SG Presidential candidates speak out on UT

Paul Duncan

Editor's Note: Both candidates for student government president were interviewed separately last week by staff writer Duncan White. Equal time was given to both candidates who were asked similar questions on issues of concern to the university.

By DUNCAN WHITE
Staff Writer

Paul Duncan, a junior at the University of Tampa and a political science major, is a candidate for the position of President in the upcoming Student Government elections.

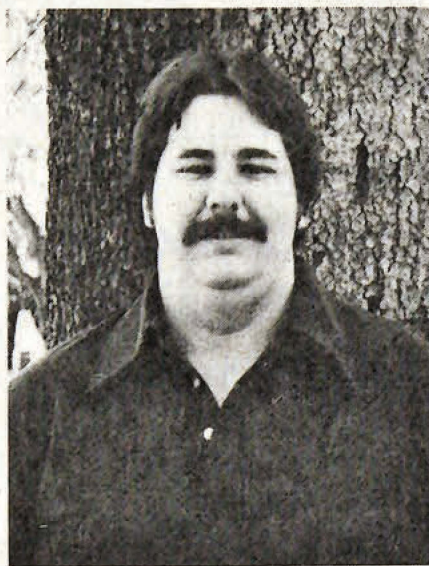

When Duncan was asked why he should be elected as President, he said, "To be honest, I feel I'm qualified. I've had a year and a half now of programming experience and a year and a half of governing experience, and I think that's a major strong point that the president should have. . . . I feel I have that balance necessary in order to be an effective president."

According to Duncan, as chairman and vice-chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, he worked to get the Academic Integrity Policy approved, the grading system possibly changed, and the library hours rescinded.

He said he has also assisted in programming by planning Homecoming, pool parties, and buses to Busch Gardens.

"Also, through my dealings with different organizations — fraternities and everything, I feel I have a very good idea of what the students want and what the students need," he said.

"A lot of people are unhappy and they don't know who to turn to in order to get their grievances or their problems aired or ironed out, and I feel I can be that person in Student Government.

"Student Government should be able to take care of them," Duncan said.

When he was asked what he would do if elected President, Duncan began his answer by addressing the problem of student apathy. "The main problem on this campus is lack of student involvement in the university itself," he said.

"We've got a student body that is quite apathetic partly due to Student Government's fault. We're not keeping them informed enough.

"Over half the students don't have the slightest notion of what's going on."

Duncan feels the key is to get students more involved and get them to have more pride in the university. "They come to classes and they just function," he said.

Kirby Ryan

By DUNCAN WHITE
Staff Writer

Kirby Ryan, a junior at the University of Tampa and a marine biology major, is a candidate for the position of President in the upcoming Student Government elections.

When Ryan was asked why he should be President, he said, "Over the past three years I believe that I've gained the respect of my fellow students along with the leadership ability to guide them in academic issues, governmental issues, and programming.

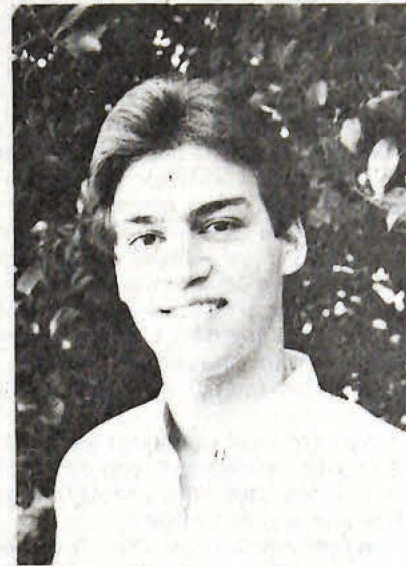

"I think I have the qualities, and I think I have the confidence of a lot of students. . . . I think I can do a good job," Ryan said.

Ryan currently holds the position of Vice-President of Student Government, and when asked to define the role of SG, he said, "I see ourselves first as the voice of the student." Ryan mentioned that the Collegium Committee is more like a direct line to the administration, while Student Government represents the student body.

"Our major role is two-fold. We are both a voice of the students and a programming body," said Ryan.

Referring to SG being a representative organization, he said, "Hopefully, collectively, we can go to the administration, as a whole, as the student body." Ryan admitted that this has not always been the case, because so often Student Government is referred to as a separate organization, rather than a group representing the student body at UT.

Programming, according to Ryan, is Student Government's other function, and Ryan feels scheduling events will be "a sticky issue next

"If the drinking age goes up to 21, we're going to have to come up with a lot of secondary alternative planning," Ryan said. He feels that Greek parties "are going to go out the window" should the drinking age in Florida be raised.

If such legislation is passed, Ryan predicts a lot of week-long events such as Phi Delt Frolics and the Delta Gammas' Anchor Splash will become popular, because events such as these are not centered around alcohol.

Ryan admits that while he is not a beer drinker, he is not opposed to using beer as an entertainment device. He added, "It gets people there. . . . But I do feel Student Government shouldn't have to have

Academic Warning Policy altered

By DAN SPRINGER
Asst. News Editor

A proposal that will change the academic warning and dismissal categories in the University of Tampa Catalog was unanimously passed at the March 9 Division Chairpersons' Meeting, according to Provost Ed Wilde.

The proposal, submitted by Dr. Robert Birrenkott, UT athletic director, changes the old standards, which read, for 0-27 hours attempted: 2.0 or better — good standing, 1.6 or better — academic warning, below 1.6 — academic dismissal, by adding a new category which reads, for 0-16 hours attempted: below 1.6 — academic warning; anything above 1.6 — good standing. The category for 17-27 hours attempted will remain the same as for 0-27 hours attempted in the current catalog.

According to Wilde, the change is "minor" and will affect a very small number of student athletes. The reason for the change, Wilde said, is that "fall athletes were being treated differently than spring athletes."

For instance, a freshman athlete participating in a fall sport is eligible to play regardless of the grades he earns for that fall semester. The new proposal gives spring sport freshman participants the same chance; that is, any GPA above 1.6 is now considered good standing, and an athlete earning above 1.6 is permitted to participate.

Previously, any freshman wanting to participate in a spring sport had to have earned a 2.0 or better.

According to Birrenkott, his proposal is "not just for student athletes." He said that any freshman can have a bad first semester and the proposal is "more fair to all students."

According to Wilde, the proposal is not lessening the academic standards for the athletes; it is merely changing the wording to allow more freshman to have an opportunity to participate in sports. Wilde said that standards previous to the change were "much more stringent than any NCAA rules." Birrenkott said UT academic policy is "tougher than 80 percent, probably 90 percent" of all colleges.

Birrenkott added that the proposal was not submitted because of the start of next year's new men's basketball program. "I had proposed this several times before we had basketball," he said, and explained that he researched the proposal by observing the eligibility and academic policies of other schools.

Students polish campus at Bay Day

By LUCY ROCES
Staff Writer

The University of Tampa's third annual "Bay Day" will be held on April 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. followed by a party from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Bay Day is a day when students participate in cleaning up the campus. The focus of Bay Day in past years was on the UT campus and such locations as the Courtney Campbell Causeway, West Kennedy Boulevard, and the Kennedy Bridge. This year emphasis will be placed only on improving the UT campus, according to coordinator Jon Bain. The areas to be cleaned are around the pool, Plant Park, and the block enclosing University West and the Pershing Rifles building.

Participants are to meet on the intramural field at 9 a.m. They will receive wrist bands to designate them as workers. In the past, Bay Day attracted over 300 volunteers.

Jon Bain, coordinator of Bay Day, commented, "We'd like to get out as many people as possible."

Following the cleanup, a party will be held at the swimming pool. The party will feature a disc jockey and refreshments will be served. Prizes will also be distributed and t-shirts provided for those who participate.

Editors selected for 1983-84 school year

The University Publications Committee selected editors and assistant editors for The Minaret, Moroccan and Quilt yesterday.

Jody Grombach, a junior writing major from Highland Park, IL, was elected Editor of The Minaret. Sophomore Dawn Clark was chosen Assistant Editor of the paper. Clark, of Sebastian, FL, is presently News Editor of The Minaret. Grombach currently holds the position of Assistant Editor.

Kirby Ryan was elected Editor of the Moroccan after serving three years as photography editor. Ryan is a junior bio-chemistry major from Chicago, IL.

Sophomore Adrienne Astoga, also a bio-chemistry major, will serve as assistant editor of the Moroccan.

Quilt, UT's literary magazine, will be edited by sophomore writing student Caryn Russell.

Housing prices need more corners cut

University of Tampa housing is currently undergoing contract changes designed to improve the efficiency of students signing up for rooms on campus, as outlined in the newsletter Keynotes which was recently distributed to all students. But along with these changes comes a significant increase in the prices that is shocking many students and scaring them off campus like victims of fumigation, searching for a new home.

The major advantage to on-campus housing is convenience. But is this convenience justified by the cost increase which amounts to up to 50 percent, in some cases, over the past two years?

Last year, housing prices were adjusted to equate the cost with a higher demand for certain types of housing (singles, apartment-style rooms, etc.). A single in Howell Hall, for instance, was priced at $600 per semester, per person, two years ago. Last year the price rose to $800. This year the single there costs $900 a semester—a 50 percent increase over two years.

Granted, there are definite advantages to living on campus. Many students don't have transportation (although city buses run consistently throughout the day), and living across the street from class is quite beneficial. The fellowship of a residence hall is very important to students as well, especially to underclassmen. Social activities planned through hall councils are other pluses to living on campus, while resident advisors and hall directors can provide more personal assistance to students than any landlord is able to offer. In addition, the student opting to live on campus is guaranteed furnishings.

However, for about the same price (in some instances, less), a student can live in an off-campus apartment, with many advantages over UT residence life.

Prices for local efficiencies and apartments in the immediate area (some within walking distance) run about $500 a semester per person. Utilities are not included, but for an extra $25 per month a person can have their own telephone and hot water.

A room (which is just that—four walls) for two in Rivershore Tower is $675 per person, whereas for about the same amount (again, sometimes less) one can get several rooms—two bedrooms, two bathrooms, a living room, full kitchen and dining area.

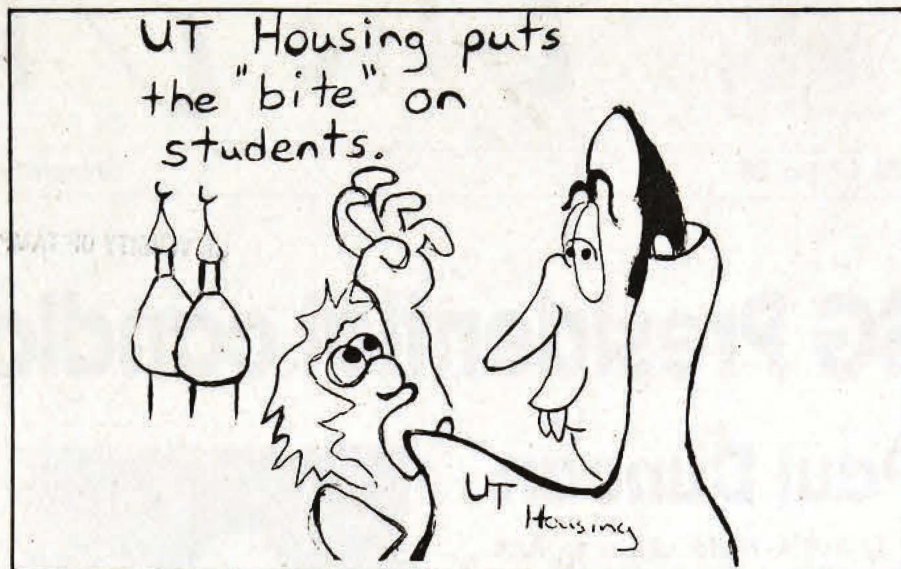

These apartments offer modern accommodations, landlords with responsive maintenance workers on contract, much more privacy, and extras such as pools, clubhouses and other recreational facilities.

Often times preparing meals in your own kitchen can be much less costly than participating in the school meal plan. This responsibility, added to others assumed by renting an apartment, can help students prepare for their inevitable plunge into the "real world" after college.

Some of the more expensive apartment complexes are still about the same prices as singles on campus, though based on double occupancy. One complex on the bay (two bedroom, two bath) starts at $800 per person per semester. The same size apartment can be found for as low as $600 per semester, and the average in the city is about $700.

It is obvious that a positive alternative exists for students not wishing to submit to the overpriced convenience of living on campus. Faced with a tuition increase of over 12 percent (for the third year in a row), meal plan charges rising 10 percent, and the decrease in financial aid due to federal budget cuts, students don't need the added pressure of on-campus housing hassles.

Editor's Note: All of the apartment prices have been calculated from monthly rent charges, and do not include energy costs or deposits, which often amount to one month's rent.

Commentary

Liberal stance on defense questioned

By MICHAEL DAVIS

In the wake of President Reagan's speech regarding American defense and national security, it seems as if the liberals feel that taking a hardline defense posture, in the guise of exploiting our technological capability in outer space, is somehow provocative, and, therefore, wrong.

Why?

In his speech, the president proposed that this nation embark upon an accelerated program of research and development of defense-oriented military hardware. Such hardware would include satellites capable of firing projectiles that would destroy incoming missiles, particle beam weapons that could do most anything, and other laser-type weapons.

These proposals represent a deviation from the Mutually Assured Destruction (MAD) theory of deterrence upon which America's nuclear policy has been based. They, instead, place the deterrence emphasis upon the desire to neutralize the enemies' offensive capabilities.

In short, the President wants to switch American defensive strategy from the fear of nuking everybody to rendering nukes ineffective.

But that's not what the liberals say. Anthony Lewis, one of the most vitriolic of the anti-Reagan crowd, calls this strategy, essentially, another escalation of tensions and a provocation to the Soviets. Senator Ted Kennedy, not known for his hawkish views, decried Reagan's "misleading red scare tactics and reckless Star Wars schemes..." (It should be noted that both of these men are very much pro-freeze).

It is puzzling that these men are so opposed to this new and highly appealing alternative for American defense, especially when Reagan calls for a plan that would not involve killing anybody.

The use of superior American technology in a new high-ground (space) offers a promising new impediment against Soviet aggression. This nation, with its scientific/military prowess, now has an opportunity to eliminate the threat of a nuclear attack by making nuclear weapons obsolete.

Why are the pro-freezers, like Lewis and Kennedy, so vehemently opposed to it?

"We need to make them feel wanted; we do need them," he said. "We have an untapped source of ideas, of people who want to get involved. They don't know how and we're not giving them the avenues to become involved," Duncan said.

He would like more student input on the budget, before the budget is drawn up, and he would also like increased student input on teachers who receive tenure. "There are a lot of students who feel some good professors are being let go, and there are some teachers who should not be teaching," he said.

One thing Duncan would like to do is get student leaders out at hall meetings and have them ask questions on various issues. Once students are interested, Duncan believes a "snowballing" effect will occur and an increasing amount of students will become active.

When Duncan was asked to define the role of Student Government, he said, "It's a programming board, but most schools have a programming board separate from Student Government."

Duncan said having a programming board existing as Student Government is a burden for the organization because of the added responsibility.

"We've been accused of just being a programming board, yet we're not getting the people to our events."

this," Ryan said. Next year he would like to see concentration on good food and good entertainment when events are planned.

According to Ryan, Student Government will not have the money to present a major concert on campus. He added that with a 12.2 percent rise in the tuition, students will be reluctant to pay an added $50 in activity fee for just such an event. "They already feel they're paying too much," he said.

Ryan would like to see the introduction of video next year to UT. He would like to initiate a "video network" where one movie a week would be shown on different days in each residence hall. Ryan said that the movies would be shown for free and the only charge would be the initial payment for the video equipment and film rental. He would also like to videotape students announcing upcoming events for continuous play near the cafeteria entrance.

If he were President, Ryan says he would concentrate on early planning, early action, early on, and initiating a definition of the jobs within Student Government.

Ryan feels that planning events early on is rough, especially during Orientation period because, he says, "People are rushing around."

He says that he'll be in Tampa over the summer, which, he feels, will make it easier for him to work from "home plate."

Ryan would like to arrange a set calendar of activities. As he described it, "It should be a set calendar. Harold's Club here. Oktoberfest here. Night at the Ritz here. If something comes up a month ahead of time, sure we can change it, but at least we gave it a shot. We would have had it printed on a calendar though, and kids can see that."

Another goal of Ryan's is "to communicate the student concerns early on and to take some action early on, rather than ask so much for opinion."

"I think we did a lot of opinion-asking this year and it sort of put us one step behind everybody," he said.

Ryan used the recent increase in tuition as an example, and explained, "By the time we found out about it, it was too late to change it. It had to go through as it was." He added, "I'd like to propose right off the bat that the students feel that any increase Girlie Knight, wife of Tampa attorney Peter Knight, died on Monday, March 21. The Knights presented the University of Tampa with a gift of over $700,000 in Exchange Bancorporation stock last December, the largest gift ever received by UT. The funds have been designated for the Peter O. and Girlie Knight Florida Scholars Program, which is "designated to attract academically superior students to UT," according to the March 24 issue of The University Insider.

Male students may not be required to verify that they have complied with draft registration requirements to receive financial aid, according to Education Department officials in an article in the March 24 issue of The Tampa Tribune.

Gary Jones, under secretary of education, told the House subcommittee on past secondary education that under revised regulations, financial aid applicants will merely have to state on their applications whether they have complied with registration requirements.

Pizza to go. Forty pizzas from Famous Ray's Pizza in Greenwich Village, New York, were recently purchased by one hundred forty-one Harlaxton College students at Lincolshire, England. Each student paid $5.20, which included delivery across 7,138 miles.

Student Frankie Idaball said the reason for this trip was the poor quality of the English pie. He said, "They serve it at our school. Very terrible. I can't use the words to describe it, really."

Vito Bolonga, manager of Famous Ray's, was "unfazed by the order," according to a recent Tampa Tribune article. He has reportedly sent 20-25 pizzas every month to customers from Florida to California.

Dorm fire. Thirty three students were injured in a dormitory fire at the University of Southern Colorado. Many students were forced to jump from their windows to escape the fire, and injuries included broken bones from the fall.

Damage was estimated at over $300,000 and arson is the suspected cause of the blaze. No arrests have been made.

Fake professor. It seems as though Anthony Williams pulled a fast one on Millersville and Shippensburg State Colleges (or at least he says he is Anthony Williams.)

The man apparently held teaching jobs at both colleges. At Millersville he was an economics professor, using the name Peter Pearse. At Shippensburg, he was computer science professor John Byron Hext, who taught both undergraduate and graduate courses.

He taught at the two schools on different days, commuting the 75 miles between the schools. His combined income from the two jobs was almost $60,000. His academic credentials have proved to be nonexistent.

Law Week offers insight to justice

By PATRICK BURKE
Staff Writer

The Legal Advocate's Office will be presenting "Law Week" from April 4 to April 7. Through this program of speakers, debates, and question and answer sessions held in University Union room 3, coordinator Judy Kopitnik, Student Legal Advocate, aims to give students some insight on the judicial system, both on- and off-campus.

According to Kopitnik, the Student Political Organization has helped her plan something of interest for everybody.

On Monday, April 4, a poll will be taken in the Plant Hall lobby asking whether or not the drinking age should be raised to 21. The results will be announced on Monday night, when, from 7-8:30 p.m., the question of raising the drinking age will be debated by Robert Haverkamp of Lifemark Recovery Center and a representative from the Florida Entertaining and Dining Association.

After the debate, the speakers will entertain questions from the audience. At 8:30 p.m. the movie In- herit the Wind will be shown, and free hot dogs and soda will be served.

The University of Tampa Police Department will hold a presentation on the police role on campus, Tuesday from 4-5 p.m. Members of the UTPD will be present for a question and answer session afterwards. From 7-9 p.m. the movie Twelve Angry Men will be shown, with free popcorn and soda.

A question and answer session on the Student Judicial System will be held on Wednesday from 6 to 7:30 p.m. On the panel will be Wayne Saives, Judicial System coordinator; Dr. Suzanne Nelson, acting Dean of Students; Dr. Robert Kerstein, faculty advisor of the Judicial System; and several student members of the Judicial Board. A mock trial will also be held in which the audience and the board will compare their decisions.

From 7-8 p.m. on Thursday, Traffic Court Judge Edward Ward will speak about Traffic Court and conduct a mock trial. To conclude the week, the movie And Justice for All will be shown from 8:30-10:30 p.m. Free beer and pizza will be served with the movie.

Baggage could bring Bahamas

By TRACEY TUCKER
Staff Writer

A grand prize of an all-expenses paid trip for two to the Bahamas will be awarded through a drawing at the campus wide Suitcase Party on April 2. The University of Tampa's Student Government is hosting this event from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the McNiff Center.

Traditionally a suitcase party involves attending the party in hopes of winning a trip, and being prepared to depart directly from the party for the trip. However, according to party coordinator Paul Duncan, "Because of the length of this trip (two days and two nights) if we sent people from the party on Saturday night they would miss school on Monday. We cannot be responsible for people missing class, therefore we have scheduled the trip for the following weekend."

The winner and his guest will depart from Tampa International Airport on Friday, April 8 and return Sunday, April 10.

Students attending the party with a suitcase will be entered into the raffle for the Bahama vacation. Students without luggage may attend the party, but will not be eligible to win the trip.

The winner of the trip will be determined through a reverse drawing; the last ticket drawn will be the winning ticket. The winner and a guest will receive round trip airfare, hotel accommodations, transportation from the airport to the hotel and back to the airport plus $200 spending money. Transportation to and from the Tampa airport must be arranged separately.

Several consolation prizes and a runner-up prize worth approximately $50, donated by Pepin Distributors, will also be presented during the drawing, according to Duncan. The drawing will begin at 10:30 p.m.

SPO wins UT College Bowl

By FRANK RUSSO
Asst. Features Editor

The final round of "College Bowl" was held last Friday at 4 p.m. in Plant Hall lobby. The competition was narrowed down to the Student Political Organization versus McKay Hall.

SPO won both rounds of the contest, defeating McKay 205-90 and 180-135. SPO Captain Paul Pollak and team members Jim Schiefelbein, Mike Davis, Lisa Humm, and Nicole Edwards will be playing Stetson University tomorrow.

Duncan would like to see the revival of the Promotions Committee, which collapsed earlier this year. According to Duncan, the committee had no time to promote and there were no ideas on how to use the committee.

Governing was cited as Student Government's other role, and Duncan repeated this year's accomplishments of the Academic Affairs Committee. "We've done some damn good stuff," he said.

When Duncan was asked to comment on communication here at UT, he said, "I think just to say that communication is adequate or inadequate is impossible. I think in certain areas it is adequate."

Duncan explained, "As far as Student Government and communicating with students; I feel it is inadequate at the present time, and that basically concerns all areas."

According to Duncan, events such as Coffee Houses have suffered from poor attendance. He feels it is time to exercise the promotional tactics he learned at a Baltimore Convention, same ideas which he says he is using, through his leadership in the Recreation and Activities Committee, to promote the upcoming Suitcase Party.

Concerning the current steps the Administration is taking towards what Duncan refers to as "censoring" Student Government activities, he said, "I don't see how the administration can justify telling us, 'you can't do that.'"

He admitted that if an activity was something "off the wall," he could understand.

Duncan feels that it is all a matter of choice, and referring to last year's showing of Emmanuelle, The Joys of a Woman, he said, "If there is a demand for, or a request for an X-rated movie to be on this campus, we will program it."

They're telling us how to spend the students' money. They're telling the students how to spend it, and I know that when I went to high school, I didn't want to be baby-sitted anymore. And I get the feeling from a lot of students that they don't want to be baby-sitted here. They don't want to be told what they can't do and what they can do," Duncan said.

Duncan feels that it is time to speak to the Dean of Students and the Provost about SG rights as a governing body.

Should Duncan be elected President, he said, "We have to tighten the Constitution a little bit. We have quite a few loopholes in there, as evidenced by some of the problems we've had." Duncan specifically mentioned problems with elections.

Duncan, a native of North Lyndhurst, N. Y., said, "My experiences here have been satisfying. I came down here not knowing what to expect."

He said he has found his academic experiences to be rewarding and enjoys the size of UT's campus. He feels the professors are amiable and said, "I've met a lot of really nice people, people who have been absolutely fantastic."

Duncan is currently serving as a Junior Senator. He is a former Sophomore Senator, and is currently a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

over eight percent is too high." He feels his proposal will let the administration know, right from the start, how the students feel, so it will be on their minds when the budget for next year is formulated.

Ryan commented that defining the jobs of the Senators will be another priority, if he is elected as President. He feels that there was a lot of flip-flopping of responsibilities because of resignations and a general unsuredness of a person's specific responsibilities.

On the current issue of censorship of Student Government, Ryan feels there is a need for affirmative action and alternate plans. "I think what we can do in order to fix the censorship thing is to go directly to the trustees, whether that's the board of trustees, the whole senior staff, whatever, and say, 'Listen, we as the students realize this is your university and we are here to live under your law, be it the Mission Statement. We as students though think it's time to change this a little bit.' Ryan emphasized that the key is affirmative action and alternate plans. He says he is not a radical student and does not favor radical actions.

When he was asked about communication at the university, Ryan said that he believes the lines of communication opened during the previous Student Government administration have been kept open this year. He added, "I think we've even improved a little bit with the trustees."

"But are they listening, and taking our advice?" Ryan asked. "That's another thing. That's going to be a value judgement and a quality call by each student." Ryan explained that a conflict of feelings has evolved with the trustees having their own expectations of what UT is going to be, while students are concerned about "the present" UT.

Referring to communication among students, Ryan mentioned the collapse of the Promotions Committee, and the events calendar that was published during the second semester.

"I don't think we took any great leaps forward in communication," he said.

He feels that students should have more say on who receives tenure, and student opinion should include more than questionnaires. "Everybody's so sick of the questionnaires," he said.

Ryan would like to see interviews conducted with a mixed batch of students, to weed out the teachers who are not doing their jobs. He stressed that students are the ones who have to sit in the class.

Ryan, a native of Chicago, said, "I think my experience at the University of Tampa has been more than pleasurable."

Ryan approves of the contact between professors and students at UT. He mentioned that his plans are to attend grad school when he graduates and said that if it was not for the encouragement of some professors at UT, he probably would not have thought to do that.

"It's such a close relationship between teachers and students. I wouldn't trade it for anything," he said.

While at UT, in addition to being Vice-President and Sophomore Senator, Ryan has also been Photography Editor for Moroccan, Chairman of the Recreation and Activities Committee, and a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Changes to improve Judicial System

By DR. SUZANNE NELSON,
acting Dean of Students

An ad hoc Judicial Review Task Force, appointed by the Acting Dean of Students, has been meeting for the past several months to propose much-needed changes in the Student Judicial System. Suggested changes are in the interest of increased efficiency and effectiveness, and to bring the system more in line with educational rather than punitive purposes.

The first recommendations of the Task Force have now been put forward and approved, according to Judicial Constitution requirements, by the Judicial Advisory Board and by the president of the University. These recommendations are as follows:

- (1) The Residence Hall Board of Standards and the Student Judicial Board have been combined to form the University Judicial Board. This Board will include eight students — six chosen in April for the following year, with two freshmen appointed in the Fall who will be nonvoting members until the Spring term after a chance to learn the system. As is now the case, a student will also serve as a nonvoting secretary to the Board, a paid position. Other justice positions are voluntary.

The approved new Board structure also includes one faculty and one staff person. It is the Review group's belief that the faculty and staff should have some representation in the judicial system, since disciplinary matters affect the entire University community; yet students should retain the clear majority since they are the peer constituency most involved. Also, involvement in the judicial system is regarded to be an invaluable educational experience for students involved as student justices or Board secretary.

- (2) The eight student justices will now all be chosen by a special Selection Committee rather than by general election. It is the Review group's concerted opinion that this change will encourage more of the University's qualified student leaders to become involved.

The Selection Committee will be comprised of the following persons: one Student Government representative (self-selected); the faculty and staff members on the outgoing Judicial Board (beginning next year); the Coordinator of the Judicial System; one senior member from each of the current Boards (next year two senior members from the outgoing University Judicial Board); one Resident Advisor (self-selected); the faculty advisor to the Judicial Board (this year only); and the Dean of Students.

An important addition to the process will be extensive information and training sessions for newly-appointed justices before they begin adjudicating cases.

- (3) Other changes in the structure include combining the current Administrative Board, Judicial Advisory Board, and Student Disciplinary Appeals Board into one expanded Administrative Board. This new group will retain the functions of the current Administrative Board, and assume the functions of the other two Boards. These combined functions consist of: (a) meeting when the University Judicial Board is not able to convene; (b) hearing special cases at the request of the Coordinator or of the student defendant; and (c) to hear appeals of cases adjudicated by the Coordinator or the University Judicial Board. It will also serve in an advisory capacity to the University Judicial Board. This change is primarily in the interest of efficiency in that it eliminates the unwieldy and infrequently used structure currently in existence.

- (4) The appeals procedure is slightly altered by these structural changes. In the new system, appeals move upward in a progression from the University Judicial Board or Coordinator to the Administrative Board; from there to an ad hoc Appeals Committee; with the "final court of appeal" being (as is now the case) the president of the University.

Students interested in applying for a judicial position should note the following qualifications:

- must be enrolled as a full-time student
- must have a minimum grade-point average of 2.30 as determined by the Registrar
- must be in good social standing
- must have previously attended the University of Tampa as a full-time student for one semester immediately preceding his/her expected term of office

Because of possible conflict of interest, residence hall RA's may not be University Judicial Board justices or secretaries; they may, however, be part of the Student Traffic Board (which is being retained as is).

Information and applications are now available in the Dean of Students Office, and are due back to that office by April 12. Interviews will be conducted, and appointments made and announced before the end of spring term.

The Judicial Review Task Force will continue to meet for the next month, at which time all recommended changes for next year should be complete. The revised Judicial System will be documented in a publication to be distributed to all students at the beginning of the 1983-84 school year. All changes will support the University policy statement on "Obligation of Membership in the University Community," which states:

The University of Tampa is a community of scholars devoted to higher learning. Members of the community — faculty, staff and students — have an obligation, both to themselves and to each other, to foster an atmosphere of mutual respect, and, therefore, of high regard for the life and property of the University. It is expected that all members of the community will share respect for law and adhere to the exemplary standards of conduct consistent with a community of scholars. It is further assumed that these high standards will be self-enforced and that in the event that they are not, the University may take action to protect its interests as a community. Review:

A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum

By RICHARD MANSFIELD
and JIM SCHIEFELBEIN

The Division of Fine Arts spring production of the musical comedy "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," opened last weekend to a thoroughly delighted crowd.

The play revolves around the exploits of a young slave named Pseudolus, whose goal of freedom leads to a number of outrageous and hilarious situations.

The UT production has something for everyone and is standout entertainment from every perspective. Most important of all is that "A Funny Thing..." is very funny. It explores the full range of comedy from satire to double-entendre. The performance flowed well, and the actors all seemed naturally relaxed in their roles.

Of particular note was the acting of sophomore Scott Leonard, who starred as Pseudolus. Leonard endeared himself to the audience and injected his character with wonderfully comical mannerisms.

Also excellent was Trent Mullins who portrayed Miles Gloriosus "slaughterer of thousands," Rome's most feared warrior, who is searching for his virgin bride. His performance seemed natural and added excitement to the story.

The rest all-UT cast of 19 students and alumni cast were marvelous and enthusiastically lively, especially the Proteans (Doug Ronk, Jim Day, and Greg Ingram) who had to play a uniquely versatile set of roles. The whores played by Garnethia Pettiford, Pam Perkins, Lori Brigant, Teresa Wingate, Tina Tulipano, and Leona Peszka oozed sensuality as they displayed their wares on stage. In fact, the entire cast played this sexual farce to the hilt, mocking traditional sex-roles in high style.

Gary Luter's direction was inspired and he really brought out the best from his performers.

Rounding out the production was a fantastic set design, wonderful musical numbers directed by David Isele, and the superb choreography of Pat Fenda.

Overall "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," is an outstanding production that is well balanced and funny. The laughter is non-stop.

More than a secretary

By JACKIE HENRY
Staff Writer

"I'm a real people person," said Jewel Harper, secretary of the University of Tampa. "I enjoy the interaction with people more than anything else; that's what makes coming to work so enjoyable."

Jewel Harper has been with the University since September of 1980 when she was hired as assistant secretary to the president. However, as of this past September she is now Secretary of the University.

Harper's duties are as diverse as taking care of the Board of Trustees and staffing the collegium. In both, she makes sure notes are taken and the minutes are kept. Harper is often referred to as the President's assistant because of her wide range of responsibilities, which also include the special projects and research she does for President Chesire.

"If Dr. Chesire has someone coming in that has some specific problem, I try to know all the facts beforehand," said Harper. "I also try to be sure the President knows what is going on around campus — like with the hot water situation in Howell Hall. There's no way he can know everything that goes on around this campus."

Harper's favorite aspect of her job is her interaction with people. "Everyday you see people you really care about and you try hard to do a good job because you feel like you've invested yourself in them."

Harper has a maternal instinct not only for her co-workers but also for the students who walk into her office with a problem. She describes herself as "genuinely interested in where their lives are going."

Harper, who had been in banking for four years, seeks to incorporate her financial background into the University's complex web of organization. She strives to see that the records are kept in a strict business way so that everything can be found easily and that all important information is stored systematically.

Because of the students, Harper, a native Tampan who has always been intrigued with the University, finds her experience at UT more relaxed than the rigid atmosphere of banking. In the future she hopes to have even more contact with the students.

"I would like to think that in our office we've created an atmosphere that is warm and friendly so that no one is afraid to come in here. While there always has to be that respect given a president, I would like to think there is a genuine warmth here students wouldn't feel apprehensive about."

And the winner is . . .

Well, the ballots are in and counted. I must say that while most of the results were easy to predict, other nominations defied all reason.

Several movies were nominated for Worst Picture and it was a very tight race. The Treasure of the 4 Crowns, the moronic 3-D misadventure that was a follow up to last year's super-flop Comin' at Ya, received a number of votes. The Entity, which I didn't think was half bad, was another one of your picks for the worst. But, the final total showed that received my inaugural Golden Minaret. Q, the film was your choice for the year's absolute stinker. I must say I couldn't have picked a worse flick to receive this year's overall Golden Minaret.

The nominees for Best Actress were rather surprising. In addition to Meryl Streep (Sophie's Choice) and Jessica Lange (Frances) I received votes that said, "none - I'm a sexist" and several votes for Dustin Hoffman. He got so many in fact, that he tied Meryl Streep for the first ever "Minnie" for Best Actress.

E.T. was a favorite of yours for Best Actor. Ben Kingsley, who portrayed Gandhi, and the irrepressible

Mr. Spock, Leonard Nimoy, were also the beneficiaries of your votes. But it was Dustin Hoffman who won the Minnie for Best Actor by a landslide - and this year, at least, he holds our award for both sides of his performance as Michael Dorsey/Dorothy Michaels in Tootsie.

And now it's time to announce your choice for Best Picture of the Year.

It seemed that many of you were fond of the summer's escapist festival of fine films. I received many nominations for Star Trek II, E.T. and Blade Runner. But the serious side was also well represented with votes for Gandhi and Sophie's Choice coming in.

In the end it was a space battle with the U.S.S. Enterprise and her crew fighting it out with an ugly little alien for the top spot. Finally the smoke cleared and it was E.T. squeaking by (or rather waddling) to win the "Minnie" for Best Picture.

And that's it for this year folks. I'd like to thank all of those who participated; I was really pleasantly surprised by the turnout.

Library for the birds?

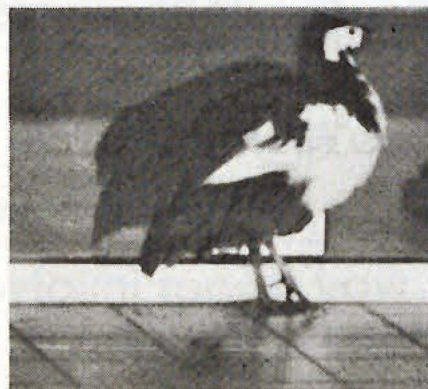

By RICHARD MANSFIELD
Staff Writer

Have you ever wondered about those exotic looking birds that hang around the Merle Kelce Library? They are Guinea fowl, domesticated birds of African heritage that walk around during the day and roost in the trees at night. They can easily be identified by their unique features and friendly behavior. They are fed cracked corn daily by Lydia Acosta, director of Merle Kelce Library, or members of her staff.

"We named them Harold and Henny Penny after the children's tale," said Acosta. "Harold has been here since last April and Henny was bought this February by Bob San Martin of Physical Plant. Harold was alone all day and needed a companion."

"Spring is their mating season and we hope they will have some chicks. We consider them our unofficial mascots; everybody knows we feed them and I try to keep an eye on them. Sometimes I see people chasing them around and the guys have gotten a little vicious and I ask them not to frighten them."

"Most people think Harold and Henny are pretty nice and don't bother them . . . You can usually see Harold and Henny Penny around the Merle Kelce Library everyday. The birds are harmless and though they probably would taste better than cafeteria food, I do not recommend eating them," Acosta added.

Earn college credit while touring Europe

By JODY GROMBACH
Asst. Editor

Why sit through another summer of blackboards and textbooks for those extra college credits when you can earn credit standing in front of the Eiffel Tower or touring the Vatican Museum?

Several academic programs are available to full- and part-time students through various European travel groups.

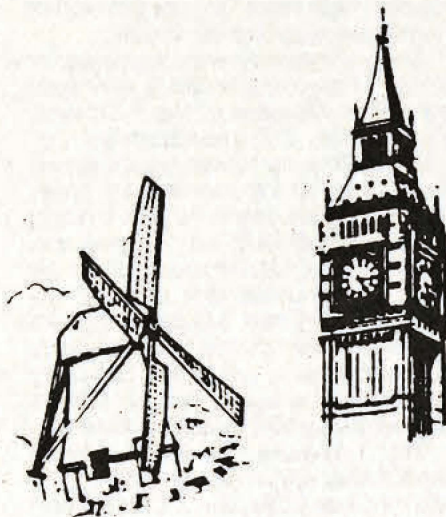

The European Cultural History Program is one such organization that offers college credit in the areas of history, art history, and music. Open to full- and part-time college students, or recent graduates, the program is designed to expose students to a maximum variety of cultural experiences in the key cultural centers of Europe.

Directors of this non-profit organization hold Ph.D.'s from leading American universities. Faculty is comprised of widely traveled, multi-lingual university professors of history, art history, and music who hold advanced degrees from leading American and European universities.

The ECHP package includes three trip options, all originating in Paris and extending to Germany, Italy, Greece, and the Middle East. Highlights include a twilight cruise on the Seine; a visit to the Louvre; a ballet at the German Opera in West Berlin; a tour of the Dachau Concentration Camp in Munich; a visit to the Roman Ruins; overnight cruises to the Greek Islands, and a tour of the Egyptian Museum in Cairo, containing the King Tut exhibit.

Students have a choice of three trips, beginning with a 42-day tour offering six college credit hours, for $1,395. The 54-day trip, offering seven credit hours, includes a tour of the Greek Islands for $1,595. For $1,995, students can earn 10 credit hours on a 70-day trip. Prices do not include transatlantic airfare and transportation costs from the end of the program to the departure city.

All credit programs spend at least six days in Paris, Vienna, and Florence to observe the cultural life of these great cities.

Departure dates are May 7, May 28, June 4, and June 18.

For a detailed itinerary of the various ECHP tours, write to Professor Emmanuel G. Fenz, Office of International Studies, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, Michigan, 48197.

The International Student Exchange, another European travel organization, offers three hours of college credit in Humanities through a program entitled "Great Museums of Europe." Sponsored by Wayne State University, Detroit, ISE offers a 35-day tour of 21 countries, including Spain, France, Italy, Greece, and Denmark.

Daily departures are available from New York from May 12 to July 26. The price of the trip ranges from $2,265 in May to $2,295 in June and July, including airfare. Tuition is an additional $199.

Highlights of the trip include a visit to the leaning tower of Pisa, the ruins of Pompeii, and a casino in Monte Carlo.

For more information about ISE college credit programs, write to International Student Exchange, Europa House, 802 W. Oregon, Urbana, Illinois, 61801.

These trips offer an exciting alternative to summer school, as well as an unforgettable experience in cultural travel. For more information on these and other trips, check various bulletin boards located in Plant Hall.

This is the first in a three-part series of articles about traveling in Europe. Next week, look for "Working in Europe."

The Army ROTC 2-year program trains you to become an officer for a modern organization—today's Army—which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard. An officer who is not only a leader of men, but a manager of money and materials as well.

That's why one of the things you'll learn in our 2-year program is management training skills.

Your training will start the summer after your sophomore year, at a six-week Army ROTC Basic Camp.

You'll earn over $600 for attending Basic Camp. And up to $1,000 for each of your last 2 years of Army ROTC.

But the biggest reward comes on graduation day. That's when you receive both a degree in your chosen major and a commission. And join the Army management team.

Profile: Mario PolitTennis keeps him on the moveBy MARCIA DICKS
Staff Writer

"I'd like to own a tennis club. And I hope I'm out on the courts playing when I'm 99-years-old." That is how Mario Polit envisions tennis in his future.

Presently, Polit is a first-year player on the University of Tampa tennis team, along with teammates Stephen Dachs, Darin Donohue, Stephen Epstein, James Partlowe, Andy Petrach, Peter Piccolomini and Robert Weisbord. The team is under the direction of Coach Rick Denfrund and Assistant Coach Gene Vash.

Polit is in his junior year at UT, pursuing dual majors in Business Management and Management Information Systems (MIS). "Originally I picked UT because of the biology program," stated Polit. "I switched over to business after my first year.

Then, in my sophomore year I decided business wasn't enough, so I picked up MIS, too," he added.

The combination of Polit's study and practice commitments results in a hectic schedule. "I know I don't have enough time," he said. "not everybody goes to class from 10 a.m. - noon, practices from 1 - 3 p.m., and goes to class again from 4 - 6 p.m. every day."

Although Polit has only been playing tennis about five years, he has been around tennis the majority of his life. "It is in the family. My father plays and my brother is a teaching pro," he said.

Though a native of Illinois, Polit did most of his tennis playing in South America. "My father is from Quito, Ecuador and he decided to go back home," explained Polit, "so I finished high school there and played most of my tennis at the Quito Tennis and Golf Club."

In the midst of a "losing" season, Polit is trying not to get discouraged. "Due to my personal lack of success it is hard to keep going sometimes," he admitted. One thing has kept him motivated— "tennis," he emphasized, "I like tennis!"

"Tennis is a very, very individualistic sport," he continued. "It is a team sport in a sense, but it is an individual sport more than anything else. I like that. When you win, there is only one person to congratulate and when you lose, there is only one person to look at."

Polit made no excuses for his thus far disappointing season. But Coach Denfrund and Polit agree on one thing: "The weather has been a problem," said Denfrund. Commented Polit, "The weather has been harsh on us. It has been just horrible for tennis. Practice and matches have been rained out. And we've played matches in monsoon weather."

"Today is another windy day. It is going to be hard to get anything done."

Aside from better weather and an improved record, Polit wishes the tennis team would get a little more support. "How many people know about the tennis team?" he asked.

According to Polit, although "We have a regular crowd," more spectators would be welcome at matches.

For the team, Polit thinks more money would be helpful. "This year the tennis team has gotten more than they have ever gotten before. We got new shoes, a sweater, and a shirt," he said. But, he added, money for "a scholarship program for tennis and the 'minor' sports would probably help."

Even though no scholarship money is available, Coach Denfrund is already recruiting for next season. Denfrund is searching for players who will do well "in tennis and academically" at UT.

Commenting on the season, Denfrund feels that UT's number one singles player, Steve Epstein, has been good competition for other schools. And optimistically, the coach is already looking forward to seeing how some of the returning team members fare in next season's competition.

According to Denfrund, the next matches are scheduled for today, Thursday, March 31, at Riverfront Park. The matches are part of the preliminary rounds for the eight schools of the Sunshine State Conference Tournament.

Sports JournalBy KATHY MacKENZIE
Asst. Sports EditorIntramurals

Recently the men's and women's wristwrestling champions were decided in intramural competition.

The men's housing division winners were Rivershore and Delo, who tied for first place. In the fraternities' division, the Phi Deltas and Pi Kappas also tied for first. In the women's housing, SANSEW and Smiley West were victorious and Delta Zeta triumphed in the sororities' division.

However, the golf competition has not taken place since the two teams, the Phi Deltas and AEPI's, have not scheduled a suitable time to play.

Racquetball, the only other sport scheduled for February, was cancelled since only two teams entered.

Presently, the men's softball and women's basketball contests are well under way. The tennis (men and women) and women's badminton competitions are on hold until more entries are received at the Intramural Department. The Superstar contest, similar to ABC-TV's version, is to get under way today and the men's basketball playoffs should be played this week. The Wild Bunch A and B and Howell have a shot at winning the housing division, and the Phi Deltas A and the Brother's Plus (the staff maintenance team) are contenders in the fraternities/organizations' division.

The final intramural competitions scheduled for the spring semester are swimming and diving, which will begin soon.

Baseball

The University of Tampa baseball team compiled a 3-2 record last week to bring their overall record to 17-5-1.

On March 21, UT lost 10-8 to Rutgers University; on March 22, the Spartans were defeated 3-1 by the University of Toledo; in conference play on March 23, 25 and 26, UT swept the Florida Institute of Technology 2-1, 4-2, and 12-4; and play versus Williams College on March 27 was rained out.

The Spartans face their arch-rival, Eckerd College, on April 1 in St. Petersburg and on April 2 at UT's Sam Bailey Field. Eckerd's overall record currently stands at 23-1.

In matches next week, UT will meet Calvin College on April 4, and Florida Southern on April 6, 8 and 9.

PERSONALS

We did not do it for the filthy lucre. We did it for the honor, the glory, and the legend of the Legion of Doom. McKay, you were most worthy adversaries. You proved that there was indeed a ram among the sheep.

Captain Cold, Braniac, Sinestro & The Huntress T.H.R.U.S.H. congratulates the Legion on its removal of undesirables and subjugation of humanity.

Rebels BEWARE: There are only 56 more days until The Empire has final victory at hand.

Congratulations Bill! See you at the "shore" next year! Twinkles

Joaners & Jacks—

The apartment supply is dwindling! Let's get wicked messed up and eat carrots and Mrs. Joaners cookies.

Love You,

OΔK

In an effort to introduce the new members of the University's faculty to the school body, ODK is sponsoring an informal lecture series that will feature the new professors individually. Each participant will present an informal talk on a part of his or her doctoral dissertation, on research that he or she has recently been working on, or simply on a topic of interest that is related to his or her field. Light refreshments will be served afterwards, and an opportunity will be provided for those wishing to talk with the speakers.

The last lecture in the series will be given on Tuesday, April 5, at 4:00 p.m. and features Dr. Jo Ann Valenti from the English area of the Division of Humanities. Dr. Valenti's topic for lecture will be "Application of Communication Theory and Information Strategies: Costa Rica and Natural Resource Issues." The lecture will be held in room 325 of Plant Hall.

ΣΑΕ

Sigma Alpha Epsilon brothers Howie Williams, Mike Miley, Jeff Fortenbacher and Bill Fountain were selected RAs for the 1983-84 school year. The brothers opened their softball season this week against the Pershing Rifles and the Phi Delts. This Friday is the April Pool's Party.

The brothers of the week are John Victor, Rob Weisbord and Howie Williams.

ΘΧ

The brothers of Theta Chi initiated; Ann Jordon, Maria Miller, Monica Rogers, Ute Ruocco, Linda Shannon, Dot Cameron, Cindy Foster, Diane Hebel, Denise Shields, Susan Walsh, Lisa Lewis, Kim Palladino, Donna Babian and Mary Ionnona, as little sisters. Leslie Ann Steward and Ronnie Honig were honored as Daughters of the Crossed Swords, a nationally recognized society of Theta Chi.

ΦΔΘ

The brothers of Phi Delta Theta would like to announce a successful week of Frolics which ended with a well attended M*A*S*H Bash last Friday evening.

Frolics week went very well with the exception of the rain on Sunday. Jeff Rubel and Rich Bernabei are responsible for making it such a success. Half of all monies taken in from the Frolics will be donated to charity.

In the works for this week is a Cancer Society Road Block, participation at Bay Day and a tentative social at the causeway with the Delta Zeta Sorority. The brothers are planning a Founders' Day banquet scheduled for April 19 at Valencia Gardens.

The Frolics Awards Assembly will be held in the Rat on Tuesday, April 5 at 9 p.m. Trophies, t-shirts, mugs and other awards will be distributed at this time. Results of the womens events will also be made public.

Kiss Me Kate auditions to be held

Auditions for the Tampa Players' production of the Cole Porter musical KISS ME, KATE are being held at the David Falk Theatre on Sunday, April 17, from 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. University of Tampa students may earn academic credit by successfully auditioning and performing a role or by working behind the scenes on this production. KISS ME, KATE is scheduled to play at the David Falk Theatre June 2 through June 19.

Any students interested in KISS ME, KATE should contact Dr. Gary Luter or call the Tampa Players at 877-2684 for further information.

Judicial system holds mock hearing

As part of the Law Awareness Week (April 4-7) on campus, the Student Judicial System will hold a mock hearing with audience participation. A fictitious but realistic case will be acted out complete with student justices, a defendant, person(s) bringing charges, and witnesses.

The hearing will be held on Wednesday, April 6, from 6-7:30 p.m. in Room 3 of the Union.

Details about the fictitious case will be distributed beforehand in student mailboxes. At the hearing, copies of all documents pertinent to the case will be handed out. When it is time to decide guilt or innocence, and to determine sanctions (if any), the audience will be asked to vote. The student justices will make their decisions as if the case were a real one.

The mock hearing is intended to be informative and to increase students' awareness of an important part of their campus self-governance.

Seminole bike race to be held

More than $5000 in prize money will be awarded to winners at the 1983 Red Lobster Criterium Bicycle Race on Sunday, April 10, at the Seminole mall, located on 74th Ave. N. and 117th St. in Seminole. Registration will run from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. For further info. call 971-5956 or 254-1846.

AUSA salutes Chairborne Rangers

Last weekend the Spartan company of the Association of the United States Army assisted the Chairborne Rangers in a salute to the Army. On Saturday afternoon, members attended the Suncoast Chapter's Membership Dinner. Gen. Don Starry attended the dinner as the evening's guest speaker. Aside from the dinner, sky diving, repelling, and hand to hand combat demonstrations were performed.

Mass of the Lord's Supper held today

The mass of the Lord's Supper (the Holy Thursday mass) will be at 5:05 p.m. today in the Dome Room. The Holy Thursday collection is traditionally given to the poor. For this collection, an alternative way of giving is offered. Clean, used or unused clothes will be accepted which, in turn, will be given to the St. Vincent dePaul Society for distribution.

The Good Friday mass tomorrow will also be at 5:05 p.m. in the Dome Room. On Saturday evening, the Easter Vigil mass will be at 9 p.m. in the Dome Room. Immediately following this mass the Newman Club will serve an Easter treat. The Easter Sunday mass will be at 6 p.m. in the Dome Room.

Presidential debate scheduled

The Student Political Organization is sponsoring a Student Government Presidential election debate between Paul Duncan and Kirby Ryan on Thursday, March 31. The debate will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Room 220 of Plant Hall. The debate will be structured with a moderator and a panel of three. Questions are welcome and audience participation encouraged.
