University of Tampa Magazine

Vol. 41 No. 3

The "Muezzin" is published six times a year by the University of Tampa, 401 West Kennedy Boulevard, Tampa, Florida 33606, with one issue in November, one in January, one in February, one in May, one in July and one in August. Second class postage paid at Tampa, Florida.

Notice of address change should be directed to the University of Tampa Alumni Office, Room 344, Plant Hall. When requesting an address change, please enclose the old address label or print your old address exactly as it appeared on the label.

Our name "The Muezzin" originated in the religion of Islam founded by the Prophet Mohammed in the early centuries after Christ and practiced primarily in middle eastern countries. The muezzin is the official who proclaims the azan (call to public worship) to which the Muslims respond with set phrases. The summoning is performed by the voice of the muezzin as he stands at the door or at the side of a small mosque (temple) or in the minaret of a large one. Today the muezzin still sounds the call to worship, but in some modernized mosques his voice is placed upon electronic recordings which are amplified to echo the azan throughout the countryside. The University of Tampa "Muezzin" publication performs a similar function in that it broadcasts the call for higher education among its readers. The name was inspired by Plant Hall's 13 Moorish style minarets, gleaming above trees and buildings as a landmark of learning in the heart of the city of Tampa.

We're a Management Model

The Academy of Management has approved an historic arrangement with the University of Tampa for development of a pilot program to serve as a guide to academic management in higher education.

The Academy, the nation's apex organization in professional management, will direct a team of top resource people from a variety of specialty areas to the task of making the University of Tampa a model of management for private colleges and universities to follow.

Academy President William Wolf, New York State School of Industrial Relations, Cornell University, and University of Tampa President B. D. Owens, issued a joint announcement of the pilot project with this explanation:

"The Carnegie Commission has predicted 200 to 300 private institutions of higher learning in the United States will go out of business during the 1970's. The basic reason is poor management. We are optimistic that by accenting the strengths, and picking apart the weaknesses of college management, the Academy - University of Tampa project can help muffle the death knell for many of these institutions."

The announcement came after formal approval by the Board of Governors, which opened the Academy's 31st annual meeting at the Royal Coach Inn in Tampa.

The Academy, whose 1,600-membership list is like a "Who's Who in Management" from the nation's top colleges and universities, met here recently with about one-third its membership in attendance.

Academy board member Dr. Robert Henderson, conducting early liaison between the University and the Academy, said the project will be the first "nationally organized study of academic management."

Tampa is interested in studying the feasibility of a computerized total management information system, which would be made available to other institutions.

So far, response for the project from other educational organizations has been "very enthusiastic," according to Dr. Owens, who conceived the idea and submitted a proposal to the Academy.

Seed money for the program is being provided by the Academy and matched by the University of Tampa, with hopes of foundation support later.

The Academy is spokesman for professional managers in this country. It publishes The Academy of Management Journal, the nation's only professional journal in management.

Over its 31-year history the Academy has been an innovative producer of new ideas and techniques in management. Its members are professional educators involved in teaching, researching and promulgating the theory and science of management.

Its members frequently are retained in an advisory capacity by governmental agencies, foundations and such blue-chip corporations as IBM, General Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

UT Goes To Europe

Steps to improve international programs have been taken with the establishment of a University of Tampa European office in West Germany.

UT President B. D. Owens said the office will be headed by Dwight L. Lorenz, a 1971 UT graduate who is now setting up a European recruiting and services operation in West Germany.

Long-range goals involve course offerings in Europe, a European alumni chapter and the recruiting of foreign students for study on the Tampa campus.

President Owens said, "The program offers tremendous possibilities for the University. We visualize the exchange of students and professors with European universities and the attraction of exceptional international students to our campus."

Initially Lorenz will provide guidance and counseling service to prospective students, addressing civilian and military groups and individuals about the educational opportunities at UT.

Military men will be encouraged to attend the University of Tampa as Bootstrap students or as civilians under the GI Bill of Rights upon release from the service.

The University of Tampa lists a substantial number of alumni in Europe among its former Bootstrap students. Lorenz hopes to establish UT's first international alumni chapter.

A Powerful Team

Staunch support for a stronger operating team at the University of Tampa has been added this fall in athletics, administration and academics.

In one of the biggest sports coups of the year the University plucked Army Col. A. J. (Gus) Dielens, Jr., from his post as West Point athletics director for the same spot here.

Elated about Dielens' decision to accept the Tampa post, UT President B. D. Owens called the appointment "forward thinking on the part of the University." He said it was in keeping with the University's goal of "seeking out persons of high national prominence and capability for key positions."

Administrative and academic force was heightened by the appointment of Dr. Michael J. Mendelsohn, widely known U.S. Air Force Academy teacher-administrator, as vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculties. Dr. Mendelsohn will assume the post August 1, 1972.

Considered one of the most outstanding educators in the nation, the 40-year-old Cleveland native is chairman of advanced courses in the Department of English and a charter member of the faculty at the Colorado Springs academy. He is a specialist in modern drama and world dramatic literature.

Delighted at Dr. Mendelsohn's decision to join the UT management team, President Owens stated, "He is the type of outstanding educator we have sought to carry out the high quality academic program we plan for the University. He was the top choice of faculty, staff and students."

The administrative staff received a boost of extra strength with the appointment of Dr. Edward H. Ward, who is working for greater relevance between University and community as director of Continuing Education, and Printy Arthur, who has been named director for Development of Income, Trust and Bequests. Both Dr. Ward and Arthur come to the University from Bowling Green, Ohio State University.

In addition to his executive duties Dr. Ward will serve as assistant professor of business and economics. He holds the Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from the University of Michigan with "the student and the law" as his area of expertise.

A serious bid for academic advancement is reflected in the fall appointments of an associate dean of faculties and 14 new faculty members, eight of whom hold doctorate degrees. Charles L. Hyde, former acting chairman of the Business and Economics Department, holds the dean's position as supervisor for admissions, counseling and registration.

New faculty members include Dr. William Worobey of Chicago, associate professor of mathematics; Dr. Francis X. Gillen of New York; associate professor of English; Dr. Joan R. Foster, of New York, Department of Psychology; Dr. Joe F. Decker of Albertville, Ala., assistant professor of history; Dr. Michael Hugh Truscott of Lafayette, La., assistant professors of business and economics; Dr. Edwin F. Strother of Sumter, S.C., and Dr. Julius Lanlinais of Baton Rouge, La., teachers of physics; Dr. James Jay Dinsmore of Gainesville and Dr. Stephen E. Monaloy of Norman, Oklahoma, assistant professors of biology.

New on the faculty this year are several UT alumni. They are Mrs. Patricia Scott Jackson, '49, physical education instructor; Ronald W. Rosenberry, '69, physical education instructor, and Phillip Gregg Holleman, '70, music instructor.

Gary N. LaPorte, who last year helped run the UT Speech and Hearing Clinic, which opened last February, has been certified by the American Speech and Hearing Association and returns this fall as assistant professor of speech.

Education for the Community

Serving the community with timely, relevant non-credit education courses is the chief objective of the Continuing Education Department. Dr. Edward H. Ward, director, announces the following highlights.

Family groups are encouraged to enroll in a five-week, 30-hour scuba diving course. J. Edward Uditis of the UT faculty, who is a member of the Hillsborough County Board of Public Instruction, is instructor for the poolside classes meeting Tuesdays or Thursdays, 7 to 9 p.m.

Upon successful completion of the course students receive certification from the National Association of Underwater Instructors. The scuba diving course is open to anyone 15 years of age or older.

A course aimed at helping the layman investor make the most of owning common stock is being instructed by Alvin F. Terry, UT instructor in business and economics. The program deals with characteristics of common stocks which permit them to increase their earnings per share at an annual rate of 14 to 16 per cent.

Investment classes meet one night a week, 7 to 9 p.m. in Seminar Room 3 of Merl Kelce Library. Persons enrolling in the course should indicate the night most convenient for them, and new classes will be started on the most popular nights, Dr. Ward said.

Two non-credit classes in the principles and practices of real estate are being offered for a 13-week period. Both are taught by G. Lawrence Roberts, Jr., assistant professor of economics and business. Each class is offered one evening a week, Tuesday or Thursday, 7 to 9 p.m., in Room 226 of Plant Hall. Successful completion qualifies the student to take the state board examination for registration as a real estate salesman.

For registration details regarding any continuing education course, contact Mrs. Inez B. Eichholz, Office of Continuing Education, phone 253-8861, Ext. 223.

Madame Petrova admires a fan.

What's In a Name

Indicating a broader base of operation, the extra-curricular activity center on the University of Tampa campus has been renamed University Union.

President B. D. Owens approved the name change from Student Center to show increased usage and strengthened unity within the University family — students, faculty, staff, friends and alumni, all users of the Union.

Of split level construction the air-conditioned red brick building has 36,341 square feet under roof. The first floor houses a cafeteria and snack bar, modern kitchens, book store, student lounge and glass enclosed dining area overlooking the Hillsborough River.

The $605,000 center was formally dedicated May 19, 1963. In 1968, expenditure of an additional $90,000 for the River Room resulted in the enclosure, furnishing and air-conditioning of two patios to accommodate increased needs of the growing University.

The second floor houses game rooms, meeting rooms and offices for Bob Lovely, the director of the Union, and for student government officers.

Last year alone, informal receptions for such notables as Dr. Joseph Rhine of extra-sensory perception fame, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, consumer advocate Ralph Nader and playwright Rod Serling, introduced members of the community to the hospitality of the International Room, a gift of the Tampa Rotary Club.

Speakers of equally high calibre will be entertained there in the years to come as the University Union lives up to its name.

Ovation

Madame Olga Petrova may be 87, but her gale-force spirit is well-preserved. She demonstrated some of it on the Falk stage last month by reading lines from her own highly controversial play, Hurricane.

Veteran champion of causes, Madame Petrova appeared here after an absence of many decades from the legitimate stage to found a scholarship in drama at the University of Tampa.

A British subject once known as Muriel Harding, Madame Petrova has acted in more than 20 silent films, seven of which she wrote, and has lectured and authored short stories, plays and an autobiography which editor and critic H. L. Mencken called "the best I have ever read."

Following closely in Madame Petrova's wake this month were two more visiting professional performers, less celebrated but well-loved by the entire University of Tampa family and local citizens. Jack and Sally Jenkins, UT alumni, premiered a national college tour of the Broadway musical, I Do! I Do! before an SRO crowd at McKay Auditorium. With proceeds going for academic scholarships the Jenkins performance was co-sponsored by the University and Tampa Alpha Chapter of the National Alumni Association.

Theatre offerings for the current season within the University's own Student Drama Department bear watching. Antigone, a Greek tragedy by Sophocles, was selected as the opener slated for late October.

Other Drama Department productions this year will include The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail, to be staged December 1-4; Big Julie, a musical spoof with book by Falk Theatre Director Vince Petti to be presented during matinees March 7-10, and Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, scheduled for evenings March 8-11.

All performances are held at Falk Theatre.

Saluting the Cities

The University of Tampa salutes Brandon, MacDill Air Force Base, Lakeland, Clearwater and Sarasota at special city night programs during the current football season.

Fans from those areas are bused to Tampa Stadium for the football game during their "night" through a special package deal that includes reserved seat tickets on the 40-yard line, bus transportation, a badge and program.

Brandon's special night was slated for the opening game, September 18, when the Spartans played host to the tough Louisiana Tech Bulldogs from Ruston, Louisiana.

Other special nights include MacDill, Oct. 2, Youngstown State game; Lakeland, Oct. 9, Dayton; Clearwater, Oct. 23, Villanova, and Sarasota, Nov. 6, Mississippi.

During the football games the cities are recognized with announcements over the public address system and WFLA Radio which broadcasts the Spartan games.

This is the second year the University of Tampa has scheduled city night programs. They were inaugurated by Robert B. Gronlund, vice president for development and public relations, and are being coordinated by Ed Snee, director of development for annual giving.

Our Outstanding Educators

Six University of Tampa professors have been chosen "outstanding Educators of America for 1971" and will be featured in a national awards volume by that name.

Dr. V. Gilbert Beers, director of the 1971 edition of Outstanding Educators of America, published in Chicago, said the University of Tampa faculty members were being honored for their "exceptional academic accomplishments and contributions".

University of Tampa's outstanding educators include Dr. James W. Covington, professor of history and political science and director of the senior seminar; Dr. Willis J. Dunn, professor of sociology and director of guidance and placement; Dr. Stephen L. Speronis, professor of history and political science and assistant to the chancellor; Joe Testa-Secca, associate professor of art and artist-in-residence, and Dr. Curtis A. Gilgash, chairman of the Department of Psychology.

The sixth University of Tampa educator is Dr. C. J. Ho who retired last May as professor of psychology.

Selection of the educators was based on classroom and research contributions, administrative abilities, civic service and professional recognition.

Enrollment Jumps

Fall enrollment stands at approximately 2,300 full-time equivalent students, 250 over the goal of 2,050, according to Registrar Eugene Cropsey. Total number of persons taking courses on the main campus including full-time, part-time and military students tops 2,450.

Final figures from last fall, including late registrations and the MacDill Center, were 2,265 full-time equivalent, 2,122 full-time students and 2,424 total enrollment.

Scholarship Boom

It took 40 years for the University of Tampa to graduate a student summa cum laude, and then — boom — the number of summas among the alumni ranks doubled in three months.

The University's first summa cum laude, Francis Zygmuntowicz, Arlington, Va., was graduated in May. The next summa graduate was Capt. Robert J. Drecksage, who received his degree in August. Both were Air Force men attending the University under Bootstrap, a military degree completion program.

There's a third summa cum laude at the University of Tampa, and, ironically, he is an ex-Air Force man, too. He is President B. D. Owens, who was graduated with straight A's from Northwest Missouri State College.

Verification of grades after summer commencement has shown that nearly 14 per cent of the graduating class earned academic honors.

A vote of confidence valued in dollars at $30,620 has been cast for the University's outstanding students during 1971-72 donors for scholarship funds. Contributions to the University through individual charities, the Forward Fund, Florida Downs, Tampa Greyhound Track and the Jai Alai Fronton are helping 63 deserving students through college here. Scholarship recipients represent seven states and two foreign countries.

Catalyst

Q. How would you describe your management philosophy? Conservative? Liberal? Middle of the road?

A. An administrative philosophy can't be described in those terms, because each issue has its own set of ramifications. Basically, there is a set of values, morals and commitments which goes into each decision so that all depends on the frame of reference in which one views conservative, liberal or middle of the road. I have found that some things people here in Tampa consider quite liberal are by the same set of standards called conservative elsewhere. For example, open visitation in dormitories. People here consider that liberal, but in other parts of the country this is not the case.

Q. What academic goals have you set for the University and what programs are being implemented?

A. Academically, we want the University of Tampa to distinguish itself as one of the finest independent private liberal arts universities in the country. Now that doesn't mean we take only the top two per cent of high school graduating classes. It means we continue to work toward bringing in the top, say, 40 or 50 per cent of high school classes. I think we have good academic standards, partly because we have a large proportion of Bootstrap students and others who have already gone to a junior college. Most of these are highly motivated students who present a challenge to incoming freshmen.

Q. What about new academic programs?

A. We are going to have several new programs. These will not be along the lines of department, but they will be centers whereby we will be able to draw from faculties for several disciplines. We are contemplating development of centers of study for banking, communications and urban affairs.

Q. What are your feelings regarding the roles of sports and other extra curricular activities?

A. Well, I think to describe that you have to look at the total educational process. The portion of time spent in the classroom is a very small part of total education. Experiences, involvement, travel — things of this nature — make up the total education. These aspects, including the athletic program, are important pieces of the educational process. Also, even though there are those who would like to see us do away with intercollegiate athletics, particularly football, we have to remember that football gives us a great deal of national recognition. It gives us camaraderie with the students, and we have a high proportion of our student body going to watch the games, probably a higher proportion than most other institutions.

Q. Why in your opinion do more of our students attend the games?

A. Interest in the University. The kind of student we attract to the University of Tampa. Most of them come from upper middle-income families. They come from metropolitan areas where they have had opportunities to see major universities play football. They have participated in tennis or golf or other sports of this sort. Even those who a few years ago didn't like intercollegiate athletics too much have interest in seeing their teams win.

Q. What are your plans for development of communications within the University and between the University and the community?

A. One thing is the Minaret going weekly. Another is a newsletter that will be patterned after the Kiplinger letter and the W. Howard Chase Management of Change newsletter so that we will have a quick piece of information that will go out monthly, possibly more frequently, if needed. Also, the publications division of the University is being geared up to provide more creative pieces of communication for the institution in various activities. More frequent meetings with faculty, departmental chairmen and the administrative staff committee which was formed this year. The Operating Committee (vice presidents) meets weekly.

Q. What immediate physical changes have you planned within the campus complex and at Barritt House?

A. Barritt House has had a bit of a face lifting just to reflect a family with two fast moving children. Since our living pattern is somewhat different from the Delos', some minor changes were necessary. Of course, you see some changes in the building here (Plant Hall) — second and third floor carpeting and redecorating; renovations in the President's office designed to carry forward the tone set by Fletcher Lounge. I would like to see that tone carried throughout the institution. We are going to establish, or revise, the Master Plan for the University, and this will reflect an aesthetic pattern, one in which anything we do will enhance the University, this building (Plant Hall) and the image of the University.

Q. Do you have anything to say about the fairgrounds?

A. Yes. We are anticipating going before the City Council with our proposal in the next few weeks. The State of Florida already has passed legislation which indicates that to the extent that the City does not use the land, space must come to the University of Tampa. So we are projecting toward acquisition of the fairgrounds.

Q. If and when we should get this land, what is being discussed regarding facilities there in the beginning?

A. The facilities we would build? I don't know. It's too early to tell. This will depend upon the Master Plan and future directions. The communications centers will certainly go there. WEDU Television hopefully will move over there.

Q. Do you plan any major changes in operational procedures? This might be a good point to discuss the Model Management Program.

A. Yes. Hopefully, we will be able to be a model institution for higher education, particularly in the private sector. Because many private universities have fallen into difficulty financially, it is really essential that we become better managed, more effective than the average institution. Otherwise we will not be able to respond to the needs of the 1970's to the limits of our capabilities.

President Owens raps with students.

Q. What immediate developments do you anticipate in financing and budgeting?

A. I think we will reach a point by 1973, possibly even by 1972, when we can no longer depend upon a high proportion of student fees funding the University's programs as it has in the past. Normally, a university would not anticipate more than 60 per cent of its revenues coming from student fees and tuition. The University of Tampa has functioned historically at the rate of 85 and 90 per cent, and we are rapidly moving toward the point when we cannot afford to do that, if we are to remain a viable university. Our programs, particularly fund raising and friend raising, must be more aggressive. We have to upgrade our financial stability. The University has always operated in the black, and we expect to continue to do so. However, we do have new commitments to make. We must have more realistic academic programs to meet the decade of the 1970's. We have to be more flexible. All these things incur additional costs. We are gearing up ways to develop programs with a profit-center aspect rather than non-profit. Take, for example, our Continuing Education Program. This program is geared on a profit-center kind of philosophy, which means if there is an excess of revenues over expenditures, these funds go into aiding other segments of the University.

Q. What in your opinion are the University's most pressing problems, and how will you go about finding solutions?

A. The most pressing is probably the fairgrounds and acquiring the space needed over the next ten years. Also, I think an important thing we have to resolve is the Master Plan so that we know where we are going. Another is being able to attract the number of students we need to reach our optimum utilization of resources such as faculty, existing space and money. We are already getting a great deal of mileage out of every dollar, probably more than any other university in the country. But there is room for improvement. For example, it appeared that we had a big parking problem. We do have a parking problem, but only at certain times of the day. By rescheduling some of the classes we can avoid spending a great deal more money to build additional parking facilities.

Q. What are your plans for Continuing Education?

A. I feel that with the expansion of knowledge in order to be a forward-moving university, we have got to look at the full-range spectrum for education. An example of this is the preparatory program we are starting in music for local high school students. In the long range this means that most of those people will probably enter our music program for a baccalaureate degree, or that of another university, and then return to this area after graduate or conservatory work. Most artists and musicians like to stay fairly close to home. It is a characteristic. They do remain within a region. One of the reasons, at least as I view it, Tampa has found it difficult to move forward in some of the cultural affairs areas is that not enough has been done to generate the interest of young people. Tampa needs a youth orchestra and a number of things in this category. I feel that the University of Tampa in the long run can take a tremendous amount of leadership in this area, particularly, by starting programs which in ten years will see real benefit and merit.

Q. Is this to your knowledge the first time something exactly like this has been done, or have similar programs been established in other liberal arts colleges.

A. I don't know of any regionally. Universities have done this in other parts of the country. But, they have done it more in the framework of providing good alternatives for children of faculty and staff members.

Q. So, it has been more internally oriented than externally oriented.

A. Yes. But we can do it for a number of people. We are here to educate people. That is the primary reason for the University's existence. We must be able to relate to our students and give them the kind of motivation and background necessary for their future careers and lives. Otherwise, we shouldn't be in business at the University. Secondary education has degenerated a great deal in this country, and I think even those who were willing to sweep this under the carpet in the past are no longer willing to do that. In addition, there is a continuing breakdown in the family so that many of our students are coming to the campus looking for someone to counsel them, to guide them, to give them a direction for the future. We must be able to respond to that need with a good liberal arts program which prepares a student to be a useful, productive citizen or to go on to graduate work. Also, I think we have to have a flexible program which permits a person to bring out the best within himself, rather than being in a lock step program which cuts out all opportunity for creativity. If we do nothing more than teach them to think we have accomplished our objective.

Q. What will we have to do to accomplish this?

A. You don't want a long lecture on pedagogues?

Q. No. But, are there any definite or immediate changes or additions that will take steps in this direction?

A. To develop students into thinking individuals? I think we are doing a pretty good job of that already, but we need to do a much better job in advising and will be working harder on a new advising program.

Q. You know, everybody is talking about Future Shock and the overwhelming pace of change. What is the University of Tampa's approach to meeting the problems outlined by Toffler?

A. I don't know. I haven't read it all.

Q. In other words, teaching the student to cope with change rather than filling him up with static facts that soon will become obsolete. Will this call for a revolution in the curriculum, or what?

A. It will necessitate some change, yes. Either a change in the content of courses, change of course titles, or new courses of some sort, but it doesn't mean that you change and develop new courses without dropping some of the old ones that are no longer relevant. I think it is important to note that between 1636 and when Harvard was founded in 1900, there were 50,000 college students. That is all. Between 1900 and today we have gone to nearly 8.5 million college students. The growth rate in higher education between 1900 and today is double. It has been a doubling process in geometric progressions every 15 years. Now the key is, I think, in the decades ahead the biggest difficulty of managers will be managing change itself — to borrow a phrase from W. Howard Chase — getting key executives and leaders to think in terms of management of change.

Q. What are your personal feelings regarding the role of the President of the University in the 1970's?

A. I am not sure I follow your question. You mean how do I view my role?

Q. Right.

A. I view my role as a catalyst — bringing people together with a commonality of interest and giving them the framework of the creative organization in which they bring the best of themselves forth and turn it to the benefit of the University.

Maestro Irwin Hoffman enters Fletcher Lounge accompanied by music Professor Richard Rodean.

HOFFMAN: This is a fascinating room . . . well suited to chamber music.

RODEAN: The cathedral acoustics could be a problem.

HOFFMAN: (claps hands; listens to long reverberation) Nice. Lively. I like it. It gives us something to work with. What is the architecture?

RODEAN: Finest example of Moorish in the U.S.

HOFFMAN: Ah . . . fascinating . . . charming. Let's think about this room some more.

Maestro Hoffman did think some more not only about Fletcher Lounge as a concert hall for his string quartet but also about the University of Tampa's innovative music program. As a result he and his distinguished family decided to assist in the University's commitment to . . .

The Musical City

By Richard Rodean
Professor of Music

Gone are days of the "Community Sing." The people still want music, and many like to make their own. But nowadays they listen to themselves — and others — with a more critical ear.

In all-out response to the Tampa area's long-suffered pleas for professional musical training at moderate cost the University of Tampa has developed the Pre-College Music Program with internationally renowned concert violinist Esther Glazer (wife of Maestro Hoffman) as the University's first musical artist-in-residence.

With the help of many community leaders, most of whom are educational and cultural administrators and professional musicians, plans are complete for the opening of the area's first college prep music school for high school students (grades 9 through 12) and for adults enrolled in the non-credit Continuing Education program.

Designed to complement existing public school and private studio music instruction, the University's Pre-College Music Program is intended to upgrade the overall musical awareness of area residents and increase their involvement in musical activities.

During the 1972 spring term some 50 students are expected to participate in a Saturday music study program including private instrumental instruction, classroom theory courses and beginning piano. These three areas provide the basic disciplines required of the serious music student and critical music listener. Top level studio instruction will be given by University of Tampa professors, members of the Gulf Coast Symphony and personnel from the 589th Air Force Band of MacDill AFB. Professor Stephen Park, senior member of the University of Tampa faculty and well-known composer, will teach theory sequence.

The appointment of Miss Glazer as artist-in-residence is expected to add depth to the new program. Miss Glazer will join the music faculty in January to help develop strings programs at the University and throughout the Tampa Bay area. She will teach violin and viola in the Pre-College Program, will serve in music seminars at the University, direct chamber music ensembles and present one formal violin recital during the semester.

Miss Glazer made her concert debut in Chicago at the age of nine, subsequently holding a fellowship at Juilliard, where she studied with Ivan Gaiman. She has appeared as soloist with the BBC Symphony, the New York Philharmonic, the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic, Radio Zurich Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony, the New Orleans Symphony, the Vancouver Symphony and the Grant Park Symphony of Chicago. Miss Glazer has made seven European concert tours, appearing in England, Switzerland, Belgium and Germany.

Having taken permanent residence in St. Petersburg, the Hoffmans are vitally interested in contributing to the cultural growth of the Tampa Bay community. As a tie-in with the University's new emphasis on music for the community the Hoffman String Quartet will perform three concerts in Fletcher Lounge in 1972. These programs have been scheduled for January 20, March 9 and May 11 at 8:15 p.m. Quartet members include Miss Glazer and Irwin Hoffman, violin; Gary Hoffman, cello, and Ed Stover, viola.

Serving on the board of advisors for the Pre-College Music Program is John Singleton, Hillsborough County supervisor of music. Singleton has helped lay the groundwork for accreditation of the program by the State Education Department. This would mean that students enrolled could receive credit on their high school transcripts.

Other members of the advisory board include Anzia Arsenault, artistic director of the Tampa Concert Ballet; Don Banks, Jesuit High School music director; Robert Casterline, vice-president of Lien Chemical Company; Irwin Hoffman, musical director of the Gulf Coast Symphony; Carlisle Hutchinson, president of the AFM, Local 721; Ruth Carrell Johnson, Johnson Music Studios; Robert Price, band director;

David Ramsey, manager of the Gulf Coast Symphony; Richard Rodean, University of Tampa Music Department chairman; Steve Solak, band director; David Ward Steinman, Tampa Bay composer-in-residence (Ford Foundation project), and Dr. Edward Ward, University of Tampa director of Continuing Education.

Price and Solak are UT music alumni.

Fees for the 14-week Pre-College Music Program have been set at $100 for a music major (lessons, theory, ensemble and piano) and $80 for a music minor (lessons, theory, ensemble). This fee structure is designed to make it possible for any serious student to participate. Eventually the program could provide a reservoir of talent from which the Gulf Coast Symphony may draw. In addition it will create unique teaching opportunities for Gulf Coast Symphony members, University of Tampa and community musicians.

Lending weight to the Music Department's credentials for training the community's serious musicians is its recent formal application for associate membership in the National Association of Schools of Music, the culmination of many years of intensive innovative music performance projects, curriculum studies and expanded musical offerings.

Priced on a break-even-at-best basis, the Pre-College project underlines the Music Department's commitment to serve the community through significant cultural leadership in answer to a challenge President B. D. Owens has presented to the entire University.

Freshmen Shine

Seventy varsity and 41 freshmen football players have withstood the rigors of the toughest practice schedule in UT's history and have turned into a winning team, despite early difficulties.

"We made numerous mistakes against Louisiana Tech (season's opener)," Coach Bill Fulcher said. "Most of our errors were mental — like improper alignment and costly penalties. We thought experience would pay off on defense, but mental errors that veterans don't normally make showed up in our evaluation of game films."

Fulcher started the Chattanooga contest with an unusually large number of freshmen ("This has to be one of the finest freshmen teams I've ever coached.") and walked away with that one, 31-14, starting a string of victories.

Fulcher's freshman stars include Freddie Solomon, an all-American quarterback from Sumter, S.C.; Frank Pitts, a back from Tarpon Springs, and Alan Pittman, a back from Largo.

Vets who have won special praise from Fulcher include tackles Ron Mikolajczyk and Noah Jackson, guards Dave Grantham and Barry Perez and center Fletcher Carr.

Family Plan

University of Tampa Athletic Director Gus Dielens has developed a special plan this season to make it easier for students and senior citizens to attend football games.

Students 15 years of age are offered the family plan child's individual ticket for one dollar. Students outside the University of Tampa over 15 pay $3 per ticket except for the Ole Miss game, $3.50.

Senior citizens are eligible for a similar plan. Anyone 65 or older is admitted to all Spartan home games under the $3 plan.

Tickets for these special offers include reserved seating in sections M and N in the East Stands between the 10 and 25 yard lines. They are available at the gate.

Regular prices for individual tickets to home games are $5 each except for the Ole Miss game which is $6.

Dielens' Challenge

Gus Dielens shed his Army colonel rank and the coveted West Point AD post to meet a challenge in Tampa.

"The Army is my life," he said. "I have never had a bad day in the Army. But I've found a challenge I just could not turn down. I feel that I can make a contribution to the University of Tampa in the field of intercollegiate athletics."

"In the future basketball will return," Dielens predicts, "but under what conditions I do not know. I think we have to develop a master plan which considers academics, intercollegiate athletics and facilities. And I think we have to look at the resources available before we can expand our present program (to restore basketball). We need a sound comprehensive program, and I am hoping it can include basketball for the future."

Dielens is optimistic about the challenge at Tampa. He wants to put the intercollegiate program on a self-sustaining financial level, boost season football ticket sales by 100 per cent, get alumni to help recruit athletes and produce a consistently competitive and successful football program.

His plans even call for Tampa to play his alma mater — Army, but not yet.

Holiday Spirit

Spartan fans will celebrate Thanksgiving a few days early, if the UT team takes the Vanderbilt Commodores, November 20.

Many Spartan followers will watch the action first hand during the Commodore Conquest Football Weekend in Nashville, Tenn., November 20-21. Kick-off for the November 20 game is slated for 1:30 p.m. at Dudley Field. With the Spartans out to even the score against the only team to deal them a defeat last season, it promises to be a cliff-hanging contest.

UNIVERSITY OF TAMPA
Alumni Movement

Perry O. Keene, Jr., '51, National Alumni '71 Homecoming chairman, invites you to "join the fun in '71," during Homecoming Week, November 7-13. His companion, an employee of the Hawaiian Village motel, this year's Homecoming headquarters, is ready to take your reservation.

Going Places

At Tampa Homecoming '71 means going places.

The University's dynamic young President B. D. Owens is a real mover, and the way is up. When you are on campus for Homecoming Week, November 7-13, have a chat with him about his plans to turn your alma mater into one of the South's leading private universities. More than ever you will be proud to be a grad.

There's another kind of action in store for you football fans Saturday night, November 13, when the Spartans face Eastern Carolina at Tampa Stadium in a contest that promises to be a winner, whatever the score.

When you arrive on campus you may be amazed at the visible signs of progress that have appeared since you were here last year. Second and third floor corridors of Plant Hall have been carpeted throughout, and the walls have been painted in exciting decorator colors, recalling the splendor of the old Tampa Bay Hotel.

Second floor is a study in contrast of soft and bright blues with a patriotic splash of red on the wall covering in the stairwell. Third floor is done in rich shades of autumn gold and brown.

The Chislars' project of restoring Fletcher Lounge, first the Tampa Bay Hotel dining room and later UT's library, to its original Moorish look has been completed. The tonal quality of this room has been carried into redecoration of the President's office.

Adjacent to Fletcher Lounge the new campus post office is in operation centered within a new faculty-student lounge. Two exterior entrances to this area have been created, opening onto a landscaped patio, added this year.

In addition to the new decor alumni returning to their alma mater for Homecoming may be surprised to see other much-needed major additions to the campus, including the Krusen building, the University's first complete center for maintenance and supply, and the long-awaited Sam Bailey baseball field.

Although Homecoming provides an excellent opportunity for viewing changes first hand, its main purpose is renewing friendships, strengthening ties with the alma mater and watching the mighty Spartan football team in action. We have big plans for '71. Come join us.

Challenge for Loyalty

First Federal Savings and Loan of Tampa is offering a $5,000 challenge to the 1971 Alumni Loyalty Fund portion of the 1971 Forward Fund drive.

First Federal will match dollar for dollar all new gifts to the fund up to $5,000. "This makes every new gift doubly important this year, and I am confident all alumni will help us meet this challenge," said Robert C. Bradley, '63, chairman of the 1971 Loyalty Fund drive.

This year's highest-ever goal has been set at $30,000. "Last year's fine effort by alumni, which produced a record number of donors and dollars, lead us to believe our goal is a realistic one,"
said Bradley, who is senior vice president of First Federal.

Last year under the leadership of Perry O.

Keene, Jr., '51, a record 509 donors contributed a record $24,000 to the 1970 drive. An appreciation plaque for outstanding leadership and service was presented to Keene by Dr. G. Truman Hunter,
'39, president of the National Alumni Association.

Joining Bradley in leading the 1971 drive are David C. Pinholster, '41, chairman of the Special Gifts Division, and Gerald W. Bobier, '60,
Tel-o-thon chairman.

So far, tel-o-thons, group telephone solicitations, have yielded a total of $4,000. Cities which have participated and leaders in those areas include
Atlanta, Peter Peck, '64, and Ken Storz, '65; Miami, Hugo Menendez, '55, and Joyce Traina, '63, and Ft. Lauderdale, Howard Sypher. A Tampa tel-o-thon was held in late October under direction of Pinholster and Bobier.

More than 30 per cent of the $30,000 goal for the '71 Alumni Loyalty portion of the Forward Fund drive has been reached. Workers in the Tampa tel-o-thon segment of the drive, October 19-21, included (l-r) alumni Jerry Bobier, Charlie Meyer, Steve Starnes and Karen Chapple.

Fellowships for Women

The Danforth Foundation has announced applications are being taken from women seeking graduate assistance after delays in their academic careers.

The Danforth program was established seven years ago to provide fellowships for women who no longer qualify for conventional programs because of prolonged career interruptions such as raising a family, illness or the need of a paying job.

To be eligible a candidate must hold a bachelors degree from an accredited college or university or must have successfully completed the equivalent of one semester's work at an accredited graduate school in the United States prior to September 1, 1971.

At some time in her career the candidate must have experienced a continuous break of at least three years when she was not engaged in studying or teaching. At the time of application the candidate may not be employed as a teacher or enrolled as full-time graduate student.

An applicant may propose either a full or part-time study program at an accredited graduate school in the United States leading to a master's or doctoral degree.

Applicants are required to take the verbal and quantitative sections of the Graduate Record Examination and the test in the advanced category, if it is offered in the applicant's major field.

Completed applications for the 1972-73 Graduate Fellowships for Women must be received by the Danforth Foundation by January 7, 1973. The last date for taking the GRE is December 11, 1971. Registration closes November 23, 1971.

Detailed information and application forms may be obtained by writing Graduate Fellowships for Women, Danforth Foundation, 222 South Central Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri 63105.

Information about the Graduate Record Examination may be obtained from graduate schools or directly from the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

UT 100 Per Cent with Tri-Sig

All of this year's officers of the Tampa chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma are University of Tampa graduates:

Rosemary Bugna, '52, president; Josephine Baggs Jones, '54, vice president; Carol Czarnecki Walker, '65, corresponding secretary; Sylvia Penzato O'Neill, '63, recording secretary, and Patricia Alvarez, '62, treasurer.

Mrs. Walker is the wife of Dr. Charles R. Walker, Jr., of the University's Biology Department.

Tampa Tri-Sig received a surprise coup recently with the discovery that Sue Owens, wife of UT's new President B. D. Owens, is a member. Mrs. Owens expressed interest in becoming active in the Tampa chapter.

FROM THE CHAPTERS

Tampa Alpha

Aaron Dowd, '64, Tampa Alpha secretary, has expressed thanks to all members who helped in the promotion of the sellout performance of "I Do! I Do!". The stars were UT alums Jack and Sally Jenkins, '61, who opened a nationwide college tour of the show here in October. Tampa Alpha and the University of Tampa co-sponsored with proceeds (about $2,000 net) going to the University for academic scholarships.

Emerging from several weeks of intensive Homecoming planning, Tampa Alpha members have plunged without catching their breath into organizing their annual pre-game buffet dinner meeting to be held November 27 before the Spartan-Florida A & M game. New officers will be elected during the meeting.

St. Petersburg Beta

St. Petersburg Beta Chapter of the University of Tampa National Alumni Association held its second annual meeting at Bradford's Coach House in St. Petersburg with 50 members and guests present.

The following officers were elected to serve for the 1971-72 term: president, Robert C. Scott, '51; first vice president, Harry P. Kurtz, Jr., '49; second vice president, Lucille F. Ford, '65; third vice president, Frances S. Hoffman, '41; secretary, Roy E. Pinch, Jr., '41, and treasurer, Lewis W. Tougaw, '60.

Miami Delta

The Miami Delta tel-o-thon was held in September under supervision of Ken Hance, UT director of alumni relations, and Edward Snee, director of annual giving.

Delta Second Vice President Hugo Menendez, '55, who is in charge of the Forward Fund for the chapter, put together a highly successful tel-o-thon and wishes to thank the following persons for their help:

Wayne Story, '59, John Perry, '67, Bekky Leonard, '71, Pete Howell, Victor Fresh, '51, Joann Tosch, '62, Cleo Menendez, John Mitchell, '61, and Joyce Traina, '63.

Hugo Menendez, '55, (left) Miami Delta second vice president, and Bob Bradley, '63, of Tampa, Chairman of the 1971 Loyalty Fund drive, check the successful returns of the Miami tel-o-thon.

A special thank-you goes to John Sanchez, '54, who provided the headquarters for the tel-o-thon.

The Delta chapter held a buffet dinner in October for University of Tampa alumni in the Ft. Lauderdale area. Through the combined efforts of Howard Sypher, '51, third vice president, and Pam Seifert Ahlen, '59, alumni from 1933 to 1970 were assembled for the occasion. Purpose of this meeting was to strengthen the Delta chapter in the Broward and Palm Beach area.

During the summer Miami Delta held its second annual banquet at which Wayne Story was elected president. Story is coach and business manager for athletics at Miami Springs High School. Representing the University at the meeting were Sam Bailey, special assistant to the president for athletic affairs, Ken Hance and Edward Snee.

Bekky Leonard, '71, and Joyce Traina, '63, both of Miami, kept the telephone wires hot during Miami Delta tel-o-thon in September.

Atlanta Theta

Atlanta became the first city outside Florida to establish a UT alumni chapter, when Atlanta Theta chapter was formed in June at a founders dinner meeting at W. D. Crowley's restaurant in Underground Atlanta.

First Atlanta Theta president is Peter Morris Peck, '64, an Atlanta entrepreneur who is co-owner of three businesses in Underground Atlanta. UT President B. D. Owens, Robert B. Gronlund, vice president for development and public relations, and Ken Hance, UT director of alumni relations, were on hand for the inaugural meeting of the University's sixth alumni chapter.

Officers elected at the meeting are Peter Morris Peck, '64, president; George A. Watson, '67, first vice president; Max Davis, '63, second vice president; Marc L. Beaubien, '67, treasurer, and Kenneth Storz, '65, secretary.

Washington Zeta

Approximately 85 University of Tampa alumni residing in the Washington, D. C., area now have the opportunity to join the Washington Zeta alumni chapter after the July founders dinner meeting at the Westchester in Washington.

Officers elected at the meeting are Richard Slye, '65, president; William I. Barnes, '60, vice president and Susan Weikel, '70, secretary-treasurer.

Instrumental in establishing the Washington chapter were Braulio Alonso, '39, former president of the National Education Association, now its director of international relations, and Julie Neef, '39, member of the National Alumni Council and former secretary to Senator Holland.

Program speakers at the founders meeting from the University were Robert B. Gronlund, vice president for development and public relations, Ken Hance, director of alumni relations, and Edward Snee, director of annual giving.

Tampa Nu

In addition to the original Tampa Alpha chapter and the Brandon Epsilon chapter the Tampa community now has a third alumni chapter called Tampa Nu. Tampa Nu encompasses the outlying areas of Temple Terrace, Lutz and Land O' Lakes.

Tampa Nu, the eighth chapter of Tampa's National Alumni Association, held its founders buffet at Sheraton-Tampa Motor Hotel in August.

Featured on the founders program were UT President B. D. Owens, Robert B. Gronlund, vice president for development and public relations; Ken Hance, UT director of alumni relations, and Gary Stevens, '69, assistant to the registrar.

Circuit Judge Robert E. Beach, '55, president-elect of the National Alumni Association, was a special guest.

Officers elected for the coming year include William James, '70, president; UT economics professor Al Terry, '64, vice president, and Joellen Faraghan, '71, secretary-treasurer.
