Four o'clock last Wednesday afternoon found the Dean's offices frantically putting the stamp of approval on the last candidate's petition. There are twenty-nine candidates up for office, with only one running unopposed, and all had to comply with new regulations, as established in the new constitution. In order to qualify each of the candidates had to be full semester hours this semester and time undergraduate students who have completed at least 12 credit hours in the University in each of the last two preceding semesters with a minimum of a 1.0 average in the preceding semester. They also have to be carrying at least 12 have an overall 1.0 average.

The provisions of the new constitution call for a reduction of officers, but in place of the single legislative body which we are now working under there will be a two house system with the members of the House of Representatives to be elected at a later date. The upper house will contain both the executive and legislative offices, including Student Body President, Student Body Vice President, and the newly created position of Student Body Co-ed Vice President. In addition to the student body offices there will also be seven class offices, namely Senior Class President, Senior Class Vice President, Senior Class Secretary, Junior Class President, Junior Class Vice President, Sophomore Class President and Sophomore Class Vice President.

Yvette Forman seems to be the only candidate, at present, who can safely say she has an office for sure. The young lady is running unopposed for Senior Class Secretary.

Esquire's CLUB & CAMPUS FASHIONS

BY O. E. SCHOEFLER, ESQUIRE'S Fashion Director

Brace yourself—here come the holidays, with their feasts, fetes and festivities! And it's not a moment too soon to start organizing your formal clothes, right down to the smallest detail, so you'll be ready for any and all invitations to greet this gala season!

STRICTLY SPEAKING—you're on "dress parade" at a formal party. There's nothing like the lift that dinner clothes can give you, when you're all dressed up with someplace to go! But make no mistake—this is one time when tradition calls the turn. Formal dress leaves little room for the expression of your individuality—every component must be correct. Now, let's have a rundown on the rules—plus all the loopholes the law allows!

BLACK BLACK BLACK IS THE COLOR—of your truly formal clothes. Period. Unquote. No exceptions—unless your holiday plans include Palm Beach or some such subtropical resort! (In that case, off-white, pastels and even Madras plaids may be worn, according to local custom.) Your dinner jacket is traditionally cut along Natural Shoulder lines, and worn with plain, pleatless trousers with a single line of braid down the side. Although the satin-faced shawl collar is the orthodox touch, the notched lapel is taking an increasing lead in popularity, and some peaked lapels are also being worn.

YOU CAN PLAY IT COOL—no matter how perspiration-prone you are! Paradoxical as it may seem, the addition of synthetic fibers has subtracted an incredible amount of weight from the standard worsted-and-mohair blends of dress suitings! Those man-made miracle fibers will do you another favor when it comes to shirts. They've got a built-in, spic-and-span crispness that has nothing to do with old-fashioned, suit-of-armor starch! And something else your shirts should shun is the old-fashioned riverboat gambler look. That fancy shirt-front with the lace and ruffles should be worn only for a TV guest shot—flat, pristine pleats are the order of the day in smart circles!

DETAILS—ALWAYS DETAILS!

Exactly. For instance, studs and cufflinks should be dark—black pearl or something in the same spectrum, and as simple as possible. No Maharaja of Baroda effects allowed (unless, of course, you're the Maharaja of Baroda!). The wearing of the vest, silk and backless, is on the increase, while cummerbunds are still widely popular. In either case, it's a nice touch to match it to your tie. This can be done in a variety of fabrics—silk barathes, satin, brocade—and in one color. Black. And look for a revival of the more generously proportioned butterfly bow tie.
