

SPARTANS MEET ALABAMA TONIGHT

$6000 PROJECT OF WPA BEGINS AT UNIVERSITY

New Drainage System Is Being Installed

Some 45 years ago when our beautiful building was constructed there was laid a drainage culvert to carry away all the surface water falling west of the university to the railroad including Plant field. This storm sewer running under the middle of the building has recently collapsed due to the settling of the walls and the tremendous weight lying over it. The collapsed sewer has been flooding the basement of the school during rainy periods and has caused a small section of the inner west wall to shear off and settle an inch or more below its normal level.

At a cost of $6000 the WPA under the direction of C. W. Carlton, project superintendent, is replacing the damaged wall and building a new sewer. The new drainage system, a 24-inch culvert, will afford ample drainage for the area extending west to the Port Tampa railroad and north of Lafayette street.

This project, known in the WPA office as local project 539 or state project 29179, is scheduled to be completed about Dec. 10, but due to delay in federal materials, Mr. Carlton expects completion about 10 days late. The city of Tampa has already furnished its 15 percent of the material as required by the WPA and has seen it installed. Work is expected to be in full swing on arrival of the necessary material next week.

Delta Kappa's Will Give Baskets to Poor

The members of the Delta Kappa sorority met at the university last night and plans for coming social events were made. The sorority will provide a Thanksgiving basket for a needy family.

Members of the sorority will have a get-together breakfast on Thanksgiving morning. Miss Marjorie Dennis, 712 West Shore boulevard, to be hostess at this time. A tea dance will be given on Dec. 14 at the university ball room, this affair to follow the football game on that afternoon. Sponsors will be Miss Martha Powell, Miss Edna Prince, Miss Margaret Rush and Miss Virginia Roberts. Faculty sponsors for the tea dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Berry.

Sorority members and pledges will have a luncheon on Tuesday, Nov. 26, at the Crescent grill. Elaborate decorations will mark this affair. Beginning the week after Thanksgiving, the sorority will hold one of the weekly meetings each month at the home of one of the members. Miss Dennis will entertain the sorority at the first home meeting.

University Yacht Club

As the guests of Capt. Steve Kissinger of the "Lorraine" the University Yacht club made a boat trip on Tampa Bay. As the club was winding up its business at its last meeting Captain Kissinger made the welcomed but unexpected invitation. On such short notice only 19 members were able to go. The 10 went immediately to the Plant Park dock and the "Lorraine" shoved off. All members making the trip had an immense time strolling the deck and dancing under the beautiful full moon.

HILDA MAE ANDERSON

The University of Tampa sponsors for tonight's game are shown above. Miss Pattillo will be escorted by Ivan Williams, former Tampa U. football star, and Miss Anderson will be escorted by Don McCracken. The Alabama Teachers College sponsors will be Miss Tootie Lykes and Miss Susan Thornton.

Five University Boys Honored for Service as National Guardsmen

Five University of Tampa students were honored recently by the local national guardsmen unit. They being members of the National Guard answered the call of Governor Dave Sholtz to protect the people during the primary election for the mayor of Tampa.

On being commended for their service rendered and the diplomatic manner in which they served the people during strife, the students were presented with a beautiful bronze medal and a cross bar from the United States war department.

The students of the University are congratulating the five boys, Willie Godwin, Phil Patterson, Coach Johnny Edison, Albert Day and Chester "Red" Morgan, upon receiving this honor.

University Students In Opera "The Mikado"

"The Mikado" scored an auspicious opening of the amateur entertainment season before an enthusiastic audience of 1000 persons in the municipal auditorium Tuesday night. The first production of the new Tampa Civic Opera company drew continued applause in the creditable performance.

The Gilbert and Sullivan opera, directed by Robert B. Campbell, burlesqued bureaucracy in a Japanese setting, the story centering around the lord high officials and a love affair of the son of the mikado.

Several University of Tampa students were in the cast, including Warner Fussell as Pooh-Bah, and Gladys Guthrie and Winnifred Hill in the chorus. Ernestine Spain and Stella Roger served as ushers. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. R. M. D'Angelo, who are in charge of the university vocal department, for tutoring the various members of the cast.

Freshman Prom Announced

The annual Freshman Prom will be presented by the Freshman class Friday night, Dec. 6, from 9 to 12 o'clock, it was announced this week.

Sponsors for the dance will be Helen Windham, Stella Rogers, Mildred Allison, and Ernestine Spain. A floor show is being planned to take place during intermission. Script will be 75 cents a couple or 50 cents stag.

Richard Spoto, president of the freshman class is urging everyone to support the freshmen on this occasion.

Alumni Thank Students For Cooperation in Homecoming Activities

The Alumni wishes to take this opportunity to thank the students of the University of Tampa for their splendid cooperation in making the first Alumni homecoming day a success. The University should be proud of these students and we hope that some day in the future that they will become Alumni.

Although this organization is small we are well represented in various ways in Tampa. In the school system we have the following Alumni: Mrs. C. C. Burns, Marguerite Litschgi, Jimmy Moore, Mrs. Leila Moore, Mrs. Fred Rushing, Lucille Rosenberg, Mrs. Nettie Cowley, Louise Leonard, Martha Powell, Ted Van Antwerp and Hazel McLane. Also we have Bill Moody who, as you will remember, won the 220-yard swim at the University's first swimming meet. Bill is connected with the sport department at the Tampa Daily Times. At the Tampa Electric Company Bill Carnes is enthusiastically working his way to the top. Dorothy Pou is in the Welfare department and from what I hear is making good. Since Christmas is drawing near and you are undecided as to what to give for Christmas why not drop in at Maas Bros. and see Lois Selvidge and Mary Shindelbower who will be glad to help you out. Fletcher Cawthon our sailing champion has an office supply store all of his own. Miller Adams, president of the Alumni, is connected with the Recreation department.

These are only a few of the Alumni and as you can see that we are well represented in Tampa.

Next week I'll be back with some more news about the various members of the Alumni.

First Homecoming Marked as Success At Tampa University

The University of Tampa experienced its first homecoming celebration last Friday, the 15th. Old grads mingled with the present crop of University students to make the occasion one which will long be remembered.

It was a gala anniversary. A big colorful parade headed by Mayor R. E. L. Chancey and President F. H. Spaulding, and representing the University, Stetson, and Plant and Hillsborough High schools terminated the festivities for the day.

Among the interesting events was the dinner honoring the alumni given at the Crescent Grill. Principal speakers were: President Spaulding, Dean M. S. Hale, Coach Higgins and George B. Howell, a director of the University.

The football game between the Spartans and Stetson Hatters topped the homecoming program.

After the football game a dance was held in the University ballroom. Special guests were members of the alumni and seniors of the two high schools.

Art Classes Guests Of Ringling Museum

The art classes of the University of Tampa were special guests of the Ringling Art Museum in Sarasota last Sunday.

The visit was arranged by Prof. Norman Earchart, art instructor at Tampa University. Dean and Mrs. M. S. Hale and W. E. Culbreath were among the special guests.

Donald Blake, instructor at the Ringling Art school showed the visiting group through the art school and class rooms, and a special guide explained the many famous paintings that were seen in the Ringling Museum. Some of them were over 600 years old, and a few were worth over a half million dollars.

The group traveled in the bus owned by the Athletic Association. About thirty-five students made the trip.

HIGGINS' MEN CLASH WITH TROY RED WAVE

Spartans Anxious for Another Win

By MANUEL RAMIREZ

A snarling Spartan eleven from the University of Tampa, thirsting to crash into the win column after two straight set-backs by one and two point margins, will attempt to snap out of the doldrums when it clashes with the Red Wave from the Alabama State Teachers' college tonight on Plant field.

Staging a dramatic comeback after two reverses in the same week, the Tampa gridsters are ready to pounce upon Coach A. B. Elmore's Troy, Alabama, football machine. The Red, Gold and Black team, after four victories in as many starts, dropped a heart-breaking 13-12 tilt to the Cumberland Bulldogs in an Armistice day classic. In a blood and thunder thriller, the Spartans bowed to the mad Hatters from Stetson university by a 9-7 score in the same week. The homecoming defeat gave the Spartans their second straight loss in one week. Two defeats by margins of one and two points respectively!

However, the University of Tampa scoring aces have crossed the opponents' goal on 13 occasions while the Spartan forward wall has been riddled for six tallies only. The Tampa powerhouse has amassed a grand total of 82 points as to 42 for the enemy. Rudy Rodriguez, ace ball carrier of Coach Nash Higgins' charges and who has been mainly responsible for a great majority of the touchdown spears, will be ready to dig his cleats into the sod tonight.

Visitors' Successful

The visiting eleven, on the other hand, has been fairly successful this year by turning in four wins against the same number of losses. After losing the opening game to Spring Hill by a 12-0 score, the Red Wave ran through Brewton-Parker, Mississippi Teachers, South Georgia State Teachers' college, and Middle Georgia Teachers' college. The Alabama gridgers dropped close tilts to Oglethorpe university and Mercer, and was crushed by the strong Howard Bulldogs, 52-0. In eight encounters, the Red Wave have piled up 143 points and have been scored on 23 times.

The University of Tampa eleven and the Alabama State Teachers' college will be opposing each other for the second straight year when they meet here tonight. A year ago, the Spartans journeyed to Troy, Alabama, and emerged victors after a hard-fought 6-2 game which proved to be one of the toughest assignments for the local gridgers. Practically the same team which opposed the Spartans last year will face the Tampa eleven in tonight's game.

"Brick" Owen Good

The Alabama State Teachers' college, not the same team which the Tars from Rollins defeated 19-6 two weeks ago, have a great scoring half-back on the Spartans. "Brick" Owen, one of the ball carriers that met the university gridsters a year ago, is the ideal backfield ace. He has been the main offensive spark plug of the Teachers all year and will cause the Red, Gold and Black eleven a great deal of trouble. Elmore, brother of the visiting coach, is one of the best wingmen to meet the Spartans here this year. Practically every member of the Red Wave squad will be on deck to see action when the whistle blows tonight at 8 o'clock.

The University of Tampa squad will still have a few gridgers nursing sore muscles, shoulder ailments, and leg wounds. Crockett Farnekk, husky Spartan tackle who has been out of the game since Nov. 4 when he hurt his arm against Rollins, will not be

FRATERNITY-SORORITY POLICY

In a letter to the MINARET staff members dated October 25th, the editor stated: "I trust there will be no private interests among the staff members, but that everyone will work for the betterment of the publication and the University of Tampa. I urge your cooperation in seeing that every group and individual is represented through these columns."

Thus one can see that from the very outset I have no private interests of my own nor did I want my staff members to show partiality to any one group or individual. Last week there was considerable agitation concerning the amount of space given certain sororities and fraternities. The editor is a member of no fraternity on the campus, and at the time the issue was made up did not know which students were in the different fraternal groups.

Therefore it was immaterial to me which fraternity or sorority received the most attention. All I had to go by was the news value of each story and each one was given what it deserved according to my opinion as an editor. This will continue to be my policy, because after all, we are running a newspaper and not a publicity sheet for a coalition of fraternities and sororities.

To be assured of space much will depend on the club's reporter getting his copy in on time, already typewritten, so that it can be more carefully edited. There are certain deadlines we have to adhere to, so we expect our reporters to abide by deadlines, also. The staff of the MINARET is very limited and we do not have time to copy-read, write heads, as well as type the stories if they come in late. Therefore, it is up to the organizations themselves to see that their news is in promptly at noon Wednesday if they wish to be assured of the proper amount of space. The MINARET is willing to do its part to see that each group is properly represented.

HOW MUCH SHOULD YOU STUDY?

There is a statement in the University of Tampa catalogue to the effect that each student should spend at least two hours in preparation for each class. This was brought to the attention of an instructor here by a student who asked if that was really necessary. He couldn't believe that a student had to spend two solid hours preparing for one hour of recitation, six hours a night preparing for attendance at three classes the next day.

This student was told that he should not only spend two hours in preparation but more if possible. The boy quickly protested, saying that such studiousness would not allow him any time for any other activities. And he was astonished to hear that he didn't need any other activities!

The boy stated that he had to work for his tuition, and a girl said that she played in the university orchestra, to all of which this instructor steadfastly maintained that studies should be held above everything else.

We do not imagine that all on the faculty feel quite so strongly on the subject as this for there would be a larger number of students making low grades. Yet with so many activities, social, athletic and private, always in progress here, one wonders just how the professor does regard the student who participates, with pity, tolerance or condemnation.

Of course, a student must use judgment on the amount of time spent in preparation; some lessons will not require as much as others. But should he average two hours a day? It is almost like asking if one must make A's in order to be successful in later life.

Dr. Becknell probably gave as good an answer to this as any when he told a class recently that any student had accomplished something worthwhile when he had learned to solve problems and work out of difficulties.

HOMEcoming—A SUCCESS

Those who witnessed and participated in the activities of Tampa U's first homecoming last Friday should be convinced that a new university has been permanently established and can expect a great amount of growth in the next few years. A large number of old grads returned and were pleasantly surprised to note the progress that has been made in the last year or two.

From the parade in the early afternoon to the dance late Friday night, the homecoming was a marked success. The present students and faculty of the university stood by to welcome and honor the alumni of the new-born institution and make them feel "at home."

Although the celebration might not have been carried out in just the way an older college might have conducted it, those in charge should be highly complimented for the efficient manner in which the activities were held. Bouquets should go especially to the following: Miller K. Adama, alumni president, who planned the occasion; Dr. Bode, Martha Powell and Lois Selvidge, for the beautiful decorations that were so prominent on the campus and building; Marion Ray, for conducting the successful parade; Bill Moody, of the Tampa Times, for publicity; Carolyn Maness, and many others who were fundamental in arranging and presenting the University of Tampa's first homecoming.

This is to congratulate the University on its first annual homecoming, and wish for it many, many more successful

Guinta's Meditations

—And even, this shall come to pass!

—Don's Memoirs.

O EVENTFUL DAY! O BLISSFUL EVENING!—(Nov. 15)—Parade. Decorations! Visitors! Banquet! Anticipation! Alumni dance! Football game! Anxiety! These are but a few of the highlights, which for many a day, this being's memory shall associate with Homecoming. But what a day—and what an evening! Perhaps only the 22 students, who being Seniors like this scribe, can have derived and felt the real heart-tingling joy of this—our first, real Homecoming!

And it is well that they did, for when we pause to meditate over that which we have just emerged from experiencing, we realize—but only with genuine disappointment—that this is the first and last Homecoming in which we as University of Tampa students may participate forever.

As these lines are being written there is a funny feeling being experienced by this scribe. It is a feeling that cannot be termed sorrow, nor pessimism, nor any other term pertaining and applicable to a person that is in a despondent mood. But instead it is the feeling motivated by that attachment which a student has made with his Alma Mater only after four long years—and that attachment made firmer and more enduring still, by bonds which have arisen between student and faculty members, and student and fellow-students.

As the colorful events of November 15th lose their intensity of effect directly with the passage of time with the Tampa Freshman and Sophomore. Time shall only more vividly bring back each incident of that day, to this scribe's memory. To the Freshman who has three more such celebrations to witness; to the Sophomore who has two more to enjoy; and to the Junior who has another in sight to participate in, this past celebration was simply "one of several football games preceded by a parade and followed by a dance," but to the U's "Forgotten Man"—it was his first and last! There is one that, however, which in passing, enlightens his present state of melancholy—he did have the rare privilege of participating in Tampa's first, real Homecoming celebration.

And so, as a departing Senior, who together with his score or more fellow-Seniors, prepares to follow the "trail of the lonesome pine"—perhaps nevermore to be able to participate or attend another reunion of students and graduates, he puts an end to these contemplations by restating his adopted seven by-words—that even this shall come to pass!

We sometimes wonder if any man who "goes on the rocks" as we say, could feel more at home in so doing, than our own Assistant Professor of Geology—for: He finds sermons in stones—

And good in everything.

They tell us that a Philosopher is like a blind man in a dark room, looking for a black cat that is not there. (If you happen to see such a man won't you advise him of the fruitlessness of his search.)

We Salute You—Sergeant!

There is one person who is neither a student nor an alumnus of the University, but yet is as much a Tampa booster as the most college-spirited among us, if not moreso. He answers to the name of Sergeant C. A. "Smitty" Brown, of the Tampa Police force. Sergeant Brown is the organizer of the Tampa Schoolboy Safety Patrol, an organization which in its short period of existence, is credited with saving an untold number of school children's lives, and whose worthy performances cannot be estimated in terms of pecuniary considerations.

The surprising decrease in the number of accidents involving school children going to and from school, since the organization of the Schoolboy Patrol, is undisputable evidence of the good work of this institution.

The Sergeant is an expert pistol marksman, and two years ago was coach of the U's first pistol team. Since then he has always cooperated with the University in keeping order at students' parades and at games.

Sergeant Brown is reputed to be the handsomest motorcycle officer in the state. Heresy has it that many an attractive damsel has purposely broken the city's speed laws, just to get the thrills of having "Smitty" Brown give her the chase.

VARIETY

Arthur Murray, famous dance instructor, has revealed that anyone's character may be described through his dancing. Here are some facts you may check up on. This is also a way to choose your mate in marriage.

Those who usually take short precise steps are tightwads. If a partner leans forward, thrusts his head over the girl's shoulder and glares defiantly at everybody who glances his way, and puts his arm around her as if he had just captured her in a tribal battle then that man is dishonest. If a girl resists and works at odds with you while you are dancing, then you can be sure she will not be a good wife. She will always be too dominant.

The man most easily led holds the woman's hand in his upturned palm. Dominant men grasp a woman's hand with an overclasp. They are not the most agreeable men by any means. Thoughtful and considerate men usually hold a partner's hand in the way most agreeable to her and touch her back lightly with their fingers. Tall men show themselves considerate by stooping when dancing with small women.

Girls, beware of the man who cups his palm upon your back while dancing. It is a very primitive gesture—a symbol of possessiveness. It seems to say, "I won you. Your life is not your own. It is mine." These men usually hold the woman's hand with an overclasp and tend to crouch when they dance. They are narrow, jealous and belligerent.

Boys, beware of a girl who clings to your neck while dancing, instead of resting her hand easily on your shoulder. Unless, of course, yours is the only neck to which she clings. It is not so easy to tell about a woman from her dancing. If she is a good person, she dances the way her partner wants her to dance.

A dancer who kicks his heels a little when he is dancing is good-hearted. Beware of the dancer who tries to outdo his partner. The man who tries to do a dozen steps with a girl who knows only a few steps is an egoist and a fool.

Men who point their toes gracefully while dancing are usually in love with themselves. Watch them closely and you will observe how often they glance at their feet to see how prettily they place them. Girls who point their toes daintily are not exceptional. A girl wants to be pretty and dainty naturally. But if she is more interested in her toe-pointing than the dance, you can set her down as vain, too.

Men who stare into space with fixed eyes and dance one beat ahead of the music are usually of the artistic temperament. Plodding dancers who set the heel down first, then toes, are egocentric and sure of themselves. They often do well in business. The dancer who turns his toes out is usually sensual, self-indulgent and vain. The most charming persons ever known are pigeon-toed. Check over your list. It is not good form to dance springily but the springiest persons are usually the most joyful and radiant people.

The aggressive, go-getter, who has qualities of leadership, holds his partner firmly and, lifts his elbows high. Such a dancer may be an excellent provider but he's a tough companion.

The walking dancer, who pushes his partner ahead of him, blocks and blocks around the floor, is obviously what he is—a dull and inconsiderate rascal. If a dancer, after years of dancing, remains a pedestrian, he is probably deficient mentally. The man or woman who is always in search of new dancing partners has either an inferiority complex or a spoiled fickle nature. A dancer who dances with a sure, solid step and looks neither to the left or to the right, is both stubborn and stupid.

Men and women who insist upon keeping up a running fire of conversation while they dance may be good dancers, but they think they are not so they talk to keep the partner's mind off the dance, trying to distract attention. The person who tells his partner to take longer steps, or shorter ones, not to lean forward and so on, is the vain and cunning type.

The woman who cannot dance without a strong lead is timid. The less sensitive dancers like fast mach-step music. The more intelligent and nervous types like music that is slower. The person who likes the rumba and tango is easy to live with.

Here is an easily remembered formula: Elbows down, no confidence; elbows up, sure of self; elbows high, proud and vain.

If you want to check up on your fellow or girl friend, just come to a university dance, sit down, and watch your date dance.

SPARTAN FIELD

By Manuel Ramirez

One bright October afternoon in 1930, Al Marsters ran wild through Harvard on Soldier's Field. The score was 34 to 7 in favor of Dartmouth, and yet Ben Ticknor, Crimson center, was a shining star for all of that.

Marsters measured of a total gain of 240 yards all by himself. He gained every time he carried the ball. He ran and passed with uncanny speed and accuracy, and his putting was beyond average that day. And where was Ticknor?

On Friday the greatest Harvard center of all time, the pivot man of that year's All-American team, was a sick man. It was impossible for him to play. Yet the following afternoon, still as sick as he was, Ticknor slipped on his football togs and trotted to the field, ready to greet the inevitable battle which he knew was facing his team. He was going to be in the thick of it when the whistle blew. And he was!

He played the roving center, looming high over his teammates crouched in the line. As the game progressed, this Crimson stalwart appeared even greater than before. Time and again, Ticknor spilled Dartmouth plays. He was weak, really ill, before the game had started. Now he seemed to have a new strength. Fully 40 percent of the tackles were made by the Harvard luminary.

Marsters ran his team perfectly. Everything he did reflected the perfect coordination of mind and body. He was always on the alert, swift, tireless. The Crimson forward wall could not stop him. But even in defeat the center was looked to as the stumbling block for Marsters, was magnificent.

But, the Ticknor-Marsters duel is not related to bring out the fact that both men starred for their respective elevens. The fact is that Willie Godwin, versatile University of Tampa gridder, went into the thick of the fray, like Ticknor, knowing the significance of the all-important football tilt. Unhampered by an ailing shoulder, Godwin turned in a splendid game against the Stetson university hatters. 'Tis true it was he who made a bad pass from center which resulted in safety, the deciding points of the game. And again it is the truth that he was the main Spartan principal involved in the 15-yard penalty before the dazzling touchdown run made by Aubrey Smith, Stetson will-o'-the-wisp. However, as a local paper sports writer puts it, the brilliant football played by the Spartan center more than accounts for his Friday nightmare.

Never was there such silence as the football tilt between the University of Tampa Spartans and the Stetson university Hatters came to a close on Plant field last Friday night. It was a weary, silent, and lifeless squad which entered the university shower rooms and Manager Castro's training room. The Spartans had just finished their sixth tilt in 29 days. An average of a football game on every fifth day! Time and again, the "suicide schedule" of the Tampa eleven is brought into discussion. The Spartan football machine certainly deserves credit for the ability to take punishment on the gridiron as well as to hand it out at the same time.

After taking South Georgia State Teachers' college, Miami, Newberry and Rollins, and dropping decisions to Cumberland and Stetson university by one and two point margins, the Spartans tangle tonight with a strong Red Wave from the Alabama State Teachers' college. The Red, Gold and Black squad then moves back to the hilly regions of Kentucky next week to face the highly touted Hilltoppers from Western Kentucky Teachers' college in a Thanksgiving day classic. The next home game will be played on Dec. 14 against the Bulldog Brigade of the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Thus the University of Tampa Spartans will close another chapter of their brilliant three-year football career which has attracted the attention of the nation's celebrated gridiron mentors. Never will another Spartan edition display the same grit, endurance, and determination as the 1935 squad. The sum total of eight encounters in 42 days will stand out as an endurance record which modern football master minds should envy and also applaud!

Sturdy Guard For Tampa

Tramontana, of whom little has been written, has really done some brilliant playing at his guard post for the Spartans this year. A former Hillsborough high star, "Tray" served as a substitute last year, but won his spurs this year and has played nearly 60 minutes in every game so far. He is a hard-charging, hard-fighting guard and is one of the outstanding players on the Tampa forward wall.

Introducing the Spartans

WILLIE GODWIN

Willie is probably the most versatile member of the Spartans and is no doubt the best center in the state. He is rugged and his defensive work has been a "standout" in the Spartans' line during the past three years. He is a brown-eyed brunette weighing 194 pounds and is five feet eleven inches tall. Willie is a product of Hillsborough High school, where he was outstanding in athletics.

During his three years at Hillsborough, Willie was awarded nine letters, three in football, two in basketball, two in track, and one in baseball. He gained state-wide recognition by making All-State in football in the Big Ten Conference for two years, 1931 and 1932. He also made the All-Southern prep football team of 1932.

This is Godwin's third year on the varsity team at Tampa U. and he has gained state-wide recognition in intercollegiate circles for his power and ability.

He has starred in all the games this season, and if his shoulder injury heals sufficiently he will be the main cog in the Spartans' defense machine for the remaining games.

Willie has his superstitions and customs as most athletes do. As you probably have noticed, he always wears his "little grey cap" during practice sessions and before games. The "little grey cap" is his charm and without it Willie is "hoo-dooed." Incidentally Willie forgot to wear the cap before the Stetson game and on the first play he received a severe cut on his hip.

For his profession, Godwin has chosen teaching and coaching. He will probably make good in this field as he has had considerable experience with the work.

Edison Scouts Alabama
In Game With Mercer

Freshman Coach Johnnie Edison last week journeyed up to Macon, Ga., to scout the Alabama State

Teachers in their game with the fighting Mercer Bears. Edison reported that the Alabamans had a powerful eleven averaging over 180 pounds to the man. He said the Spartans could expect a heavy aerial attack from their visitors tonight.

The Alabama-Mercer game was the second game of a double-header program. The Miami High aggregation played the Lanier High school Poets in the first game, which was followed by a cross-country match between Mercer and Georgia Tech. Mercer beat the Teachers 21 to 7.

in the lineup. Bob Tramontana, stellar guard, is still nursing a bad cut on the ankle while Gus Muench, Willie Godwin and Ed Carter are still nursing ailments. In general, the Spartan squad will be ready for battle against Alabama's Teachers.

After tonight's setto, the University of Tampa Spartans will rest until next Thursday afternoon when they meet the highly-touted Hilltoppers from the Western Kentucky Teachers' college in a Thanksgiving day classic which will again test the strength of the local gridirons against an S. I. A. A. title contender.

Spartans To Rest

After the trip to Bowling Green, Kentucky, the Spartans will return to Tampa for a two weeks' rest previous to the all-important tilt with the Bulldog Brigade of the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute on Plant field, Dec. 14. The Louisiana Tech football machine has dropped only one engagement in six starts and is rated as one of the strongest small college gridiron teams in southern circles.

A post season game, either for a Christmas day contest, or a New Year's clash, will probably be in line for the Spartans' farewell to 1935 football warfare.

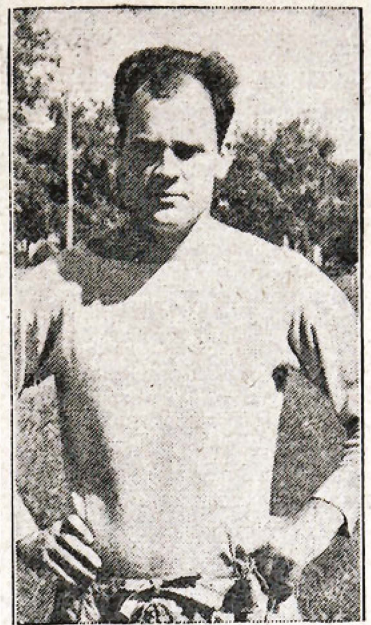

Alabama Teachers
Ready for Game Here
With Tampa SpartansBy HAROLD BELL
Troy Sports Editor

TROY, Ala., Nov. 20.—(Special).—The Troy Red Wave football team will be ready to meet the strong Tampa University Spartans in their battle Friday night. The team will be in the best shape than for any game this season since the Middle Georgia game.

The game with Oglethorpe on Nov. 1 resulted in the injury jinx hitting the Red Wave men in full force. "Brick" Owen, ace halfback suffered a severe arm injury, but has come along nicely and will be ready to "shoot the works" against the Tampa boys. Meredith, pass receiver, will also be in better shape than for any game lately.

James, center, and Thrash, a halfback, will also be in better shape for

Troy Coach

COACH A. B. ELMORE

Elmore, who was former star end at the University of Alabama, is now coaching the Troy Teachers. In 1932 he went with the Alabama team to the Rose Bowl when they beat Washington State. He is very popular with the football boys, and with the people of Troy.

this game. The entire Troy team has been slowly regaining their strength and should give Tampa a good game.

The Alabama Teachers lost a hard fought game to the strong Mercer University Bears in Macon, Georgia last week 21-7. Troy scored in the first part of the fourth period on a pass from Elmore to Meredith.

Coach Elmore is drilling his men hard this week because the weather conditions may effect the game. It has been rather inclement and cold here for the past two weeks.

Troy will leave here late Wednesday or early Thursday morning and go direct to Tampa. About twenty-eight will make the trip.

Small boy: "Well, I don't have to mind you—you ain't my dad."

Elevator man: "No, but I'm the one who is bringing you up."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Last Friday evening the decorations which were used to decorate the sponsors' boxes on Plant field, were taken by party or parties unknown. The decorations consisted of five yards of white satin, 30 yards of tri-colored broadcloth, and other accessories. This represented a total investment of more than five dollars, which amount was made possible by contributions received of each sorority, and fraternity on the campus. The decorations were first used on the "Campus Royalty" float, when King Ed Means, and Queen Jeanie Trice led the Halloween Nite parade. These materials are the property of the Student Council, and any person who has any knowledge of the whereabouts of these items is asked to communicate with Don V. Giunta, decorations chairman.
