homecoming highlights

Laughter, surprise, conversations with old friends, liquid refreshment and plenty of Florida sunshine were ingredients in leisure-time hours during Homecoming.

Rugged UT defense was again the name of the game against Homecoming foe Chattanooga.

A ringer! And we have another winner at the UT student Homecoming Carnival. Hope he can use a stuffed dog.

master of education program begins

The University of Tampa's second venture into graduate studies, a Master of Education program, opens its doors to students Spring Semester, 1974. Over 25 students have already applied, and an additional 30 to 40 are projected to enroll by opening day.

The program's designers have drafted a three-phase plan starting this spring, when Phase I will go into effect. Several basic core courses required of all graduate enrollees will be offered at that time. The M.Ed. program is designed to accommodate the working student, with classes scheduled primarily during evening hours.

Deborah L. Garrigan, first of UT's class of '71 to enroll in the Master of Education program, works out her schedule with advisor Dr. Howard Kratz, director of the program. Deborah teaches at Shore Elementary School in Tampa.

Phase II is projected for the two five-week 1974 summer sessions. At this time the core course offerings will be increased, and a number of area-of-specialization courses will be added in Elementary Education, Secondary English studies, Social Studies, and Industrial Arts.

By Fall of 1974, the program directors plan to put the full-fledged program into effect, with a projected enrollment of about 200 students. Each graduate student will be given personal attention by an advisor in his or her area of specialization, thus assuring an individualized program for each student.

The problem of additional staffing is to be handled in a way geared to enhance the college-community working relationship. As well as tapping the already-available resources of the faculty, the program will make use of adjunct part-time staff from the community.

there have been some changes...

After receiving your November Muezzin, you probably wondered about its change in style and length. As you may already be aware, paper and production costs have skyrocketed. In keeping with both a nationwide and a University of Tampa emphasis on spending wisely and conserving natural resources, we changed to a less costly but modestly dapper format. Our apologies for delaying this explanation—the cut in space due to the new format crowded the copy in the November issue.

To compensate for not being able to send you a full-bodied magazine spread, we are sending you the Muezzin news issue five times a year instead of only three: in January, March, May, September and November.

Something else is new—your Muezzin editor. I will appreciate your response to the new format and, as always, to news and features covered (or not covered). Please address your letters to Dr. Suzanne Nelson, Editor, Muezzin, University of Tampa, Tampa, Florida 33606.

The new program represents many hours of research and development over the past year. A four-man committee, headed by Dr. Howard Kratz, who has also been named director of the program, has been working steadily to build up a top quality program to meet contemporary community and state needs.

Working with Dr. Kratz are Dr. Dan Smith, Dr. Mary Louise Lake, and Dr. Samuel Brick. The excellent groundwork by this committee was largely responsible for the program's approval by the UT faculty and Board of Trustees, the Florida State Department of Education, and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. State approval guarantees graduates of the program Florida Post-graduate Rank II Certification.

Asked to comment about the program, Dr. Kratz was optimistic about its future. He was particularly enthusiastic about support the program has received from local teachers, many of whom are University of Tampa alumni.

Brochures detailing the program and application forms are available. Interested alumni and friends are encouraged to phone or write Dr. Kratz in the Education Division for information.

The University of Tampa, by inaugurating programs such as the new Master of Education studies, can only further its reputation as a "landmark of learning."

M.Ed. graduate students will be kept busy reading the latest additions to the program's library.

Spain, anyone?

Following last year's successful trip to Hawaii, a second charter tour especially for University of Tampa alumni, parents, students, staff and friends has been scheduled for romantic Spain. Departing Tampa July 27 on a DC-8 charter jet, the tour will feature two weeks in three Spanish cities for the low cost of only $549.

The itinerary includes four days in Madrid, three in Seville and a week in Torremolinos. The stay in each city begins with the traditional Spanish greeting — a Sangria party, and closes with a gala banquet featuring flamenco dancers.

The package is complete, including first-class hotel accommodations (all air-conditioned), full-course breakfasts and dinners, a half-day tour of each city, and all transfers, taxes and tips.

In addition, there will be plenty of free time to explore, shop, sightsee or simply relax. Golf, tennis and water sports are popular in Spain; or you may decide to take in a bull-fight or jai-alai.

For more information write or call the alumni office and request the Spain Tour Folder. Reservations are limited to 80.

Former University of Tampa All-American guard (1959) Llewellyn Freeman served as emcee when the University's Alpha alumni chapter presented UT with a new athletic building during dedication ceremonies at UT's Homecoming this November. The building contains facilities for intercollegiate and intermural athletics.

every university needs a jane young

The gentle and well-groomed lady sitting behind the secretarial desk in the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs smiled as I asked her for a spare Kleenex. "I've given out many a Kleenex over the years," she said, "mostly to crying students who came in to see me about their problems."

Mrs. Jane Young has done more than give out Kleenexes. During her eleven rich years at UT she has given of herself — her love for all human beings, her time, her concern, her élan. She has been surrogate mother for countless students and (as she puts it) "a den mother for all the faculty."

She has also been a very accommodating and efficient secretary and unofficial advisor to the five deans and vice presidents for whom she has worked.

"My purpose in life is to help young people," she commented. And Jane has gone a long way to accomplish that purpose. Over the years she has helped students through the trauma of adjustment from protective home and high school days to the responsibilities of college life.

In a time when the older generation typically complains about the irresponsibility of youth, Mrs. Young evidences a rare concern and sense of personal involvement. "I feel strongly," she said, "that adults are responsible for many of the young people's problems. We haven't prepared them for independence and responsibility."

The five deans and vice presidents who have been fortunate enough to have Jane sitting at the front desk are Dr. Charles Walker, Dr. Harold Grutzmacher, Dr. Floyd Allison, Mr. Charles Hyde, and current Vice President Dr. Michael Mendelsohn.

UT has probably never had a more loyal supporter than Jane. As she puts it, "I'm a secretary. But I'm also a salesman. The product is this university. We are all a big family who should work together. We don't want any young person to leave UT without knowing we've cared." Certainly with Jane in the "family," this will be more than just an idealistic vision.

the best of both possible worlds

One of the most pertinent debates in higher education today is that of the traditional liberal arts program versus the trend towards preparation for membership in a highly specialized society.

Colleges and universities want to avoid either extreme. Overspecialization produces tunnel-visioned graduates who become mere cogs in the complex wheels of our civilization. However, the idealistic concept of the "Renaissance" person is no longer tenable in a world of computer technology, supersonic speeds, and highly specific job markets.

During this period of dynamic flux in higher education, the University of Tampa is making an introspective effort to salvage meaningful concepts from an old tradition while also meeting contemporary needs in a futuristic culture.

Specifically, the University has recently engaged in a dialogue over a major change in its curriculum and graduation requirements. The result is that on October 25, 1973, the faculty voted in a new curriculum designed to accommodate students' needs for both a liberal arts foundation and an in-depth training in a major area. As with any significant change, the new format was born out of many hours of spirited but rational debate.

Under the old Core Curriculum, 14 specified courses totaling 38 semester hours were required. The new, more flexible, "general curriculum distribution requirements" offer the student a choice of any three courses in each of three general areas: social sciences, natural sciences, humanities; plus Composition & Rhetoric.

Dr. Michael Mendelsohn, Vice President for Academic Affairs, has commended the new program, as can be seen from this passage in his October 31 Memorandum to the faculty:

The new plan gives (our students) a choice within guidelines. It provides flexibility, but not the complete freedom which a number of you felt was moving too far in this direction. We have now abandoned a certain bent toward a fairly paternalistic curriculum which is (in my opinion) out of date, out of style, and somewhat inappropriate in higher education. The new plan makes real demands upon the faculty, particularly in terms of good advising and careful structuring of majors.

Thus in the midst of change, the University remains a place where (in the words of John Henry Cardinal Newman) a student "profits by an intellectual tradition ... which guides him in his choice of subjects, and duly interprets for him those which he chooses."

forward fund over top for 4th year

For the fourth consecutive year, the annual Forward Fund of the University went over the top.

Chairman G. Pierce Wood announced that $495,107.23 had been raised as of December 31, including more than $50,000 in new gifts.

In its ninth year, the Forward Fund provides annual operating funds over and beyond tuition and fees. Participating are community individuals and corporations, alumni, parents, faculty and staff. The local community portion of the drive, which includes the campus effort, provided the margin of success, $427,881.23. Alumni, however, showed the greatest increase — 31 per cent, moving from $38,000 the previous year to $55,965 in 1973.

Conducted on a calendar year, the Forward Fund has its major drive in the community and on campus in the spring. Forward Fund '74 is already underway with Paul Le Blanc, Vice President of General Telephone, serving as Chairman; Joe Smiley, Vice President of Marine Bank, as Vice-Chairman; Stewart Bryan, President of the Tampa Tribune, as Advance Gifts Chairman; and James Ferman, Jr., of Ferman Chevrolet as Special Gifts Chairman. Goal for 1974 is $550,000.

1973-74 gifts and grants

Heading non-Forward Fund gifts during fiscal 1974-75 is a $100,000 grant from the Charles A. Frueauff Foundation of New York for student loans. Second largest gift to date is for $55,000 unrestricted from an anonymous Tampa donor. Tampa Jai Alai follows with $37,515.53 for scholarships.

$26,525 in audio-visual materials were donated by Col. and Mrs. John A. McNulty. The Dorothy Thomas Foundation contributed $25,000 for current Fund operations. $20,069.33 was given for science scholarships and for the Post Room by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Olson, and $19,786 by the Chiselers, Inc. for renovation. The Conn Foundation granted $20,000 for library books and current operations.

$15,567.57 was awarded by the Department of Health Education and Welfare for a veterans' program. Florida Downs contributed $13,129.48 for scholarships and the U.S. Steel Foundation $10,000 for MBA books.

Other gifts include $8,000 for lighting four minarets from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woods, Jr.; $7,200 for athletics and scholarships from Sidney and Jane Allen Foundation; $5,000 each from the Falk-Mandel Foundation and an anonymous donor for current operations; and $5,000 from P. O. Knight, Jr., for the Jerome Waterman Scholarship Fund.

A prominent UT alumnus, Circuit Judge Robert Edward Beach of St. Petersburg (class of 1955) gave the parting words of wisdom on "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" to 143 UT students at their December commencement. We welcome these new alumni, who represent 103 Bachelors of Science, 36 Bachelors of Arts, one Bachelor of Music, one Bachelor of Fine Arts, and two Associates of Arts. Congratulations to these young men and women, who commence to careers, graduate programs, travel, and whatever other dreams they have been nourishing these past years at the University of Tampa.

SPRING GAMES

Spartan football followers will have an opportunity to get a glimpse of the 1974 Spartans in the Annual Spring Game scheduled for April 5 at Tampa Stadium. Kick-off time will be 7:30 p.m.

Coach Dennis Fryzel has already stated that spring practice will begin March 5. Several scrimmages will be conducted during the 20 practice sessions. Like last spring, the coaching staff intends to hold one of its scrimmages in the Ispinnas County area.

Spartan football interest is spreading around Florida. Eighteen in-Florida football recruits this spring are sure to help keep UT's winning tradition.

UT achieves another "first" — a military library in a private college in the southeast United States. General Theodore J. Conway, U.S. Army Retired, and president of the Suncoast chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army, signs a proclamation November 6 establishing the library, as President B. D. Owens approves. The library, to be called the Florida Military Collection, is the brainchild of the Suncoast Chapter of AUSA, and is endorsed by Dr. Owens to encourage research in military subjects for peaceful purposes.

alumnus of the year: David C. Pinholster

University of Tampa's Alumnus of the Year honor was awarded to David C. Pinholster, resident manager of Pilot Life Insurance Company and a partner in the firm of Ebsary, Pinholster and Associates. Mr. Pinholster was honored for various services for the University: he acted as an advisor on wills and bequests for the UT Foundation which supports the UT Endowment Program; he spearheaded alumni activities to keep Spartan football on campus; and he also served as President of the Pi Kappa Phi Building Corporation which purchased the fraternity house for the active chapter. Congratulations to David Pinholster for a well-deserved honor.

The streak is now six.

That is the number of consecutive winning seasons produced by the UT football team. The Spartans made it an even half dozen this fall when they roared to an 8-3 record under rookie head coach Dennis Fryzel. Included among the victims were Toledo (35-25), Xavier (34-7), Akron (21-7), Villanova (17-10), Southern Illinois (25-23), Northern Michigan (20-0), West Texas State (28-6) and Rutgers (34-6).

Only Kansas State (17-0), UT-Chattanooga (25-24), and Vanderbilt (18-16) were able to turn the tables on the Red, Gold and Black.

There was no bowl game for the Spartans, but several Spartans did receive All-Southern Independent first team honors. Premier wide receiver Mark Wakefield, hard-hitting guard Darlee Nelson, slippery quarterback Fred Solomon, and hard-nosed middle guard Harry Smith all were selected for the first unit. It was the first time ever Tampa had placed that many individuals on the first team.

Always a man who sets his sights high, 1973

Alumni Loyalty Fund Chairman Paul Danahy announced earlier this year a $50,000 goal for alumni annual giving. "I believe our alumni need to be challenged before they respond with the type of support they are capable of providing to help the University of Tampa's forward march," said Danahy.

And respond they did! According to Edward Snee, Director of Development for Annual Giving and Alumni Relations, "it's simply phenomenal to think that four years ago alumni annual giving totaled $2,240, and in 1973 the $50,000 goal has been exceeded with a final gift total of $55,965.

Many records were broken during the 1973 drive.

Among them are:

- $55,965 in gifts, a 31% increase
- 16 members of the Minaret Society, requiring a minimum of $1,000 per year
- 103 members of the Century Club, each giving $100 or more
- 72 members of the Anniversary Club, giving $42 each, $1 for each year the University has been in operation
- 519 donors during the national Tel-o-thon

Advancement on the individual level is what makes a quality university. Two UT faculty and one administrator are ready to hang up their new doctoral plaques. Dr. Robert B. Gronlund, vice president for development and public relations, was honored with a Doctor of Letters degree from Thiel College in Greenville, Pennsylvania, November 16. Also this past winter Dr. Constance Rynder, Instructor of History, received her Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska; and Dr. George Boljer, Assistant Professor of History, completed his Ph.D. from Florida State University.

Dr. David M. Delo, who served as president of the University of Tampa from 1958-71 and as chancellor until last fall, has been named President Emeritus by the University's Board of Trustees. Dr. Delo is currently working on a history of the University with an emphasis on the Delo years. He will assist with special fund raising assignments, making periodic visits to the University from his home in Indian Rocks Beach.

HISTORY, TAX LETTER, MEMORIAL PACKETS AVAILABLE

A quarterly tax letter, memorial packets and a revision of the popular History of the Tampa Bay Hotel are now available to Muezzin readers.

First published in 1966, the history is replete with photographs of Plant Hall in its heyday as a hotel when it entertained Teddy Roosevelt, Clara Barton, Stephen Crane and other guests.

The revised version contains two new full-color photographs of Western Civilization class rooms, an introduction by President Owens and a short review of the University's recent accomplishments. Copies are available at $1.50.

The quarterly tax letter, Quid Pro Quo, contains estate planning information and hints on tax savings and finances. It is sent free on request.

The memorial packet is a method of memorializing or honoring loved ones through donations for books to the University library. Attractive book plates cite both the donor and the person to be remembered or honored. Packets also are free.
