

Master Plan II proposal discussed

By BRYON HOLZ
Editor

A strategic planning group consisting of seven University of Tampa faculty and two staff members was organized in April of last year. The group was formed to identify any unclear directives in the University's Master Plan I and propose changes or an outline for a new document, Master Plan II.

Their report was submitted to President Richard Cheshire on December 14, 1982. The 55 page report contained recommendations in areas including:

1. Plans for a more definite academic image for UT to attract better students;
2. The development of academic program priorities in accordance with a unified mission statement;
3. The further development of quality internships for more disciplines, the hiring of a full-time job placement officer, investigation into co-op programs and the greater utilization of alumni in these endeavors;
4. The review of university programs like Metro College, the Seminar Center, etc. to determine if they are cost effective in relation to their benefits to UT, as well as a review of UT's relationship with Tampa Prep School;
5. The continuing evaluation of the bimester at UT, retaining its good points and discarding its unsatisfactory features; and

6. The improvement of Physical Plant and several campus environments, including riverfront development, campus safety, and regularly scheduled maintenance and renovation.

UT Senior Staff members responded to the group's report in a meeting of trustees, faculty, staff and student leaders held March 24, 1983. An outline report of their responses was distributed with the following comments:

'The mission of the University needs to be a vital, living stimulus . . .'

—proposal,
Master Plan II

In regards to academic identity, senior staff responded that academic scholarships should continue as a primary method of attracting better students, and that the money for these come from sources other than tuition.

It was remarked that a substantial percentage of non-scholarship grant students must be maintained, however, to minimize subsidy of the scholarships by tuition. Last semester 52.6 percent of all full-time UT students received some form of UT grant.

The prime concern in the area of academic identity was the steady improvement of student retention by allowing smaller and better freshman classes, fewer adjunct faculty, and tuition increases that are competitive with other small, private colleges in the state. These increases were to be matched by increases in scholarships and grants from UT, according to the report.

The report also agreed with the re-examination of university programs such as the Seminar Center and Nursing Program for their contribution to the university.

The report stated that UT's main purpose is to promote undergraduate studies to "full-time college-age students," and that any additional programs should not only be self-sustaining, but must "clearly contribute to the overall benefit of the university."

"The mission of the University needs to be a vital, living stimulus for what we teach and learn in every area of University life and work," stated the outline.

In the academic area, a firm commitment to the bimester system, the honors program and a development program for students with academic weaknesses was made.

Finally, the report addressed the concern to develop a new arts center, sports center, stadium-field complex, library addition/expansion, additional classroom space, and regular maintenance, repair and beautification of the campus.

Cheshire responded personally to several more specific questions about the original group proposal recently for The Minaret:

Shifting scholarship resources away from entering freshmen and using them to retain upperclassmen who have proven academic excellence. Cheshire suggested that this is occurring, but not as much as possible. Money is available for upperclassmen with need, but there are some problems. This is a crucial question, and there are currently about 61 students who are doing honors work and qualify for financial assistance. The university is working on the problem, he said.

Increasing student retention by giving students a sense of belonging and a desire to stay at UT. Cheshire said a "full-court press" is needed, "examining everything you're doing to seek improvement in all areas" from maintaining a top-notch faculty to quality academics, student affairs, athletics, etc. He said for every sophomore retained, one less freshman need be recruited. Increased student responsibility in student life is a good way to help increase student satisfaction, he added.

The raising of UT's admission standards. "The number one objective of the university is to be the best free-standing undergraduate school in the state before 1990," said Cheshire. Admission standards will be raised to a 3.0 GPA and 1000 SAT score by 1987.

Honors Program. Recent freshman profiles show that the honors program is "one of the finest things the university has done," according to Cheshire.

Increasing tuition is 'a means to an end, not an end in itself . . .'

—UT President
Richard Cheshire

Increasing tuition costs as a way to make UT more selective. Increasing tuition is "a means to an end, not an end in itself. There is a value in having a higher tuition — you are perceived as being better. We'll know if we make a mistake," said Cheshire. Universities are extremely sensitive in pricing, and Cheshire doesn't see another 12 percent tuition increase next year.

Student activities guideline review in progress

By LUCY ROCES
Staff Writer

An ad hoc Student Activities Guidelines Committee was established last semester at the request of Provost Ed Wilde. According to Wilde, the committee, chaired by acting Dean of Students Suzanne Nelson, was commissioned to set up guidelines for Student Government, student and non-student sponsored activities, and guidelines to clarify and strengthen advisor involvement in these activities.

The committee, comprised of four students, two faculty members, and two staff members, presented a draft of a Program Registration and Evaluation Form to the Executive Board and the Inter-Residence Hall Association on Wednesday, April 6. The form was created because all student programs sponsored by a University organization or individual must now be registered and approved by either Director of Student Activities Dave Jackson, or for residence hall programs, Director of Residence Life and Housing Jan Jardieu.

The need for a set procedure in dealing with programmed events and thus a committee to establish these guidelines arose after the controversial showing of the X-rated movie Emmanuelle last year on campus.

Prior to the proposed procedure, administration and advisors relied solely on the University Mission Statement adopted by the Board of Trustees on May 17, 1979. According to Nelson, "clarification was needed" as far as the statement is concerned. Nelson also stated that it is not a "philosophical committee."

"We were asked to set up a procedure based on a statement established by a former committee concerning student activities," Nelson said, referring to an ad hoc Committee on Freedom and Responsibility which was established in April, 1979.

According to Wilde, "The philosophy is in place and the committee is not expected to change it." The committee's charge is "to suggest implementation procedures."

The committee's objectives are to devise a "policy which disallows student organizations to function if they do not have an advisor," and to find guidelines and "procedures which foster the educational growth of students," said Wilde.

A draft of advisor guidelines was also presented last Wednesday. The draft was designed to clarify the role of an advisor. According to the draft, the advisor is "to offer guidance and support to a student organization in its (a) determination of purpose, (b)

Honors Convocation coming soon

By TRACEY TUCKER
Staff Writer

The University of Tampa will host the annual Honors Convocation, an award ceremony honoring outstanding students and faculty, on Wednesday, April 20 from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. in Falk Theatre.

According to Associate Provost Dr. Ford, most of the ceremony's awards will be given to outstanding seniors. However, others will be recognized and everyone is encouraged to attend the ceremony.

Recognition of award recipients will be preceded by the playing of the National Anthem and a greeting from a member of the Board of Trustees.

Awards and recognitions will be given in the following order: Recognition of students on the Dean's List; Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship award; Wall Street Journal achievement award (business); Phi Alpha Theta International History award; and the Chemical Rubber Company Science achievement award (freshman).

The program continues with the awarding of the English award to the outstanding student in English; Association of Black Collegiate Service awards; Recognition of outstanding students in the Master Business Administration Program; Outstanding Accounting Graduate; and Fine Arts Division Awards.

Other awards given by various organizations are: Recognition of Alpha Chi Members; Recognition of active Phi Eta Sigma members; Recognition of active Omicron Delta Kappa Members; Beta Beta Beta Biological Honor Society Award; The Minaret Outstanding Journalism awards; Announcement: Editors, Publications; Presentation: 1982-83 Moroccan.

More awards for individual achievers include: Interfraternity Council Awards and Panhellenic Council Awards; Student Council Awards; Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges; McSchrawd's Cup - Outstanding Residence Hall Award; University of Tampa Woman's Club award (GPA); General Sumter L. Lowry Freedom Award (ROTC); Alumni association awards to male and female graduating seniors; and the Louise Loy Hunter award to Outstanding Faculty Members.

The best of the good life

Tampa may have the good life, but the University of Tampa has the best of the good life!

The city of Tampa is rapidly becoming a center of art and culture in Florida, and UT is an integral part of this movement.

There are many exhibits and performances of our students and faculty that draw hundreds of people from the surrounding area, often more non-students than students. These artists and performers have forged a place for UT among the cultural centers of the Bay area.

Student art exhibits, like the outstanding one currently in Scarfone Gallery, are a prime example of this cultural centers of the Bay area.

The recent performance of A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum was a production that brought not only favorable reviews from the local press, but prominent recognition from the local community.

The UT Travellers are a constant reminder to people around the Bay that UT isn't just a fun-in-the-sun business school. This group performs at locations ranging from the State Fair and national conventions to Civic meetings and retirement homes.

The UT Jazz Ensemble plays musical host to many business meetings, social activities and donor recognition functions at the University.

Going on a tour of schools and churches in the Southeast for the third Spring in a row, the University Chorale is a splendid example of UT's strong commitment to the arts.

There are also countless individuals who perform in regular afternoon recitals at the ballroom, an outstanding facility that UT is blessed with in addition to the renovated Falk Theatre, McKay Auditorium and Scarfone Gallery.

UT's many gifted students of sculpture, photography and canvas have won awards of recognition on local, state and national levels.

UT is also the home of the Florida Gulf Coast Symphony, Tampa Ballet, Spanish Little Theater, and numerous events like this week's Artswatch, many of which are free to UT students.

But there is one area of these programs that is quite deficient and is lacking attention.

That area is in audience support and attendance. Many of our programs are in the critical stage of development, and without the support of students and staff, these endeavors may not grow or even sustain themselves for the future.

It's all too easy for one to say that they support the arts, but judging from the attendance at most fine art events at UT, perhaps students still come to UT for a little fun-in-the-sun after all.

Big Brother grateful to SAE's

Editor, The Minaret:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the brothers and little sisters of Sigma Alpha Epsilon for their sponsorship of the annual Big Brothers/Big Sisters Spring Picnic that was held at MacFarlane Park this past Saturday.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is a national organization that offers positive role models to children between the ages of seven and 15 who come from either single parent households or from low income and other troubled families.

In Tampa, there are about 200 male and female matches that help in the guidance of these young people. On many occasions the organization will sponsor extracurricular functions that enable the volunteers to expand the activity time spent with their partners.

The spring picnic is a good example of this. Thanks to the eager and capable support offered by the SAE's, the picnic was a success. They made every child feel important and involved in the activities. My little brother will testify heartily to that fact. As both a student at UT and a Big Brother volunteer, I feel that the SAE's should be recognized as both a credit to the Greek system and to the university community.

Sincerely,
Victor Fernandez

Watt about the Beach Boys?

By MICHAEL DAVIS

Foot-in-mouth disease is a common ailment in Washington, D.C., but there is a man within the Reagan administration who appears to be one of the most susceptible to this affliction—Secretary of the Interior, James Watt.

Although very hard-line in his views, Watt has admitted making verbal mistakes. The most recent example is Watt's change of heart concerning the Beach Boys. Within the space of one day, he went from calling them, essentially, boozed-up dopers to patriotic musicians. This was after President and Mrs. Reagan (Californians, incidentally) "educated" Watt as to the fine points of beach music.

But Watt has said things that are true and logical, even though the press and Watt's targets have been angered. The Secretary's statement, "...if you want to see an example of the failure of socialism, take a look at American Indian reservations," caused certain groups to go spastic, not for what was said, but more for who said it.

Watt has said other things that, while being realistic, could have been left unsaid. His withering blasts against environmental extremists have been well-documented and decried by the liberal media. These statements have given some newsmen, in their view, license to open fire on Watt.

It is clear that some of the attacks from and against Secretary Watt are unjustified, but it is also evident that the Secretary would do well to curb his tongue in the future.

Special courses offered for summer

By DAN SPRINGER
Asst. News Editor

Are you tired of beating the pavement for a summer job? Why not try cultivating bacteria, or making wine and beer, and get credit for it?

This summer, the University of Tampa is offering special courses which are not currently listed in the University Catalog.

For example, "Famous Trials in American History" offers a study of some American trials and their impact.

In the mathematics department, "Recreational Mathematics" deals with the everyday aspects of math.

In the Physics area, "Astronomy" is being offered, as well as "Electronics." Both of these classes are for beginners.

Many aspects of business speaking and problem solving are covered in "Business Speech."

"Psychology of Women" will examine the psychological aspects of females and also behavior differences between men and women.

To learn how to home brew beer and analyze wine, one might be interested in "Chemistry of Winemaking and Brewing."

For a full description of the classes and dates and times for registration, see the 1983 Intersession and Summer Sessions Timetable, or contact the Office of the Registrar.

Discussing the total student population at UT, Cheshire said there are projections for a slight increase in size. UT won't be able to sustain great losses in students, even with higher tuition. Efforts at a smaller, more selective freshman class should only help stabilize upperclasses and not decrease the total population, he said.

The inability of UT to properly instruct computer science students in the face of rapidly developing technology. The University is currently pursuing a line of microcomputers for instructional purposes, as well as the opening of a new position in the computer science faculty. A very popular major at UT, computer science needs to catch up with the enrollment flow, according to Cheshire.

The great number of advisees for business division faculty. Cheshire saw this as a major problem that is caused in part by the fact UT is basically a liberal arts school, and that additional faculty are being sought. There are currently plans to open one more faculty position in the area of business for next year.

UT as a center for the arts. UT will continue to be strong in this area. The impending future loss of the Florida Gulf Coast Symphony from UT's McKay Auditorium to the new Performing Arts Center downtown, and the future transfer of the city's official auditorium to the same will be both good and bad for the university. Cheshire said we will lose some talent, but gain an auditorium all to ourselves.

Improving career assistance/job placement. The SCOPE office is currently being evaluated. UT is seeking the assistance of alumni in this area, giving them an "inside look at UT students," said Cheshire.

Telecommunications. The university is currently investigating the possibilities of having direct access to the new Tampa Cable Company, for an on-campus system and/or broadcast to the surrounding community as a part of future telecommunications major. Cheshire expressed his goal of introducing this major in the 1984-85 school year.

Tampa Preparatory School. There are currently proposals to relocate the self-sustaining program elsewhere on campus. The school is in the way of creating a physically unified university campus. It should be relocated by the end of the decade, according to Cheshire.

governance, and (c) choice of activities."

The draft further charges that all student organizations are to

- Have a faculty or staff advisor
- Organizations must register each semester with the Director of Student Activities
- Organizational leaders and their advisors are required to attend a workshop/information session each semester
- Advisors must attend a reasonable number of organizational meetings and events per year, the number to be decided upon at the discretion of the organization itself
- All Program Registration and Evaluation forms must have the advisor's signature before they are given to either the Director of Student Activities or the Director of Residence Life and Housing.

Changes will be made in next year's Student Handbook upon approval of the new guidelines and procedures.

Campus Clips

Compiled from wire services

State universities are tightening admission standards, according to an investigation by the New York Times, which found the University of Florida now requiring a minimum combined SAT score of 840 and an ACT score of 17 for admission. Meanwhile, three years of high school math will probably be mandatory before acceptance into the University of California system. The reason for recent selectivity is apparently reductions in budgets which inhibit the number of students able to be supported by each institution.

Enrollment shifts. By the year 1990, the college population will consist of more older students and more women, according to the National Center for Education Statistics. Close to one half of the entire college population enrolled could be part-time students, according to NCEES.

The number of students under 25 enrolled should decrease 15 percent, while the number of students aged 25 to 49 should increase by 25 percent.

Funds to be cut off. Federal funds to public colleges in six states will be cut off as of June 30 unless the schools submit adequate desegregation plans.

U. S. District Court Judge John Pratt ruled that Oklahoma, North Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Georgia and Arkansas will have to come up with plans that will achieve desegregation by the fall of 1985 or else they will lose their federal money.

NCAA takes over womens sports. The NCAA's move last fall to take over women's athletics has been upheld in federal court. The AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) has contested the move on anti-trust grounds.

The NCAA is now running both male and female athletic programs, having successfully nudged out the fledgling competition.

In 1982, the NCAA's university representatives voted to end the division of their athletic departments.

A Canadian college is trying to control off-campus behavior of its students. Beginning next fall, students registering at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., will have to sign a code of conduct making them liable for any form of behavior that reflects badly on the school. Penalties include suspension, expulsion or fines of up to $1,000.

A women's residence hall at Louisiana State University will be geared toward physical fitness programs, offering a furnished exercise room, organized exercise classes, group jogging, weekly health programs and an enclosed sunbathing area. A graduate assistant will be hired from the health education department to work at the dorm.

Senior class of 1983

Gift, graduation plans finalized

By NEIL STARR
Staff Writer

With just two weeks until graduation, the senior class has finalized graduation plans.

This year the graduating class of 1983 will donate two gifts to the University with a Senior Gift Fund of over $17,000: a new micro-computer lab and a trophy showcase for the new sports complex.

The micro-computer lab will be located in a refurbished room in Plant Hall. The gift will actually be a start-up grant for the lab, with the University providing additional funding.

According to Senior Senator Dennis Rears, students will reap the benefits of the new lab starting next September. However, he said the lab and new computer system will not be complete for another three to four years.

The new system, called "Tower," will be provided by NCR. The main difference between "Tower" and the present computer is the operating system. According to a computer center spokesman, there will be a UNIX operating system for the new lab. He said the UNIX can handle many different computer languages, which would yield two main advantages for students: they can be taught almost any language and use it on the new system, and, with the chance to learn more languages, they will be more marketable after graduation.

According to Rears, the lab will hold 16 terminals. More terminals may be connected to the system if needed, he said.

The trophy showcase will be located in the main foyer of the new sports complex, across from the gym, according to Director of Athletics Dr. Robert Birrenkott. He said the showcase will be built into the wall.

The approximate size of the showcase is 35' long x 8' high x 2' deep.

Among the awards that will be placed in the case are the 1982 NCAA Division II Soccer Championship Trophy and the 1972 Tangerine Bowl Trophy, said Birrenkott.

According to Rears, there was a good turnout in the voting for the gifts. He said that these two gifts "were the best selections possible."

The gifts will be presented to the Board of Trustees by Senior Senator Don Sears at commencement exercises.

Commencement has been set for Saturday, April 30, at 6 p.m., on the west porch of Plant Hall. The speaker at the ceremonies will be former Florida governor and 1984 Presidential candidate Reubin Askew.

In addition, several parties have been scheduled for the week prior to graduation.

The first party will be held on April 23 in Fletcher Lounge from 8-10 p.m. The Dean's Office and Alumni Department are sponsoring this invitation-only party. According to Rears, only April and August graduates, selected Administrative Senior Staff members, and Tampa Alumni Association members are invited. He said those invited may bring one guest.

Hors d'oeuvres will be served and an open bar will be provided for liquid refreshments, said Rears.

Two other parties will be held on April 26 and 27. Both will be in the Rathskellar from 5-7 p.m. Rears said that seniors and all faculty members are invited. The Rat will be closed to the rest of the campus during the party hours.

Both parties are being sponsored by the Pepin Distributing Company and, according to Rears, "Draft will be free until the provided kegs are gone." After they are gone, he said, drinks will be 25 cents.

Also, according to a letter sent to all graduating seniors, a reception will be held in Fletcher Lounge following the graduation ceremony.

Police offer summer youth job program

By NEIL STARR
Staff Writer

The Tampa Police Department, in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, has announced a new summer youth employment program for Tampa teenagers. Called Teens on Patrol (TOP), the program will run approximately eight weeks beginning in June.

University of Tampa Police Chief Patrick Schaefer, a member of the city's general council, said the reasons for the program are twofold. "It will provide for the constructive employment for some of the underprivileged in the area, and should help to foster a better working relationship with the Tampa Police Department," he said.

TOP will have no police power. Their duties will include patrolling parks and recreational areas, reporting such things as broken windows and broken-down doors, and escorting the elderly. According to Schaefer, the Teens will not be "informants" for the police, but rather "extra eyes" for them. He said TOP will do work "similar to the auxiliary police" here at UT.

Members of TOP will work five hours per day, four days per week. They will be paid minimum wage from funds provided by the Falk, Conn, and Saunders Foundations.

Applicants for the program must be Tampa residents between the ages of 16 and 19, and cannot be immediately related to anyone who works for the city of Tampa.

This is the first year for the TOP program in Tampa, and, if successful, the program will most likely be repeated annually, according to Schaefer.

Applications are available at the TPD and are being accepted through April. Anyone interested in more information should contact the TPD.

Employee of the month

Gene Wartenberg is the Employee of the Month for April. Wartenberg has served as the custodian for the Rathskellar for seven of its ten years as part of the UT campus. He is responsible for keeping the Rat clean seven days a week, and guiding tourists who wish to see it.

Festival of the arts

By JIM SCHIEFELBEIN
Features Editor

"It's fun, it's festive, it's free—it's Artswatch '83." This weekend the Bay area will come alive with a carnival-like celebration of the arts. Music, dancing, drama, poetry, painting, sculpture and much more will be yours to enjoy. In fact, so much activity is planned for this weekend that at times you'll have to choose between events.

Susan Taylor, executive director of Artswatch, is quick to point out that Artswatch is much more than just a crafts show, as it places equal emphasis on "both the performing as well as the fine arts." There will be "something for everyone," she said.

But what exactly is Artswatch? Taylor answers, "Artswatch is a non-profit organization made up of various art groups in the Bay area that are committed to showcasing the arts."

Interestingly, most of the activities of Artswatch weekend occur on or around the University of Tampa campus.

The Florida Gulf Coast Symphony's Phosphate Fantasia will be performed free on the porch of Plant Hall, and will officially kick off the festival on Friday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m.

The following day a myriad of activities are planned. The Artswatch "Promenade of the Arts" will get things going at 1 p.m., and from then on events will be going on approximately every half hour in various locations all over the campus. On the Hillsborough River there will be a barge which will host numerous musical groups whose styles range from Bluegrass to Latin Salsa.

There will be an outdoor stage in the center of Plant Park, along with a separate children's stage and playground.

Events will also be taking place across the river at the Tampa Museum, with an "Asian Festival" featuring Asian art, live performances and native foods of the Orient from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. At the Tampa Public Library a number of activities are planned, including poetry readings, films, and music.

On Sunday, April 17, the "Second Annual Artswatch Film and Video Showcase" will take place at the studios of WEDU.

All Artswatch activities are free, with the exception of the Artswatch Cabaret and Show Chorus performance. The donation for the Cabaret is $5, in exchange for which entertainment and refreshments will be provided. This event will take place at 10 p.m. on Saturday in Fletcher Lounge and features the UT Jazz Ensemble.

UT Show Chorus will perform Vivace! in the Falk Theatre on both Friday and Saturday evening at 8 p.m.. The charge is $2.

The weekend will indeed be an exciting carnival, a fun filled festival of frolic, and all of it within walking distance. So get out and support the arts!

UT art exhibited

By FRANK RUSSO and
STELLA WILLIAMS

The doors opened and the gallery began to fill. A light hum of approval grew among the crowd as students, faculty and others viewed the latest art exhibit at the Lee Scarfone Gallery.

The exhibits were varied, with media ranging from surrealistic oils to sculptured wood and contemporary photographs. The exhibitors are not famous, but they are extremely talented. The event was the opening night of the Student Art Exhibition.

After months of preparation it was finally time to display the creative efforts of the Fine Arts students here at UT. The exhibitors were excited and supportive of each others' works. They were also nervous about the competitive aspect of the event.

Beth Ford, a Fine Arts professor from the University of South Florida, judged the varied exhibits on individual merit. Four categories of awards were given, each with a cash prize. The fourth place award of $25 went to Joan Griggs and Andrew Woung; two third place awards of $50 went to Bonita Paine and David Collymore; second place and $100 went to James Abrahmsen and Leslie Stone.

Junia Mason received the Lee Scarfone Award and the first place prize of $150 for her oils.

Mason is a veteran of the Scarfone student art competition, taking last year's first prize. Mason's exhibit consisted of three oils entitled "All That Glitters," "Sidewalk Reprieve" and "5:00." All three depict human forms set in a type of urban sprawl. Mason's style is unique, using surreal devices combined with a type of impressionistic view.

Mason's paintings are for sale, along with most of the other exhibitors.

Dorothy Cowden, gallery director, said, "the art show is educational for our students; they learn how to display, mat and sell their pieces."

The Student Art Exhibition has been an annual happening for over 20 years, and has continued to be an anticipated event at UT and in the surrounding community.

Show Chorus

Something new

By DUNCAN WHITE
Staff Writer

Promising music and laughter and wonderful times, the University of Tampa Show Chorus will put on Vivace!, this semester's production, Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16.

Vivace! spotlights sequences and individual numbers from such famed musicals as Gypsy, West Side Story, Oklahoma, Music Man, Pippin and Pajama Game. Vivace! includes many numbers which are more contemporary than those previous performances.

The Travellers, a select group of Show Chorus members named for their performances which take them off campus and around the Bay area, will entertain the audience with selections from Hello Dolly!, Sheonandoah and The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

While the Chorus has been rehearsing under two lights and on a barren stage, Falk theater will come alive this weekend with the stage lighting, sets and costuming of a full-blown production.

The show is under the musical direction of Professor Malcolm Westly. Westly organized the group over a decade ago, and has gained recognition for his efforts to bring a bit of Broadway to Tampa.

Mary Ann McCulloch is the choreographer of the production. She is an experienced dancer and choreographer of numerous TV and theater productions.

Costumes for the group are created by Marilyn Westly. She fashioned this year's outfits, with the help of volunteers, from old gowns and used clothing that had been collected throughout the year.

Vivace! will feature a number of soloists, including Gloria Arnold, Lori Brigant, Cindy Foster, Bryon Holz, Rana Holz, Tom Klassen, Scott Leonard, Bonnie Murray, Pamela Perkins, and Michael Tahaney.

The cast will also feature Show Chorus alumni Andrea Ratzer and Esther Maria Talledo.

Performances will be April 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. in the Falk Theater. Tickets are available at the door for $2.

Spartan Sports Superfund launched

By STEVE GERRISH
Sports Editor

One of the most interesting and exciting things about sports is the incredible amount of preparation that goes into delivering a nice clean product (the game) to the fan.

College sports information directors (SIDS) and professional public relations directors compete with time, weather, and money in their efforts to put on an afternoon's or evening's entertainment.

At the University of Tampa we are faced with a unique problem. We have knowledgeable coaches and competitive athletes, but at present do not have the facilities to showcase them.

Through recent donations to the Spartan athletic program, the facilities will soon be a reality. But we need more. More money for recruiting, travel, equipment, and more money to pay the deserving personnel who put on the shows week after week.

The Spartan Sports Superfund is the UT Athletic Development Fund. It was conceived months ago to combat the rising athletic costs that plague many intercollegiate sports programs. According to UT Athletic Director Dr. Robert Birrenkott, the fund was designed "to provide alternate sources of income for UT athletics."

The Superfund petitions parents, former athletes, Spartan alumni, and community members to make tax deductible contributions to our athletic program. All contributions are used as additional funding and will not be substituted or transferred to other areas of the university.

"The Spartan Sports Superfund has been formed to help launch the University of Tampa and the Tampa sports community into a new era of sports," said UT President Dr. Richard Cheshire. "The importance and strength of athletics at UT was affirmed by the new sports policy adopted by the Trustees in 1978 and the comprehensive evaluation of the athletic program in 1981," continued Cheshire.

The Superfund will support a complete sports complex at UT, which includes: the Sports Stadium and other outdoor facilities, primarily our soccer stadium and the proposed world-class track; and the Sports Center, which will house our new basketball team, seating 3,500 spectators and providing office space for athletic department personnel.

The costs for the above programs have been set at $5,500,000. Income received through donations and contributions to the Superfund as of April, 1983 is $2,575,000. That places the remaining Superfund goal at $2,925,000. "We are on our way in a journey to the top academically and athletically," said Cheshire.

"We are dependent on the fund," said Birrenkott. "If we did not have this kind of support, our tuition would be out of reach."

"We are trying to keep up, to run as fast as the rest of the university is. We would like to receive gifts from a lot of people, not only major gifts from just a few people."

Birrenkott said that the giving is greater than it has ever been, but the support is lacking since football was dropped in 1975. "The dropping of football left a lot of people with bitter feelings," said Birrenkott. "Our funding has been slow, but this is not a drawback. We are goal-oriented and are sticking to our goals."

"A lot of community people are going to have to carry the ball," said Birrenkott, "but we are going to have a lot of people in that gym."

YOUR LAST 2 YEARS OF COLLEGE COULD BE YOUR FIRST 2 YEARS OF MANAGEMENT.

The Army ROTC 2-year program trains you to become an officer for a modern organization — today's Army — which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard.

An officer who is not only a leader of men, but a manager of money and materials as well.

That's why one of the things you'll learn in our 2-year program is management training skills.

Your training will start the summer after your sophomore year, at a six-week Army ROTC Basic Camp.

You'll earn over $600 for attending Basic Camp. And up to $1,000 for each of your last 2 years of Army ROTC.

But the biggest reward comes on graduation day. That's when you receive both a degree in your chosen major and a commission. And join the Army management team.

For more information, drop by your ROTC Dept.

UT crew competes in International Rowing Regatta

By LUCY ROCES
Staff Writer

If you see members of the UT crew with a sunburn, it's because they were at it again — this time in sunny Miami, Florida.

It was a beautiful day Saturday, April 9, unlike the previous Saturday, as UT and other crews participated in the Tenth Annual International Rowing Regatta hosted by the Miami Rowing Club (MRC).

Florida Institute of Technology, with 80 points, won overall.

Willie Kuhlman and Paul Gouin took out a pair in the open men's pair without-a-coxswain race. They placed third behind FIT's "A" and Guatemala Rowing Federation's (GRF) pairs.

The open men's lightweight four rowed well on the 1000-meter course to place second behind FIT's four. UT was followed by the University of Central Florida, GRF, and MRC.

FIT heavyweight women dominated the open women's four race. It was oar against oar as UT's lightweight four battled against UCF's heavyweights. UCF claimed second by two seats, placing UT in third. Melbourne High School (MHS) followed UT to place fourth.

The battle still raged between UT and FIT for first. In the open men's four competition, FIT's "A" boat rowed in first, followed by UT, UCF, Florida Athletic Club (FAC), and other boats.

Again the women were put to the test, this time in the open/college women's eight race. UT women placed fourth following FIT's "A" boat, UCF, and FIT's "B" boat. MHS finished fifth in the race.

UT men also placed fourth in their open/college men's eight. They were preceded by FIT's "A" crew, FIT's "B" crew, and FAC, and followed by UCF.

Baseball

The University of Tampa baseball team compiled an 0-3 record last week. The Spartans are 3-5 in the Sunshine State Conference and 19-10-1 overall.

On April 4, UT was bounced 12-7 by Eckerd College; on April 6 and 8 the Spartans were swept 6-3 and 6-3 by number one ranked Florida

Southern; and play on April 9 was rained out.

Tampa contests Biscayne College on April 15, 16 and 17 in Miami.

Basketball

Did you know the last UT basketball game was played on February 26, 1971 in Atlanta with the Spartans losing to Georgia Tech, 99-72? Did you know the last UT basketball coach before Richard Schmidt was Dana Kirk, who is now at Memphis State? And, did you know John Napier holds the UT single game scoring record with 56 points achieved on January 8, 1969 against Valdosta State?

These facts plus other records and results are presently being sought by UT Sports Information Director Jim Sheehan in preparation for the 1983-84 basketball season. "Record keeping did not seem to be a priority in days gone by at UT," said Sheehan. "With the exception of football, statistics were either not kept, misplaced, or thrown out after the football demise in 1975. This makes it difficult to give proper credit to many fine student-athletes of the past."

Sheehan has already sifted through many of the school's yearbooks and newsfiles and has picked up bits of information. But it is neither complete nor thorough enough. "I expect to spend a good deal of the summer in the library going through microfilms of the Tampa Times and The Tampa Tribune to obtain records and results. If any alumnus or friend of UT has records or results from the past, however unimportant it may seem, it is important to me. Please call me at the university and let's talk Spartan basketball."
