, I am impressed by the way in which this campus is well integrated into the community life of this urban setting as well as by the way in which the community supports the University. The advantages to our students are numerous. They derive in part from the full spectrum of music, drama, and art, and other activities that a large city is able to offer. They derive further from the work opportunities that our students enjoy in this region.

I have been able to observe many signs of progress in all areas of this University since I first looked into coming to Tampa. There is an obvious facelift going on not only in Plant Hall, but in all parts of the University. More important, there is a renewed feeling of pride and vigor in every facet of university life.

Clearly, this is a school on its way up. Our accomplishments during the next decade will be significant. In spite of the present nationwide problems in funding private higher education, we are in a tremendous position to accomplish our objective of growth with accompanying excellence. The curriculum is gaining strength. Faculty additions over the past few years have materially aided our thrust toward excellence in all subjects. I would like to see the day come when more and more students from all over the country seek to come to the University of Tampa, putting us in the pleasant position of being ever more selective about our student admissions. I believe that day is not far off.

Introducing...

Dr. Michael Mendelsohn

Dr. Michael Mendelsohn, the new vice president for academic affairs, is a veteran of both the English classroom and the United States Air Force.

A subtle man, Mendelsohn stands as the prime example of the gentleman Air Force officer. Although strong in the knowledge of national defense, his background and involvement in modern drama and contemporary literature add an air of polished sensitivity.

In a time when personal worth is too often ignored Dr. Mendelsohn reflects true concern for students and the University.

"I am a professor of English, have experience in administration with a little talent in that direction, and I have an interest in higher education. I like the challenging job," he explains.

And challenging it is, for the vice president for academic affairs not only must seek solutions to curricular and faculty problems but also must give constant attention to the educational needs of the individual student.

Dr. Mendelsohn's versatile personality is suggested by some contrasting pastimes — reading, swimming and listening to records (Mozart for many years, Carole King more recently under the influence of his children). The reading he does anywhere, the swimming in a small backyard pool. Not surprisingly, he is also an avid playgoer. He and his wife enjoyed London's theatres much more than New York's on a trip a couple of years ago ("Sir Laurence Olivier in Merchant of Venice for only two dollars a ticket," he recalls).

He came to the University of Tampa from the United States Air Force Academy where he had served as a faculty member since 1958, "teaching Catch-22 to Air Force cadets," he says. He received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1951 and his master of arts from Trinity University, San Antonio, in 1954. His Ph.D. in English literature was earned at the University of Colorado in 1962 through an Air Force-sponsored program.

Dr. Mendelsohn's range of experience includes faculty personnel management, advising students on the Rhodes Scholarship program and on graduate school opportunities, liaison work with other colleges and consulting for various international organizations. He was the first man selected from the military by the American Council of Education to serve one year at Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a post doctoral intern in the academic administration program. At MIT he was administrative assistant to the vice president.

He has written some 12 articles on modern drama (principally on Shaw and Ibsen) and has authored the book Clifford Odets: Humane Dramatist, a look at the social dramatist of the 1930's. He is on the editorial board of The Shaw Review.

Dr. Mendelsohn and his wife, Tiba, have two daughters, Lynn, 11, and Lori, 8. He says he pushes his kids pretty hard with their school work and devotes a lot of his spare time to their education.

When asked his impression of the University's so-called conservative campus, Dr. Mendelsohn replied, "I don't find the University terribly conservative; this is a progressive campus. I don't see any great inhibition in the way students think or dress. This place has a dynamic potential for growth and has a good young vigorous faculty."

Dr. Michael Mendelsohn is indeed a man of the future.

Quarter Million from Dana

Bucking the trend of private college failures, the University of Tampa has been awarded a $250,000 challenge gift from the Charles A. Dana Foundation.

Operating steadily in the black as recipient of foundation and community support, Tampa has never before received a gift of this magnitude from an education foundation of the Dana stature.

Founded in 1950 in Connecticut by Charles A. Dana, philanthropist, attorney and business executive, the Greenwich, Connecticut-based foundation has supported the cause of higher education for more than two decades.

Terms of the gift call for the University to raise a matching $250,000 in the next three years. University of Tampa President B. D. Owens expressed confidence the University would be able to meet that commitment.

The grant permits the University to establish and support a Dana Supported Professorship Program. Four Dana Professors will be subsidized with money generated from the overall half-million dollar Dana fund.

According to President Owens, the Dana professors will receive an amount in excess of the base salary now paid full professors at the University.

Dr. Owens said the University will receive the $250,000 before the end of the year. A special selections committee will be established to make recommendations for appointment of the first Dana professors beginning with the 1973 fall semester.

The Charles A. Dana professorships were established six years ago with grants to nine colleges and universities. Professors appointed under the program must be teaching rather than administrative. The University of Tampa is one of three institutions granted professorships this year. In all, 21 are included in the Supported Professorship Program.

The steady, conservative policies of now Chancellor David M. Delo — who made the initial contact with the Dana Foundation — during his 13 years as UT president placed the University at the level where it could qualify for Dana assistance.

And the "new-look" given the University by President Owens, a young, dynamic administrator scheduled to be inaugurated president on October 6, convinced the Dana Foundation the University of Tampa is a good investment.

President Owens said he regards the Dana grant as "a stamp of approval for the University of Tampa as a quality educational institution. I have to feel this support by the Dana Foundation is going to encourage other major foundations to look in our direction. "Since its inception, the University of Tampa's minarets have been regional 'Landmarks of Learning'. Now we are looking forward to their emergence as national 'Landmarks of Learning'," Dr. Owens said.

Dual Degrees from UT and Georgia Tech

Georgia Institute of Technology has joined the University of Tampa in an unprecedented cooperative move which will enable a student to earn degrees from both institutions in a total of five years.

Besides saving a year's time for the engineering student the dual degree program could solve the dilemma of the student who is uncertain at the time he enters college whether he wants a liberal arts or an engineering degree. Also, it could prove invaluable to the beginning engineer who finds that his best job offer requires a liberal arts background as well as an engineering degree.

In this program the undergraduate student will attend the University of Tampa for approximately three years and Georgia Tech for approximately two years. After completing academic requirements of the two schools, the student will be awarded a bachelor's degree from Tampa and a bachelor's or master's degree (depending on the phase of the program in which he participates) from Georgia Tech.

Coast-To-Coast Coverage

The University of Tampa is getting a nationwide ride this fall in National Cash Register's computer advertising campaign scheduled for major news magazines: Business Week, Newsweek, Time and U.S. News & World Report.

Featuring UT's band and a drum with "NCR Means Computers" on the face, the two-page color ad shows the University's famed minarets in the background. The headline reads: "An NCR computer helps the University of Tampa speed its forward march!" The University uses an NCR computer.

The ad will run in Business Week October 7 and November 25, in Newsweek November 27, in Time November 6 and U.S. News & World Report on November 13. Total circulation is 6,270,000, with an estimated readership of 31,461,200.

Faculty Grows

Five new faculty members with widely varying areas of expertise and two new librarians have joined the University of Tampa this fall.

Dr. Steve Meats, who has taught English at the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado since 1968, is continuing his career in the same field here. Dr. Meats earned his Ph D at the University of South Carolina.

Dr. Gerald Hartzog is teaching business and economics at UT, having received his Ph D from the University of Alabama in 1970. Last year he taught at North Carolina State University at Fort Bragg.

The feminine viewpoint has been introduced into UT's history program with the addition of Constance Rynder, who expects to have her Ph D degree in British history from the University of Nebraska this winter.

The popular marine biology program grows with the addition of Dr. Wayne Smith, who received his Ph D in aquatic biology from Michigan State University at East Lansing this year. He had been a graduate research assistant in the Fisheries and Wild Life Department of Michigan State since September, 1970.

Judith Edberg, who spent a highly successful first season as a piano instructor in the University's new pre-college music program, is now officially a member of the music faculty. She holds the Master of Music degree from Wayne State University.

All new faculty members are assistant professors excepting Miss Edberg who is an instructor.

Librarians who recently have accepted positions at Merl Kelce are Diane Jolly and Marilyn Smith.

Augmenting the strength of the UT faculty are four veteran members who have received doctorates during the past year. They are Dr. Joan Burr, psychology; Dr. Alice Rodriguez, physical education; Dr. Jack Lohman, English, and Dr. Herman Saatkamp, humanities. All are assistant professors.

New Counselors

Fifteen outstanding business and professional leaders in the Tampa area have been elected University of Tampa Counselors, according to an announcement by Fred T. Learey, chairman of the University's Board of Trustees.

Counselors, who number about 70, assist the University of Tampa in many ways, ranging from serving on standing committees of the Board of Trustees to providing leadership and operational force in the annual Forward Fund, which provides essential unrestricted funds to help the University maintain fiscal stability.

New Counselors, who will serve until June 30, 1975, are: Talbot C. Boudreau, Maas Brothers senior vice-president and director of stores; Robert C.

Bradley, president of Bradley, Young and Bywater Properties; J. David Cowart, account-executive with Laird, Bissell and Mead, Inc.; W. Hampton Copeland Jr., realtor-appraiser with W. H. Copeland and Sons, Inc.

Others are: John W. McWhirter Jr., attorney with Cason, McWhirter, Henderson and Stokes; Donald L. Whittemore Jr., president, Southeast Bank of Tampa; William T. Young Jr., president of William T. Young and Associates; Frederick M. Rothenberg, Fowler, White, Gillen, Humkey, Kinney and Boggs.

George W. Harvey Jr., account executive, WFLA-TV; William Hendry, associated with W. F. Poe Associates, Inc.; James M. Kelly, senior vice president, First National Bank of Tampa; John S. McMullen, assistant vice president, First National Bank of Tampa; Charles H. Ross Jr., resident vice-president, Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc.; attorney Jeremy P. Ross, Macfarlane, Ferguson, Allison and Kelly, and Joseph F. Smiley Jr., vice-president, Marine Bank and Trust Company.

Counselors Chairman J. Thomas Touchton, who recommends new counselors to the UT Board of Trustees for approval, said counselors lend advice to educational programs, speak to student groups in their areas of expertise and sponsor the banquet for Alpha Chi, the national scholastic society on campus.

Tampa Mayor Dick Greco, '56, received the University of Tampa Distinguished Public Service Award during the 1972 UT opening convocation at which he was principal speaker. Pictured with Mayor Greco (center) are (l-r) trustees J. H. Williams and Fischer S. Black.

Most recent major donation to the University of Tampa's fast-growing marine biology program is a brand new boat from Chrysler Corporation, Marine Division, Jacksonville. Accepting the gift in behalf of the University were biology professors Dr. Richard Gude (center) and Dr. Marlon Ellison (right). James J. Murphy of Tampa Boat Mart, local Chrysler distributors, made the presentation for Chrysler.

Number One in History

The cry, "We're No. 1" is again being heard at the University of Tampa — but this time it is coming from history students rather than athletes.

The University's Phi Alpha Theta international history honorary was selected as the nation's best chapter from among institutions with enrollments between 1,700 and 4,000 students.

Dr. Joe Decker, the chapter's faculty advisor, said word of the honor was received recently from Donald B. Hoffman, International secretary-treasurer of Phi Alpha Theta.

UT President B. D. Owens, who wants the University of Tampa to become known as a "Landmark of Learning," said: "This is the type of distinction we seek for the University. All of us are proud of our history students."

The award carries a $250 gift for purchase of history books for the University's library.

Our Unique Banking Center

A center for the study of banking — perhaps the only one in the nation — has been established at the University of Tampa this fall.

An internship and a special series of on-campus seminars conducted by banking specialists during the senior year are two unique features that set the program apart from other banking-related studies.

The program, which has been approved by the Board of Trustees, has drawn the praise of area banking officials. Banking students with a diversified background in business and finance will receive college credit for working in approved local banks. Students may work either half-time for one year or full-time for one semester in a banking institution during their senior years.

As part of the internship, banking majors must return to the campus twice a week to take part in a seminar described as an intensive study and discussion of practical bank management problems.

Seminar topics will concentrate on bank problems with professional bankers as guest speakers.

A total of 15 hours in electives may be chosen from the areas of psychology, computer science and speech.

In addition to the regular freshman and sophomore core courses prerequisites to the program include accounting; data processing; statistics; law, basic and estate and trust law; report writing and business English; marketing; financial management, and four semesters of economics embracing money and banking, Federal Reserve system and Macroeconomic theory.

The new banking program ties in with the University of Tampa's business administration major, which has been strong since the birth of the institution in the early years of The Depression.

Largest Freshman Class

Attracting students to such exciting fields as marine biology, criminology, social work, drama and music, the University of Tampa enrolled the largest freshman class in its history — 608 students.

The number of entering freshmen rose by 88 over the 520 who registered last September.

However, overall enrollment at the University of Tampa dropped as it has in most colleges and universities. Total enrollment was 2,279 according to Eugene Cropsey, director of admissions and records.

The breakdown shows 2,002 full-time students and 277 part-time. Full-time equivalents total 2,094. University administrators were hoping for about 2,050 full-time students.

This September's full-time total is about 30 less than a year ago, according to Cropsey.

A variety of reasons were cited for the reduction in number of students, ranging from inflation and a declining birth rate to an inclination toward vocational schools and Congressional delay in acting on the student loan program.

Towards a Record Goal

A record goal of $35,000 for the 1972 Alumni Loyalty Fund has been announced by Chairman David Pinholster. "Our record goal, a 35% increase over 1971 is not the only one we have set. Our objective is to increase participation by 66% to a record 1,000 donors for 1972," said Pinholster.

Advance Gifts Chairman, Doug Bohannon is moving the 1972 Alumni Loyalty Fund in the right direction. The Advance Gifts teams are already reporting just over $11,000 in gifts and pledges and expect to exceed $20,000 before their part of the drive is over. The Advance Gifts Division is paying special attention this year to increasing the number of donors at the $100 and above level with formation of the Century Club ($100 and up donors) and promotion of membership in the Minaret Society ($1,000 and up donors). To date there are 38 Century Club members, and two alumni have joined the Minaret Society.

Tel-o-thon Chairman Bob Most laid the ground work for the most extensive portion of the drive. Tel-o-thons were conducted in St. Petersburg, Miami, Atlanta and the immediate Tampa area during the month of October. In all, over 2,500 alumni received personal phone calls.

Edward P. Snee, director of development for annual giving and alumni relations commented, "participation in the 1972 Alumni Loyalty Fund holds the key to its success. So far, the response looks very encouraging, and I am particularly pleased with the number of Century Club and Minaret Society members we have already. It is our hope to announce at Homecoming that the goal has been exceeded."

Changing of the Guard

Robert E. Beach and Perry O. Keene, Jr. — these two names figure prominently in the development of the University of Tampa National Alumni Association.

Robert E. Beach, '55, has served as president of the National Alumni Association for the past year. Under Bob's guidance a new direction for alumni has begun to emerge. Two new alumni chapters were formally organized during the past year, and a complete restructuring of the Constitution and By-Laws has been prepared with more emphasis placed on alumni involvement and chapter programs and projects.

Perry O. Keene, Jr., '51, has served as president-

National recognition came to the University of Tampa's Office of Alumni Affairs at the American Alumni Council's national convention recently in St. Louis. Robert B. Gronlund (left) vice president for development and public relations, admires the Alumni Giving Incentive Award received by Ed Snee, director of annual giving and alumni affairs, awarded the University. A total of 536 colleges competed for the U. S. Steel Award, sponsored by the U. S. Steel Foundation and administered by the American Alumni Council. It is given for distinguished achievement in the development of alumni support.

elect for the past year. He will assume the office of president on November 11, 1972, and will be responsible for implementing and furthering many of the present programs.

Having spent many hours traveling and talking with alumni chapters about the University, Perry has acquired a strong background for his new position. Perry has been active in Tampa Alpha Chapter since its inception and served as National Homecoming chairman last year. "One of my primary goals for next year will be to inaugurate an effective communications program between the University and all alumni and to build a strong liaison between the Alumni Office and our chapters," Keene stated at a recent meeting.

the week of oct. 6

It happened October sixth, nineteen hundred and seventy-two — the most significant blending of university and community in University of Tampa history and, perhaps, the marker of a turning point in the future of private higher education. Tampa's sixth and youngest president, Dr. B. D. Owens was inaugurated.

Some academicians have said inaugurating college presidents has gone out of fashion. If that is true, the University of Tampa staged one of the greatest revivals of campus tradition to date. Inauguration Week, October 2-8, named by official proclamation of Tampa Mayor Dick Greco (an alumnus) was lavish — lavish in the wealth of internationally celebrated scholars and other dignitaries who appeared as guest speakers — lavish in attendance by representatives from the nation's leading universities and learned societies (more than 120 institutions including Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Cornell plus some 35 societies) and abundant in inspiration shared by the University family and the Tampa community. The week was indeed a tangible demonstration of the kind of administrative thinking that has spared the University of Tampa from the doldrums that now shadow many other private campuses across the United States.

Sadly, a number of private institutions have already closed, because funds are not available to meet rising costs. So far, the University of Tampa has been blessed with solvency well above and beyond the national average for a private university. The inauguration was a reverent celebration of our good fortune, but, more important, it was a symbol of hope for private schools everywhere and for the students who want and need to attend such institutions.

The inaugural theme: "The Private University in the Seventies: Failure or Fulfillment," has challenged the creative resources of the nation's most brilliant scholarly minds, and eleven distinguished guests took time from crowded schedules to make personal contributions to our private higher education "revival week."

Famed NBC news analyst and commentator David Brinkley was opening speaker for the week's events. His topic was "State of the Nation."

Guest speakers at six symposia seeking to explore specific phases of the theme topic included physicist Dr. James Carter, provost, Loyola University; educator Dr. Michael J. Stolee, University of Miami; President Sebastian Menke, St. Ambrose College; educator Dr. Ralph B. Chalender, Shawnee Missions Schools, Kansas; attorney Fred Minnis, Sr., St. Petersburg; President

Timothy W. Costello, Adelphi University; poet Elliot Coleman, Johns Hopkins University; composer Howard Hanson, director emeritus of Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester.

Delivering the main address at the Inauguration Day convocation was Dr. Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., president of the National Audubon Society. Master of ceremonies at the inaugural luncheon was Dr. William T. Jerome, III, Florida International University. Both Dr. Stahr and Dr. Jerome were presented honorary degrees from the University of Tampa.

Other honors bestowed during Inauguration Week included the presentation of the University of Tampa Distinguished Public Service Award to UT trustees James L. Ferman, president, Ferman Motor Car Company; H. Grady Lester, Jr., president, Exchange National Bank of Tampa, and William C. MacInnes, chairman of the board, Tampa Electric Company.

As part of the University's celebration of good fortune we publicly announced during the inaugural luncheon several of our most recent outstanding financial blessings: the Dana Foundation challenge grant of $250,000 for professorships; the Joseph Mitchell Knight bequest of $89,000 and the Harold Houghton bequest in excess of $100,000. It was announced at the luncheon that the Minaret Society's drive for 100 members before year-end 1972 is proceeding on schedule. Featured event of the luncheon program was Dr. Owens' main inauguration speech.

Other highlights of the week included performance by Pulitzer Prize recipient Howard Hanson of his composition, "Song of Democracy" at the convocation; a faculty recital by Judith Edberg, pianist; the Inaugural Reception sponsored by the University of Tampa Woman's Club; a Democratic Speakers caucus with members of the Florida House of Representatives; football game, Spartans versus University of Louisville, and a pulpit guest appearance by President Owens at Palma Ceia United Methodist Church services.

Embellishments which added visual splendor to the inauguration rites included a new ceremonial robe and medallion for Dr. Owens, new robes for trustees and a new processional mace borne by marshal, Dr. Jesse Keene. Inauguration luncheon guests received as mementoes attractively designed marble paperweights with the University of Tampa logo and the occasion inlaid on the surface.

The list of Inauguration memories goes on. Space does not permit recounting all of them, but a keepsake pictorial review follows on the next six pages.

David Brinkley

In 1943 David Brinkley came to NBC's Washington Bureau after several years with the United Press. He wrote news scripts for radio announcers, covered Washington as a reporter and appeared on television, which was then still a gadget. He rose steadily in the Bureau and by 1950 he was doing regular Washington spots on the "Camel News Caravan." Though winning admirers among his colleagues and among the younger producers, Brinkley remained relatively obscure until 1956, when NBC news executives began searching for the proper anchorman for the network's coverage of that year's political conventions. Already selected as a member of the election team was Chet Huntley. The question was: who would be his partner. The answer is history.

Since then, Brinkley's ability with words and his pithy style, which one observer has described as an invigorating "blend of wry and ginger," have brought him lasting fame as well as many notable awards.

Dr. James Carter

Scientist, theologian, university administrator, Dr. James Carter successfully combines all three in his career. A member of the Society of Jesus, he has been provost of Loyola University in New Orleans since 1970 after serving on the faculty there for ten years. A member of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Physics Society, he is a well-known nuclear physicist. He has written extensively in his field and has served as a research fellow with the National Bureau of Standards in Washington. His Ph D is from Catholic University, his M S from Fordham University, and he also has a STL from Woodstock College. Dr. Carter is listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in South and Southwest and is a member of the Higher Education Facilities Commission of the State of Louisiana.

Beginning her first year as the director of piano studies at the University of Tampa, Judith Edberg (Mrs. Hugo C. Edberg) is a new-comer to the Tampa area as a graduate of Wayne State University. An accomplished concert pianist and harpsichord performer, Mrs. Edberg has established the reputation as an equally gifted studio teacher. This distinction was confirmed with her election to the National Honor Role of the National Guild of Piano Teachers in 1971.

A student of Lazzare Levi, Mischa Kottler and Julius Chajes, Mrs. Edberg has performed extensively within the "Music in the Woods program" just outside of Detroit. Her interest in Baroque music has been encouraged by her husband's avocational enthusiasm for building harpsichords.

Because of serious student disturbances on the Adelphi University campus, Dr. Timothy W. Costello, president of Adelphi, was not able to be with us at the Division of Business and Economics Symposium, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Robert Henderson, professor of management at Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio, who graciously consented to speak in his place, did an outstanding job and was enthusiastically received.

Elliott Coleman

Elliott Coleman has had nine books of poems published, ranging from a 1936 collection to the recent "One Hundred Poems." He was honored this year by the Library of Congress and acclaimed "one of the finest poets in America" by Josephine Jacobsen, the Library's consultant in poetry.

Born in Binghamton, New York, Mr. Coleman is an alumnus of Wheaton College. In 1945 he moved from the staff of Doubleday and Co. to Johns Hopkins University to revitalize existing composition classes. Milton S. Eisenhower, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins, wrote of him:

"Successful writers speak eloquently of the sensitive guidance, ideas, and inspiration they received in their student association with Professor Coleman, and his books of poetry and literary criticism are permanent testimonials of his creative talent."

Toppling Toledo — and Then Some

Holy Toledo!

That's what University of Toledo football fans were muttering September 9 after the University of Tampa Spartans KO'd the second longest winning string in major college football history by defeating the Rockets, 21-0, at Tampa Stadium.

The impressive victory signaled the start of the "Earle Bruce Era" for the University of Tampa. Bruce, who came here February 2, couldn't have found a better way of impressing the loyal Spartan followers.

And succeeding victories against Northern Michigan (34-21) and Eastern Michigan (42-0) continued to build testimony that indeed this was the start of "The New Spartan Decade."

After the conclusion of the September portion of the schedule, the Spartans were riding the crest of a three-game winning skein. That streak ended at Manhattan, Kan., however when the Spartans couldn't get untracked — nine fumbles (four were recovered by K-State) and two interceptions — and lost a 31-7 verdict.

Still, "The New Spartan Decade" will continue.

"I've lost before and will lose some more before my coaching career is finished," Bruce said later. "I just wish we could have given a better showing against Kansas State. Our performance was a good indication of what we're attempting to do here."

Just exactly what is Bruce and his young staff of assistants trying to do?

"We want to build a program that will make everyone connected with Tampa proud to say they are associated with us," Bruce says. "We've achieved major college status because of our schedule, now we want to make the entire program big time."

Through the first four games, the Spartans had no less than nine players figure in the scoring. Bull-dozing fullback Paul Orndorff, a senior from Brandon, led the way with four touchdowns for 24 points.

Another senior, Alex Edlin, was second in line with 18. But Edlin sustained a broken hand during the Kansas State contest and will probably be lost for the remainder of the season. There was another player with 15 points and two at 14.

"Our scoring balance is impressive," Bruce says. "It makes it a lot harder for the opposing team to defense us. I feel we've got a well-balanced attack. No team can concentrate on just stopping our rushing or passing game."

Bruce, however, fully realizes a team also must have defense. And, with two shutouts in the first four games, the defense kept Bruce smiling.

"The defense has done just a tremendous job for us," Bruce said. "Really the 52 points we've given up in the first four games is not an indication of how well the defense has played."

"Against Northern Michigan we got off to a rough start, but improved as the game progressed. Then against Kansas State our defense had its back to the wall the entire game because our offense was giving up the ball deep in our own territory."

What's ahead the rest of the season for the Spartans?

"I know we've got our work cut out for us," Bruce says. "There isn't a breather across the rest of our schedule. The final four games are really going to be something."

"You know Florida A & M will be ready for us because they're coached by Jim Williams who was here as an assistant for four years. Then comes Miami with Fran Curci and you know he'll be ready to beat us."

"After Miami it's Bowling Green and they've already beat Purdue this year. And, we close with Vanderbilt, a school Tampa has never beaten."
